NOTICE.

THE following Memoirs of the Reign of KING JAMES THE SIXTH in Scotland will, it is hoped, not be considered an uninteresting addition to those contemporary narratives, in which the general historian finds a valuable source of information. They were published at Edinburgh in 1755 by Walter Ruddiman, in a most unpretending volume, after being reduced into what was probably deemed a more popular form, by a sacrifice of the genuine language and original style, which greatly diminishes their attraction to the antiquary.

So far as can be discovered through the transmutations which the text has thus undergone, that edition appears to have been printed from a manuscript now in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates, (W. 6. 15.) which is evidently in more modern language and handwriting than those of the sixteenth century. This supposition acquires some confirmation from the circumstance, that both in that manuscript, and in Ruddiman's publication, the narrative of the Gowrie conspiracy, attributed to the pen of James the Sixth, has been appended to the Memoirs. Another manuscript has been found in the collection of the Right Honorable Lord Belhaven and Stenton, in a hand apparently of that century, and undoubtedly earlier than that of the manuscript in the Advocates' Library. The difference of dates of these two copies is farther ascertained by the dissimilarity of language and style. This is so great, that it would be difficult to find ten consecutive lines which exactly agree. In some instances omissions occur in the later manuscript, and there are frequent interpolations, sometimes of dates or designations of persons, in other cases of sentences or even paragraphs. From the internal evidence thus afforded, it appears likely that the transcriber of this manuscript has altered and added to his information from other sources. Upon the whole, it has appeared more desirable to follow the earlier and more genuine manuscript in the present reprint; but an Appendix of Various Readings distinguishes every variation and interpolation of any importance to the sense, which occur in the other manuscript; to have marked every omitted passage and verbal alteration, would have needlessly swelled the limits of the volume, and exhausted the patience of the reader. To illustrate the description thus attempted of these manuscripts, fac-similes are given of a corresponding passage from both, and also two specimens of David Moysie's autograph, from the originals preserved in the Register House.

Neither of the manuscripts so frequently referred to, throw any light upon the authorship of these Memoirs; and the quaint dedication to King James, by his "Majesty's own old man and humble servant," which is prefixed to the former edition, has no existence in the original, and indeed bears internal proofs of forgery. It appears, however, that David Moise [Moysie] was known to Nicolson as the author of a historical work, which the Doctor classes with those of Habakkuk Biret [Bisset] and John Colum, as "hard to be met with," (Scot. Hist. Lib. folio edit. p.p. 45, 46.) In the absence of direct evidence, the Editor has no wish to deprive his book of its supposed parentage, and has,

with the kind assistance of Mr Macdonald of the Register House, collected a few notices of David Moysie.

The orthography of proper names was formerly little attended to in Scotland, and was often varied at the caprice of the writer. The case of the author is however remarkable, in as far as his surname has not till now been correctly given to the public. Nicolson, as has been shewn, calls him MOISE, and in the former edition of these Memoirs, he invariably appears as DAVID MOYSES. The latter name is found through a long tract of time among the burgesses of Aberdeen, but the Editor is not aware of any other instance in which that of MOYSIE occurs.

MR DAVID MOYSIE exercised the professions of Writer and Notary Public in Edinburgh, during the former part of the reign of James the Sixth. In 1577, we have him in the latter capacity attesting the subscription of David Andersoun, to a lease granted by James Bannatyne of the Kirkcoun of Newtild. Not long after this date, he was employed in the offices of state, in which he continued to labour, though apparently without attaining to any considerable promotion. Various notices of his occupations and emoluments occur between 1582 and 1601, in the Treasurer's Accounts, the Register of the Privy Seal, and passim in other records. During the former portion of that time, he was occupied as a Clerk of the Privy Council; of the few notices of him in that capacity which remain, the following are selected from the Treasurer's Books, 1586.

“ Item, to Dauid Moyfie for his lawbouris be the faid space, [the year 1586,] vj liʒ. xiiij ſ. iiij d.

“ Item, to Dauid Moyfie daylie occupeit in writting of the effairis of the secreit counfale vnder Johnne Andro, for his grite panis and travellis, and for his yeirlie allowance omittit in the laft compt of the lxxxij and lxxxiiij, lxxx lib. and for the lxxxv yeir, compted xl lib. inde j^c xx lib.

“ Item, be his Maieftis precept to Daudid Moyfie writtare, for the fupport of his charges fuffenit in the continewale attendance vpoun his Hienes at court, as the fame producit beris, lxxvj lib. xiiij ſ. iiij d.”

At a fubfequent period, in 1596, we find him in the Secretary’s department. Several letters of this date which have been preferved, open up fome of the mysteries of that office, and fhew among other things, that Mr David was not indifferent to the emoluments of his fituation. Thefe letters, with a memorandum by Alexander Hay, Clerk of Register, ferving to illuftrate the divifion of labour and of fees, are appended to this notice. Along with them is given a letter from Mr Hercules Rollok, which, befides news of official intereft, gives fome insight into the chit-chat of the day.

Of the private and domeftic hiftory of David nothing is known, except that on the 3d Auguft 1584, a letter paffed under the Privy Seal “ to Daudid Moyfie fone lauchfull to Daudid Mofey wrettar, gevand, “ grantand and difponand to him during all the dayis of his lyiftyme, “ for his helpe and fuffentation at the fcolis, and educatioun in vertew “ and guid lettres, all and hail the few maillis of the commoun landis “ of the kirk of Dunkeld, callit Foffartie and Babewlie, extending to “ threttie tua pundis money of this realme.” David the fon having died foon after the date of this grant, it was renewed to his father, 19th February 1584-5.

With this meagre introduction of the author, the reader is left to improve an acquaintance with him through the medium of his book.

As the narrative of a contemporary, and probably often of an eye-witness, it is not without value; but its chief interest will be found to consist in graphic delineations of daily occurrences, and in minute touches of character and manners, such as cannot enter into the more comprehensive compositions of the historian.

The Act of Privy Council, which changed the commencement of the year from the 25th March to the 1st January, and which is referred to at p. 166. of the Various Readings, is subjoined in the Appendix from the original record.

APPENDIX.

I. [DAVID MOYSIE TO SIR JOHN LINDSAY OF MENMURE SECRETARY?]

MY LORD, pleas your L. : according to directioun I presentit to his Majesteis hand, and obtenit subscrivit the tua letteris to be sent to Flanderis anent the Erll of Errole. I have formit his Majesteis anfuere to the Conservatour, quhilk your L. fall reffave with the rest. The penaltie of the last act of cautionarie fund be the Erle of Errole at Abirdene is fourtie thousand pundis, quherof Johnne Andro (quha hes the actis) can resolve your L. He sould forme that act of cautionarie craved for Errole now : yit I have formit the same according to your L. informatioun ; quherin gif ony thing wald be helpit, lett the same be done be Johnne, for he is best skillit in they materis : His Majestie will have the same pane, and the famin cautioneris contenit in this act that wes in the formar. His Majestie hes tald me, that the thesaurar hes that letter quhilk wes writtin be the estates of Zeland. I deliverit the copy of the cockalane to his Majestie, quhilk almaist nevir cummis out of his handis. His Majestie is heichlie exasperat aganis the makares ; God fend him knaulege, for thai deserve feveir punischement. His Majestie fend for sum of the speciall hornaris at his being in Dundie, bot few compeirit, saiffand the maister of Gray and thre or foure ma, quha satiffait his Majestie be relaxationis. Na ordour taiken with the non compeirantis, bot that the maister of Gray as shereff, (quha hes promittit as I heir to cum to his Majestie at Falkland,) falbe appointit to mell with thair houffis. I reffaved not your L. packett quhill our cuming out of Dundie, on Fryday last about tuelff houris at the watter fyde, fwa that the greit storme sensyne and our dalie travelling hes bene the caus of the not returne of ansuer, quhilk it will please your L. to excuis. And sua, my maist humyll commendationis of service remembered, I commit your L. hartlie in Godis tentioun : from Dumfermling, this viij of August 1596.

Your L. awin man and seruand,

DAVID MOYSIE.

II. TO MY VERRIE GUD LORD AND MAISTER MY LORD SECRETARE.

MY LORD, efter my verray hartlie commendatioun of service: I reffavit your L. ticket fra David Moyfie to deliver to him fyftie merkis, quhilk I haif done sensyne. Mr Robert Gudlad hes inquirit of me, gif I knew quhat was wont to be his fie for serving in that part of the office; sa far as I can understand, your L. prediceffour gaif him out of his awin purfè ane hundreth merkis be yeir at twa termes. The tyme that David Moyfie reffavit fra me fyftie merk, he wes complenand it wes sa littill, that he could nocht weill serve for sic small fowme; had he nocht had that office, he wald nocht have kept it without greter commoditie. I ansuerit him, it was the office brought him in accompt, and maid him the man he was, and sa fould nocht difdane his fervice, and compt it fa littill. Alwyife my L. gif he will nocht ferve for fic fowme as your L. lykes to gif him, your L. will get anew to do the turne alfweill as he ; your L. knawis weill aneuch quhat to do. Sua committis your L. to the protectioun of almychtj God : Off Edinburgh, 24th Auguft 1596.

Your L. fervand at al power,

J. LAING.

III. TO THE RIGHT HONORABLE MY SPECIALL GUDE LORD AND MAISTER, MY LORD OF MENMURE SECRETAR TO OUR SOVERANE LORD.

PLEIS it your L. ; your laft Danifhe difpeshe imbarkit upon Fryday laft at efternone, and gif the winde continewe in this airth as it hes done fenfyne, may be at the ambaffadouris the morne at evin.

Anent David Moyfies fie, I can fend your L. na uther certanetie nor I have be his awne report, quhilk is, that he had yeirlie payit him be your L. antecessour ane hundreth merkis, be precept anis in the yeir to Mr John Layng ; quhilk in my tyme was onelie fourtie pundis, and that rather fet down to me at my first entrie be the laft clerk of register, as ane dewe pertenyng to that fervice, nor that ever I maid reknyng of the payment of it, ather in my L. Dunfermlingis or the Chancellaris tymes, as being content, rather to have bene furthered be thame to any cafualitie that occurrit, nor to have bene that burdenable to any of thame in thair particuler. Quhilk David Moyfie fall rather chufe, gif he will follow my advife, speciallie fen the fervice felf is nocht fa barren, as may give any diligent attendar occafioun to be ower earnift upoun a fie, depending simplie upon his Majesteis liberalitie, as ever it be. I think the richt of this inclofit order, set down be sic ane hand at my first entrie to that service, may with gude reasoun reinge him to the first allowance; namelie respecting the hundreth pundis quhilk he hes payit him be the thesaurer, quhilk in my tyme excedit nocht thrie score, as heir your L. feis, and quhairof I never refavit ane denier.

This uther letter is the copy quhilk he sent me of his Majesteis ansuer to the Quene of Inglandis laft, written with his Hienes hand. I have comandit a silver pen for his Majestie, quhilk wilbe ready this oulk anis.

Swa to your L. nixt occasioun, I humblie tak my leve, at my hartieft commendatioun of service, committing your L. to the cure and comfort of that almychty phyfician, quha keip yow ever in his protectioun. From Edinburgh, this tyifday.

Your L. humble and loving servant,

M. G. YOUNG.

IV. ALEXANDER HAY CLERK OF REGISTER, ANENT THE DEPUTES OF THE SECRETARIE.

THE Secrétair thir findry yeirs bigane hes had tua deputis resident at court.

The ane clerk to the Counsale, quha had ordinarlie xij li. x s. in the moneth pait be the thesaurair, extending in the yeir to j^c and l li. This office wes first broukit be William Maitland therefter Secretair, then be Johnne Johnnestoun, then be Alexander Hay, and now be Johnne Andro.

The uther may be callit properlie the Secretaris Depute in the Secretary, and is in effectt equall with the other in ordinar commoditie pait in this maner ; xl li. be my Lord Secretair at Witfunday and Martimes ; lx li. be the thesaurair, quhilk wes a penfion grantit to Sir Neill for paper, ink and walx furniffing ; and the proffite of the court fignet, eftimat worth l li.

The laft yeir I appointit Mr Johnne Andro, that we fuld be equall partiners in bayth, and ather of ws to ferve ordinarily our moneth about.

Off lait yeirs I had a penfion grantit unto me out of the thriddis, as Johnne Andro had ane likuife, bot the ftorme of revocationis hes drevin that welth away. We had likuife bushe in court quhen we lykit to await theron, bot I forbure to feik it ordinarily quhill I had feene ane ordour.

V. TO MY SPECIALL GOOD LORD MY LORD SECRETAR.

MY LORD, eftir maift ferviabile falutations : My bil anent Mr William Borthuik, fould have bene fend the nixt day eftir my cumming heir, with Mr David Lindfaye, quhae difappointit me contre his promife, and fuae it cam lait to your L. Your letter for anfwer thairof, wes deliverit to Mr William : quhat effect it workis I knawe nocht, for he is rwid and faxxoufche ; bot my man is prefentlie in Dundie, to bring that filver heir, quhilk I look for fchortlie. As to your L. former bil to me, anent Patrik Murrays difpefche to the northe, I wreat na anfuer thertil, becaufe I lookit daylie to have cum thair, with all the peices of wreatis touching that purpofe, to have bene revifit and reformat be your L. ; bot feing we have done that maiter among our felfis to our awin contentment heir, we thocht it nocht neidful to trubbil your L. forder thairwith. We took in fum pointis avyftment of his Majettie, and in sum thingis consultit with the advocat. Patrik and I per-formit the rest, be the formalitie of Jhon Andro and William Wealie in maner following. We have alterit nae thing of your L. informations or injunctions to Patrik, except we have expressit the names of sex bar-rons, or onie thrie of thame; sax ministers, or onie three of thame, quhae fuld be on my Lord Huntlies counsal in his wechtie adois. The cheif commissioun that Patrik Murray caries with him contenis tuae heidis; the ane is, that the thrie erlis at his sicht in name of his M. satisfie al the conditions and injunctions of the Assembly, before thay be relaxit frae excommunication: the wther is, that the said Patrik, juning with him certan appointit ministers, pacifie all the feadis and debeatis in the northe; at least put thame al wnder assurance for ane year, til thaye be agreit with better leafur. And we have maid three of thir commissioun, ane for ilk erle, sumquhat different in the first head, becaus the conditions of the kirk touchis thame nocht al equalie; and in the commissioun anent the Erle of Angus, the secund head is nae way toutchit, because we knawe of his fead with nae man. Nixt, he caries with him thair three letteris of protection, to be daitit and publifit eftir the excommunication be lowfit. Thridlie, thrie obligations of the generall band, to be subscrivit be thame, and ten cautionars for ilk ane of thame, ilk cautionar wnder twae thousand pundis. And by the generall band thre particular conditions ar joint thairwith; 1. thay sal nocht traffik with strangers; 2. thay sal exclude frae thair cumpanie al papists; 3. thay sal give thair eldest sonnys in pledge of good ordour; Huntlie to the King, the uther tuaye to the Erle of Mortoun: Fourtlye, letters ar directit to charge thame al three to subscribe the said band, augmentit in maner abone specifiet, and to find cawtions subscrivand as said is;

 and the same thaireftir fuld be reportit heir, and registrat be William

Wealie, wreater of the saidis obligationis and charges; for Jhon Androwe wreatis al the rest, except the missives direct be David Moyfes: Fyftlie, letters ar direct to charge al thame that ar wnder fead to subscribe ane band of assurance, and ane separat band send to ilkane of thame to be subscrivit, being xvj or xvij in numer: Saxtlie, missives ar send to al the ministers, that thai suld travel to perfyt the said absolu- tion, and to reconcill the diffensions foirsaidis; as also to my Lord and Ladie Huntlie, for hir applying to our religion, and for purging thair houe of al suspect papistis.

This far touching the effairis in the northe:—as to the planting of the kirkis, Edinburgh and St Androis, (quherof your L. is inquisitive in bayth your billis,) Patrik Murray affuris me that the King is obstinat to exclude the four Ministeris frae Edinburgh, albeit the halie sifteris hes offerit three hundryth crownis to retene thame. As to St Androis, Mr David Blak wilbe lykwaies debarrit thairfrae presentlie, bot Mr Robert Wallace nocht yet, wntil ane minister be gottin for that citie, and thaireftir he will be remoivit. The commissionars thairanent suld meit his M. other in Lithcowe or Edinburgh, the 2d of June. And quhan this billines is effectuat, than the universitie is to be vifitit and purgit. I schewe his M. secretlie that clause of your bill anent Mr Andro Melvil: his M. anfuert, he suld give ample commiffion to weil chofin commiffionars for that effect; and that your L. and utheris weil myndit to quyetnes, in the meane tyme fould doe weil to trye faltis, and forme ane dittaye.

Anent utheris newis, I knawe nae notable thing. The lait Inglis ambassadour can not obtene the deliverie of Sessuird and Balcleuche, and thairfore appeirit crabit at the beginning, but is satlit senfyne, content with sum schape of excuise. The report that the King of France with his domestikis fuld bene maffacrit at the marriage of his sifter, decayis and is difcredite, becaufe nae advertisment cumis frae Ingland thairanent. Mr Thomas Hamiltone is contractit and proclamit with Colintons dochter, quha remainis with Mr Thomas Craigs wyf; the tocher bruitit 9000 merkis. Balquhane is wardit in the castel of Edinburgh, at the perfuit of his brother Mr William. The Erle of Huntlie fend ane gentil man heir within thir tuae dayes, with nae uther commiffion bot letteris of vifitation to the King and Quene, and fum memorials to uthers. His Lordship is fumquhat miscontent with that article of the kirk, that stayes him frae making vantage of his vaffals, and that astrictis him to freindschip with his nychtbouris, bot the King wil put forward baythe thais pointis, for his L. awin weil. Patrik Murray wil vifeit your L. in his way, and schawe yowe his peices. The Seffion is populus bot in final caufis. The Quene past to Seaton the penult of Maij in ane litter, nochtwithftanding the gryt rane; and is to pas hir tyme be progrefe in the Bafs and utheris the lyk places. The King stayit that day for the rane, bot on the morne read to Lithkowe, and is nocht to returne heir fchortlie, bot to Falcland. It is thocht good that your L. vifeit him thair; for freindis millykis your lang abfence frae court, fum fufpecting your miscontentment thairof, and utheris difparing of your helthe, inter aulicos vulturios prædæ inhiantes. God preferve your L. At Edinburgh, the first of June 1597. Be your L. faythful fervitour,

MR HERCULES ROLLOK.

MOYSIE'S MEMOIRS.

Vpone Weddnifday the tuentie fext day of Februar the yeir of God I^m V^c thrie fcoir fevintaine yeiris, the erle of Ergyle come to Strivilinge, and being admitted to the Kingis Majesteis prefence, wes fa had and acceptit as theare wes ane chalmer appoynted for him in the caftell.

Vpone the laft day of the faid monethe, the erle of Atholl come to Sterling, and immediatlie his Majestie condifcendit to wreyt to the nobilletie to conueine at Striuiling the tent of Marche, &c.

Vpone the aucht day of Marche the yeir of God I^m V^c thriefcor fevintaine yeiris, King James the fext of this realme, being of the aidge of tuelffe yeiris, conuenit certane noble men of this realme in the caftell of Striuiling; quhilkis wer Johne erle of Athole, Coline erle of Ergyle, Johne erle of Montroife, the L. Leivingftoune, lord Maxwell, and dyverfe vtheris great men of this realme. At the quhilk conuentioun James erle of Mortoun, regent to the King, wes defyrit be his hienes to be alfo prefent, becaufe the maiter quiche the King had then in handis concernit him: Yit the erle of Mortoun on the ane pairt wes willing to have fatiffeid the Kingis defyre in that behalfe; bot on the vther pairt, calling to remembrance the particular wes betuix him and the erle of Ergyle, thocht he could not guidlie pas to the faid conuention, bot sent his awin speciall freind Archbald erle of Angus thearunto, and in his companie Johne lord Glamis, chaunceller, Johne lord Hereis, and William lord Ruthuen, thesaurer, as commiffioneris for him, quho wer thankfullie reffavit be the king. Finallie, tyme and place being appoynted, the counsell fat, and the faid Johne lord Glames wes ordeanit be the king [to demand] at evrie great man theareat his woit tutching the depriatioun of the faid erle of Mortoun of the regiment of the realme : it wes thocht expedient that he fould be depriued, and sua he wes depriued be the mouthes of the moift pairt of the woiteris.

Vpone the tent day of the faid monethe and yeir, being the first day of the faid conuention, the Kingis Majestie, for avoyding of grudge and diffensiou amangis his nobiletie, be advyse of his faid counsell acceptit the regiment of his realme vpone his awin perfone, hovbeet he knew it wold be trubelfum to him.

Vpone the tuelt day of the famyn monethe of Marche, be found of trumpet and heraldis, publicatioun wes maid be opin proclamatioun at the mercat croce of Edinburghe of the Kingis acceptatioun of the gouernament of his owin realme vpone his perfone. And the erle of Mortoun, being for the tyme within the burghe of Edinburgh, come in propper perfone to the mercat croce therof, quhaire he, in presence of the haill peopill being therat, efter the found of a trumpet, and befor they began to publeifche the faid proclamatioun, in honest termes and gentle maner willinglie dimittit his auctoritie and regiment in the Kingis faouris, and promittit faithfull obedience and seruice to him in all tymes comming, lykas his hienes had the full proufe theirot in tymes past.

Vpone the xiiij of the faid monethe, the erle of Mortoun past out of Edinburgh to Dalkeithe, accompanied with fyve hundrethe horsmen or theirby, quhairot the moift pairt wes Merfemen.

Vpone the xv day of the said monethe of Marche and yeir foirfaid, the saidis Johne lord Glamis, William lord Ruthuen, and Johne lord Hereis, as commiffioneris wes sent be the King and his counfell to the erle of Mortoune, defyring him that he wald rander the castell of Edinburgh, fua that his hichnes nicht appoynt fick keiperis and caiptanis for keiping his persone as it pleased him. The irenis of the counyieous wes defyrit, with tene thovsand pundis money; for performance of the quhilk defyre the saidis commiffioneris brocht ane difcharge wrytten vpon parchment, fubfcribit with the King and his haill counfell, to the said erle Mortoun, difchairging him of all thingis and intromiffionis that nicht be layd to his charge fen his entrie in the regiment, quhilk wes vpon the xx [xxv] day of November I^m V^c lxxij yeiris. The said erle of Mortoun, thinking this difcharge fumquhat fclender for his releife, be reflone of the Kingis minoretie, willed the famyn to be ratefeid be his Majestie in the nixt parliament that fould happin to be haldin, as also at his perfyte aidge of tuentie ane yeiris. Always gif the King wer myndfull presentlie to have the said castell, the said erle Mortoun defyrit that fum neutrall men fould be keiperis, and namit the erle Buchane, Patrik lord Lyndfay, William lord Ruthuen, or the laird of Lochleavin; fua that he nicht have affurance of releife. The irenis of the counyieous wes delyverit without forder delay.

Vpone the xvj day of the famyn monethe, the saidis commiffioneris returnit to the Kingis Majestie, and befor theare departing commandit the bailyeis of Edinburgh to keip fraite watche at all the pairtes of the toune, to the effect that no moir wictuall fould have paffadge to come to the castell for furnifching therof in the meane tyme, quhill the King maid thame forder advertifment.

Vpone the xvij day of the said monethe, for obedience of this charge, [the bailyeis] tuik the burding vpon thame felffes, thaire proveft being captane of the said castell, and namit George Douglas of Parkhead, bastard brother to the said erle of Mortoun, and thearthrow partiall in obedience of the said charge, and set ane number of men at dyvers pairtes of the said toun, for stopping of wiueris to enter to the said castell. And at the west poirt, vpon the samyn day about fyve houris at evin, the toun watche, perceaving ane or twa calliueris to be caried in to the said castell, stoppit thame at the fute of the castell wynd; and certane of the castalianis perceaving this maiter come furthe of the said castell, to the number of xvj personis or theirby, and perforce wold had the said calliuer with thame. The tounes men resistig conforme to thair derectioun, the castell men be schotis of hagbutis and pistoletis flew thrie tounsmen, and hurt fyve or sex; and sum of them also hurt, and one flaine, and sua returnit into the castell withoute forder. The tounsmen being inraidgit at that iniurie reffavit, maid certane tranches that same nicht before Patrik Eggeris houfe for incloising of the castell.

Vpone the same day, David erle of Crafurde, and the said Johne lord Glames, chaunceller, being in Striuling with the King, and ane deadly fead and inimetie standing betuix thame vnreconciled, forgathred together within the said toun foiranent the ladie Maris ludging, betuix fyve and sex houris at evin. Efter the maisteris had past vtheris without ony offer of iniurie, twa of thair seruandis fell in contentioun immediatly thereafter; the one being command vp the streit, and the vther going doun, and without forder schot pistoletis on ather fydis at tother; and therwith the said lord Glamis wes schot throche the head, teane thearefter to his ludging, and immediatlie died. The erle of Crafurde wes teane and put in the castell of Striuling: four or fyve of his seruandis hurt, and the remnant escapit. Theare wes also some of the chancelleris men hurt.

Vpone the xix day of the said monethe, Andro. erle of Rothes, the said lord Hereis, William lord Ruthuen come out of Sterling as commissioneris for the King, first to Edinburgh, and nixt to Dalkeithe quheare the erle of Mortoun wes, and yit as of befoir desyrit the castell of Edinburgh to be randerit to the King. The erle Mortoune delayed to the xxv of the said monethe, and then promitted that the samyn fould be givin over without forder delay, conforme to the Kingis desyre.

Vpone the said xxv day of the sameyn monethe, the said lord Ruthuen, and Alexander Hay directoure of the chancellerie, wes direct out of Sterling from the King, to reffave inuentour of the Kingis jovelis and munitioun being within the said castell of Edinburgh: Patrik lord Lyndfay wes ordeanit to concur with thame, and sie ane iust inenture.

Vpone the first day of Apryle 1578, ane iust inenture being maid compleit and endit, of all the Kingis jovellis, his motheris cleithing, tapistrie, munitioun and vtheris, being within the said castell of Edinburgh, the personis haldin culpable of the slauchter of the Edinburgh men wes put out of the said castell, at the postum yet therof, and sufferit to depairte withoute ony persuite, at ane eternoune or therby; and therefter the said castell wes randerit be George Douglas of Perthead, captane therof, to Johne Cunynghame of Drumquhafell, and [James] Settoun of Touche, commissiouneris direct from the King to reffave the same, and to keip it till the comming of Alexander Erkyne of Gogar, maister of Mar, captane therof appoynted be his hienes, at sex houris at ewin or therby; and certane great artailyearie schot at thair furthecomming.

Vpone the same day, theare wes ane perliament proclamit to be haldin the tent of Julij nixt to come.

At this tyme it wes concludit be the nobiletie, that the King fould cheife counfelleris ordinar and extraordinar to him selfe. The names of the ordinaris wer thir; Coline erle of Ergyle, Johne erle of Atholl, Johne erle of Montroise, George erle of Kaithnes, Patrik lord Lyndfay, and the lord Hereis, quhilkis wer for the temporall estait; Alexander Erkyne of Gogar maister of Mar, in absence of William maister of Merfchell, the commendatour of Deir his brother, Robert bischop of Caithnes, and Mark commendatour of Nevbottle for the spirituall estaite; together with William lord Ruthuen, thesaurer, Robert commendatour of Dumfermling, secretar, Mr George Buchannane, keiper of the priuie seall, fir William Murray of Tullibardin knicht, controller, and Mr James M^cGill of Rankillour nether, clerk of register. Certane vtheris lordis wer appoynted to be extraordinar, quhen they wer present to be vpon the counsell, or quhen his hienes sent for thame: thir wer chofin quhill the said tent day of Julij. At the same tyme it wes also ordeanit, that na signaturis of confirmatioun, donatioun, giftes, conductis, respectis nor remissionis fould pas the sealis, without the samyn wer subscribed be the King and sex of the saidis ordinare counsellers, the chaunceller always being ane, vtherways they fould tak no effect. At the same tyme Johne erle of Atholl wes maid chancellor of Scotland.

Vpon the nynt day of the said monethe of Apryle, Johne erle of Atholl, chancellor, the erle of Montroise, the erle of Eglington, the lord Lyndsay, lord Hereis, the bischop of Cathnes, and the remnant of the Kingis counsell come to Edinburgh, and satt in the tolbuthe therof vpon all maiteris concerning the Kingis Majestie, and his priuie counsell: theare intentioun wes to provyde the furtie of his royall persone, and in the meanetyme to tak sick ordour for quyetnes of the countrie as wes requisit.

Vpon the ellevent day of the said monethe, they sent furthe ane proclamatioun towardis the threfching furthe of the haill cornis of the countrie, quhilk wes mekill commendit be the commone pepill, be reffone of the great derthe and skairtie of wictuall for the tyme; into the quhilk proclamatioun theare wes commendable statutes comprehendit: as also, hafing respect to the staite of the countrie, they maid sick statutis and ordinances as wer for the quyetnes of the pepill, to theare great praife.

Vpone the xxvi day of the said monethe, the erle of Mar, being of aidge xvj yeir old, and hafing conceavit ane grudge of befoir that Alexander Erkyne of Gogar wes chofen keiper to the King, and he misknawin to be principall, he, with the abbotis of Dryburghe and Cambuskennethe, and certane vtheris his freindis, enterit within the castell of Sterling, and mannit the waponis being thearin, and war maisteris of the plaice, and pat furthe the erle of Ergyle, quho wes thearin and ordeanit be the lordis of priuie counsell to auait vpon the King; sum wes hurt, and the maister of Maris eldest sone, being ane young sbringell, deceassit for displeasour. Quhilk discorde efter the lordis of priuie counsell knew, being in Edinburgh for the tyme, they, vpon the xxviij day of the said monethe, past furthe of Edinburgh to Sterling, quheare they wer ressavit baithe within the toun and plaice, and wreyt for sum of thair freindis to meit thame theare in substantius maner.

In this meanetyme the erle of Mortoun wes in Lochlewin, and the erle of Angus in Dalkeithe, and vpon ane missive sent to the erle of Angus be the King, desyring him to come to Sterling, he conuenit his hail freindis, and went forduard to Linlithgow; and vpon the vther pairt the erle of Mortoun conuenit his hail freindis, to quhat purpos it wes vncertane. The toun of Edinburgh heiring this, suspecting sum evill purposse to have been devyfit, they reasit ane band of men of wear, to the number of a hundrethe, and sent thame to Sterling for the preseruatioun of the King. Thir men of wear wer not sufferit to enter theare, bot remanit in Falkirk; and vpon the sevint day of Maij, come with the lordis of counfall to Edinburgh, and the Maister of Mar come with thame, and ressavit the keiping of the castell of Edinburgh that nicht.

At this tyme it wes concludit be the King in Sterling, that reconciliatioun of the grudge and inimeticie wes betuix the erles of Mortoun [Atholl] and Ergyle, fould be maid in Edinburgh; and to that effect ther wer sex noble men chofen for ather of the pairteis, quhilkis conuenit in Edinburgh vpone the elleuint day of Maij 1578 yeiris.

Alfo at the fame tyme, the erle of Mar and the maifter of Mar committed thame felfes to vnderly the fentence and judgement of sex noble men, tuitching the reconfiliatioun of the former controuerfie, quhairvpone fum reffonable conditionis wer concludit vpone, to the ftay of forder inconuenie[nce]: quhilkis war in fpeciall, that the erle of Mar fould be principall keiper of the King and the caftle of Sterling, and that the maifter fould come to Edinburgh and be captane theare, and ftay to the Kingis comming theareto.

The lordis that wer chofin to pacifie the foirfaid inimetie ftanding betuix the foirfaidis erles of Mortoun, and Ergyle, and Atholl, efter reffoning thearant be the fpace of echt days, could not condifcend vpone the headis and artickelis givin in be the faidis erles to thame: Quhairthrow the Kingis Majeftie wes movit to fend for thame to Sterling, to vnderftand the motioun of thair delay; and vpone the xix day of Maij, at command of his Majefties letter, they red out of Edinburgh to Sterling. At this tyme the erle of Atholl wes commandit to remeane in Edinburgh, and the erle of Mortoun in Dalkeithe.

Vpone the xxij day of the faid monethe, the lordis commiffionaris returnit to Edinburgh, and brocht with thame the erle of Ergyle, quho, for obedience of the Kingis Majefties will and ordinance devyfit in Sterling, vpone the morne with the erle of Atholl and the commiffiounaris pafst to Craigmiller, quhair the erle of Mortoun met thame: And efter falutatioun, and reconfiliatioun of theare inimitie, they red altogether to Dalkeithe, quhair they dynit, and remeanit quhill fevin houris at evin. And vpone the xxviiij, the erle of Mortoun and ather of thame red be thair owin companeis all to Sterling, quhaire the erle of Mortoun wes reffavit the fame night within the caftle thairof, and lay and eat continuallie thearin during his remeaning thairin, hafand more fami-liaretie with the Kingis Majestie then the erles of Ergyle, Atholl, Montroife or ony vtheris of thair factioun ; hovbeet they had tuyse in the day acces to the counsell within the castle.

Vpone the secound day of Junij, the men of wear teane vp be the toun of Edinburgh be found of trumpet in the Kingis name wer discharged. At this tyme there wes ane conuentioun ordeanit to be in Sterling, the tent day of the said monethe, at the quhilk the nobiletie wes wreyttin for to be present, for redressing of all effearis of the realme ; as also the commissiouneris of burrowis wreyttin for to that effect.

At this conuentioun, the erle Mortoun remaining continually within the castle of Sterling nycht and day, accompanied with a guid number of his freindis, enterit in sick familiaritie with the Kingis Majestie and his houshold, that he obteanit all maiteris ordourit at his desyre, and speciallie be moyoune of certane commissiouneris of burrowis and vtheris that wer vpone the counsell, and had wat thairin. The parliament ordeanit to be haldin at Edinburgh the tent day of Julij nixt, wes ordeanit, efter fensing of the samyn, to be transported to Sterling, quhare the King, be reffone of his minoretie and inhabiletie to trauell, wes thocht guid be the moift pairt of woitaris to remeane : and sua the erle of Mortonis purpois tuik effect, without respect to the earnest desyre and will of the saidis erles of Ergyle, Atholle, Montroife and vtheris of that factioun, quhilk wes that the parliament sould be in Edinburgh, and the King transportit therto.

Vpone the echt day of Julij, the erles of Ergyle, Atholl and Montroife come to Edinburgh, and vpone the tent day of Julij, caufit fense the parliament within the tolbuthe their of.

Vpone the thretteine day of the said monethe of Julij 1578, Patrik lord Lyndfay wes direct from the saidis lordis at Edinburgh to Sterling to the King, with certane artickelis, bearing, That feing it pleased the Kingis Majestie, with advyse of his counsell conuenit at the conuen-tioun afoirsaid, to have the said parliament haldin at Sterling, they desyrit that the samyn fould be fenfit and haldin within the tolbuthe therof, sua that all noblemen and vtheris hafing woit mycht have frie acces therto; and they being informit that the ladie Maris ludging, and vtheris ludgingis within the said toun of Sterling, wes forteseid be the freindis and allisteris of the erle of Mortoun and Mar, they alledgit that they could have no frie acces to the said parliament, nor remaine within the said toun for danger of ther lyfes.

It wes ansuerit be the King to the saides artickelis, that thair wes no plaice moir meit for halding the said parliament nor the great hall of Sterling, the present estaite being confidderit, [feing] he wes yit of tender yeiris, and had many vnfreindis, the said tolbuthe of Sterling being ruinus, and ane dengerus place to commit himselff in hazard; and as he thocht it meit, sua luikit they wold yeild to the same, and sua douttit not bot they wald be cairfull of his preferuatioun, and therfoir cannot alter the plaice appoynted. This is not meanit to induce a preparatiue heirestit that our parliamentis salbe haldin in castellis, bot for thir causses and many vtheris, he wes movit presentlie thearevnto. All noble men and vtheris hafing woit in parliament shall have frie acces vnto his hienes: Theare salbe no fortificatioun of the toun or vther pairtes be maid, except that onlie ane number of tounsmen be appoynted for ane gaird, for keiping pace and quyetnes during the continuance of the said parliament: sua that they may be affurit, his Majestie wilbe moift cairfull that baithe they, the nobiletie, and all vtheris resoirting to parliament salbe in fuertie, vnder his saistie and protectioun. The ladie Maris house salbe no moir hurtfull now nor in tymes past, and sa fall they find his Majestie als cairfull of thaire suiretie as of his awin. It is ansuerit to the secund concerning his Majesties proclamatioun, Treulie gif they had beine with his grace, he wold have beine werie glad of thaire advyses, bot lest the simple peopill fould be suddendlie movit to give credit, he could doe no les, with advyse of his counsell and nobiletie present, nor derect out the same in sick forme as it is; quhilk he doubtis not they lyk weill anuiche of, seing it is onlie meanit of inuius personis, reaseris of brutes tending to seditioun, quhom his grace is affurit they mislyk als weill as he, as theare comming to his Majestie will the better testefie. To the last concerning the iovelis, his hienes wreyt to the maister of Mar of befoir, schewand that he wes desyrus to fie thame, that he mycht vse fa mony for his persone at his parliament as fould be thocht guid, and gif he retein it thame sufficient discharge to be maid in parliament; bot he thocht strainge that sick discharge fould be focht befoir secuiretie could be fund, the act not being returnit yit to be registrat: And thairfoir, in refusall his hienes thinkis him selff evill handlit.

Vpone the xv [xxv] day of Julij 1578, the said parliament wes sent in the great hall of the castle of Sterling, and thairefter proclamation wes maid at the mercat croce of Sterling, commanding all estaites hasing voit to compeir within the hall of the said castle vpon the morne, quhaire they fould have frie acces to enter and voit according to the accustomed ordour. At this tyme their come at command of the Kingis letter certan men weill bodin in airmes, furthe of the burrowis of Edinburgh, Glasgou, Dundie and Perth, to keip gairdhouse in the toun of Sterling during the tyme of the parliament, sua that incaice ony infurrectioun fould bein, they fould stay the same. They remainit quhill the xxvj day of the said monethe. Vpone the same day, being the xv day of Julij, the erle of Montroife wes directit commissiouner from the lordis at Edinburgh to Sterling.

Vpone the xvj day of the same monethe, the King cled in his rob royall, accompanied with the erles of Angus quho buir the croune, the erle of Lennox the septer, and the erle of Mar the fuord of honour, come on fute out of his owin chalmer to the said great hall, and sat upone his throne as vsè is. His Majesteis rob royall wes borne vp be the erles of Mortoun, Eglintoun, Glencairne, Errole, Bothuell, Buchane, and lordis Boyde, Yester, Ruthuen, Oliphant, Drummond, and dyverse vtheris theare present. Befoir onie thing wes donne in parliament, the said erle of Montroise protestit that quhatsoever fould be then donne fould nawayis be preiudiciall to him and the remnant lordis at Edinburgh, nor tak effect, in respect it wes haldin within a castell, and not ane patent tolbuthe, quhair frie acces mycht be had to all the leidges of the realme for performance of thaire adois. The King stuid up, and pronuncit and declaired be his awin mouthe in judgement, the plaice to be moift fuire for his owin perfoun ; and, feing it wes his will that the parliament fould be haldin theare, the plaice wes conuenient, and nather they, nor vtheris hafing woit, wes stoppit from comming thearinto according to the forme and ordour vfit of befoir.

They proceidit to the cheifing first of the lordis of artickelis, quhilkis wer the erle of Mortoun suppleing the chancellaris rounge, the erles of Angus, Lennox, Buchane, Eglintoun ; the lordis Ruthuen, Boyd, and Ochiltree ; the bifchopis of St Androis, Aberdein, Glasgou, Murray ; abbotis Drybruche, Cambuskynnethe, Culros, Glenluce ; commissiонерis of Edinburgh, Perth, Dundie, Sterling, Glasgou, Air, and Irwing. No moir donne that day.

Vpone the xvij day of the said monethe, the erle of Montrois and lord Lyndsay wes chairged be the Kingis letter to keip thair ludgingis in Sterling.

Vpone the xvij day, thair wes ane new counfell chosen to the King, quhilkis wer the erle Mortoun, Ergyle, Eglintoun, Rother, Glencairne, Buchane, Lennox ; the lordis Boyd, Cathkeart, and Ochiltree ; the abbottis of Cambuskynnethe and Dryburghe, beydes the ordinar officiaris.

Vpone the xx day of Julij, the erle of Montroise brak waird, and come out of Sterling ; with ane man and him felff past hame quyettlie ; therefter with all poffible diligence returnit to Edinburgh, quheare the erles of Ergyle and Athole wes that fame day agaitwaird to return to thair awin duellingis. Notwithftanding he folowit thame with all expeditioun, and caufit thame returne againe to Edinburgh; quheare efter lang confulting amangis thamefelfes and thaire affifteris, they leavit bandis of men of wear, to fecht for the libertie of the King, deteanit as they faid captiue; as alſua directit thaire poſtis away to conueine thaire hail freindis to that effect.

Vpone the xxiiij day of the faid monethe, the lord Lyndſay wes releuit out of his waird in Sterling, and wardit within the boundis of Fyffe.

Vpone the xxvij day, there was ane proclamatioun direct furthe from the King and publiſchit at the croce, chairging the proveſt and bayleis that they ſufferit no men of wear to be teane vp, vnder the paine of treafoun. Thir chairges wer diffobeyit and lichtlie regairdit. The toun of Edinburgh ſent theare excuſe to the King, ſaying that the faidis lordis war ſa mony within thair toun, that they durſt not reſiſt thame without hazard of thair lyfes, and tinfell of thair guides. At this tyme the King, the erle of Mortoun, and vtheris being about his Maieſtie, forſeing the denger that mycht folow gif the lordis at Edinburgh war not reſiſted, appoynted certane captanis for leaſing of four bandis of men of wear on fute and twa on horſſe; and directit out his hienes proclamatioun and miſſiues, for conuening the hail forces they mycht mak aganis the tent of Auguſt nixt.

Vpone the xxviiij day of Julij, captane Daid Homes drummer being giangand throw the toun of Edinburgh, to leivey men vnder his charge in the Kingis name, the drum wes brokin, and the drummer evill dung be ſum of the lordis foloweris.

In this meane tyme the lordis within Edinburgh wer ane great number, aſſiſted be the Humes and Kerris; they leiveyit thrie hundrethe horſmen, vnder the chairge of Alexander Home of Manderſtoun.

Theare wes vnder the charge of young Ceffuirde fiftie, vnder my lord Settonis charge fiftie, my lord Ergyle, Atholl, Montroife, had evrie one of thame als mony vpon theare owin charges, by thair houfhold and freindis, and four hundrethe futmen, men of wear. At this tyme the Kingis officiaris wes stayed to mak thair proclamatioun, and the famyn rest fra thame at Edinburgh.

At this tyme Mr Bowis, ambaffadour resident heir for the Queine of Ingland, feing maiteris pas to great vnquyetnes gif the great raidge had not beine tymusly preuented, defyrit to trauell betuix the King and the lordis, to pacifie thingis in fa far as he micht, and to that effect reffavit commiffioun of the lordis at Edinburgh, to procure a licence at the Kingis handis, to certane lordis quhilkis had brokin waird to trauell in the maiter, and to absteane on baithe fydis fra all inuafion or perfeving of vtheris. He pafte to Sterling vpon the first of Aguft; and efter proponing of his commiffioun to the King and counfell, his defyre wes granted. In this meanetyme the erle of Argyles forces wer lyand at Dumbartane, and estimat to xxvj hundrethe hieland men; the erle of Atholis forces estimat to ane thovfand lyand at Carmilloche.

Vpon the tuelt day of Aguft, the saidis lordis merchit out of Edinburgh, and come forduard to Falkirk; they wer estimat to xv^c men. The hieland men reafed theare campis that nycht, and met theare maifter at the Falkirk. Theare come to thame vpon the morne the maifter of Caffilis and Bargeany, with four hundrethe horfmen weill arrayit; they wer purpofit to fecht for the libertie of the King or elis to die; thair haill number wes estimat to ten thovfand men or therby.

Vpon the fame day Mr Bowis come out of the Falkirk to Sterling from the lordis with certane artickelis, and vpon the morne returnit back with ane anfuer; and vpon the fame day, the erle of Angus heiring tell of the lordis coming to Falkirk pafte furthe with iij^c horf-men, and red within ane halfe myle to the Falkirk, quhaire certane of his aduersaris come out, and maid a litle pricking without skeathe. Theare wes ane James Johnstoun feruitour to the maister of Glamis, and Willie Taite in Ceffurde burne, quho provoikit the said James to brek ane speare for his luifes saik. They ran together; the said Willie wes strickin to the grund and died, the vther throw the thie and litle war. Thus the ambassadour, hasing reffavit anser from the King, returnit the xij day of Agust to the lordis, in the morning, promissing to returne with all expeditioun to schew how the lordis fould be content with the artickelis, in the meanetye to await his comming. The hail forces within the toun merchit furthe and mustourit at Bannokburne, thinking they fould fecht gif the artickelis war not teane in guid pairt. They remanit on the feildis for thrie hours, and then the ambassadour returnit, and willed on of the artickelis to be mendit, quhairinto the King and his consell condiscendit; and so it wes aggreet vpon the headis efter foloving.

• James be the graice of God King of Scotis, to all and fundrie to quhaïs handis and knawledge thir letters fall come, greating. • First, that all hostiletie fall without ony delay cease, and all forces dissoluit except sum bandis of horsmen alreadie reffavit vpon our chairges, quhilkis bandis we will salbe only employit for the quyetnes of our borders or vtheris our effairis, and not aganis the lordis at Linlithgow and thair affisteris in this lait actioun.

‘ Forasmikle as we vnderstand and ar fuirlie perfuadit, that the lordis at Edinburgh for the love and tender affectioun they buir to ws tuik armes, we accept and allowes the famyn fen the tent day of Junij laft as guid seruice, and all the pairteis and adherentis in the fame acceptit be ws as guid seruandis and subiectis.

‘ We will also that our rycht treast coofing and counsellour the erle of Ergyle fall remaine with our counfall, and remain within our castle of Sterling, with lyk number as ony vther noble man is ludgit therin, faifing the erle of Mar that hes the custodie therof; and the said erle of Ergyle fall have the lyk acese vnto ws and oure eare as ony vther noble man.

‘ We will lykwayis that the erle of Montroife and the lord Lyndfay falbe addit to our counfell, as twa of the thrie appoynted be our lait act of parliament, and the thrid to be nominat quhen we think tyme.

‘ We will call vnto ws acht noble men, with advyse of our derrest sifter and coufinge the Queine of England, and be thair guid assistance will tak ordour, God willing, betuix and the first day of Maij nixto-come, for reconfiliatioun of oure nobiletie, to be vnited for all actiounis quhatsoever fallin out amangis thame be occasioun of thir trubles, and finall ending of the famyn.

‘ We will that the keiperis of our castellis of Edinburgh and Dumbar-tan fall reteine the keeping and custodie of the famyn, vntill we, with advyse of the saidis acht noblemen, give ordour in the cause rememberit, fa as the famyn may be maid befor the first day of Maij nixto-come at fordest.

‘ Our will and pleasour is that all noblemen, barronis, gentilmen and subiectis comming to ws to doe our deutifull seruices and guid offices falbe admitted to our presence and frie speiche, as to guid subiectis apperteanis.

‘ Our will and pleasour is also that the laird of Drumquhafill falbe free from his horning, to the effect he may mak his comptis and thairefter returne to his chaarge.

Vpone the xiiij day of August 1578, the erles of Ergyle, Atholl, Montroise returnit to Edinburgh with thair haill forces except the hie-land men, quha past hame to thair awin countrie. And vpon the six day of the samyn monethe, the saidis lordis depairtit hame from Edinburgh to thaire awin houffes, quhair they consulted, and met at dyverse tymes at Dunkeld and Kincardin.

At this tyme the lairdis of Ceffurd and Coldinknowis, wardanis for the middel merchies, war sent for be the King, for taking ordour with the bordouris. The erle Mortoun and the laird of Coldinknowis falling out in heich termes in Sterling, the laird of Coldinknowis tuik his leive quyetlie of the King, and come away suddanlie hame : the laird of Ceffurd stayed sum sex or sevin dayis, and thereafter returnit hame efter the reseat of his directioun.

Alfua at this tyme ane captane Strathauquhane hafing reffavit directioun of the King and his counfall to levey certane men of wear to pas in Flanders, notwithstanding they wer vnderstood to be listid at command of the erle of Mortoun, and that commissioun granted to cullour the maiter, for they meant to man the stepils of Edinburgh and thair-with bring the toun vnder subiectioun. In this meanetyme the erle of Atholl past in Fyffe. And in the toun of Couper conuenit to spaik with him Adame Gordoun of Achindoun brother to the erle of Huntlie, M^cKuntosche, David erle of Crafurd; fir James Balfure and certane of the barronis of Fyfe : and efter a litle commouning with the said erle of Atholl, the saidis personis and vtheris the barronis of Fyffe, to quhas plaices he thereafter red, condifendit to his defyre, and fubferyvit ane band prefentit be him. Thus the faid erle of Atholl maid ane great number in Fyffe of his factioun.

Vpone the ellivint day of September, theare wes a proclamatioun maid at the mercat croce of Edinburgh, tuitching the conyie of the xxx, xx, x, and v fhilling peicefe ; the xxx f. peice wes ordeanit to give xxxij f. viij d. and the reft according therto, and to be brocht in to the counyiehouf betuix and the firft of Merche nixtocome. Vpone the xvij day of Januar 1580, the erle of Mortoun wes conuoved from Edinburgh caſtle to Dumbartane caſtle, with the erle of Glencairne, the lord Seattoun, Robert Steuart fewar of Orknay, the tutour of Caffilis, Bargany, Coldinknowis, Alexander Home of Manderftoun and twa hundrethe hagbutteris of Edinburgh. The nicht befoir, certane perfonis cryed aloud to the caſtle, that gif the captane fufferit him not to come furthe, the erle of Angus wald reuenge the quarrell vpon him. At quhilk tyme certane men of Edinburgh attendit the King baith the nicht and day. At quhilk tyme the erle of Angus geve up kyndnes with the erle of Lennox.

Vpone the fame day Mr Randolphe, ambaffadour fra the Quene of England, come, and vpon the morne gat prefence. The faid ambaffadouris petitionis wer, firſt, that the erle of Lennox ſould be removit of the cuntrie, becauſe, as wes evident be ane letter produced from the biſhop of Roſe, he had traffick with the papiftis, and wes ſent for ane intelligence to the execution of the counfell of Trent. [Secundlie,] he defyrit that the erle of Mortoun ſould be put to tryell, and that Mr Archbald Douglas mycht have libertie to come home to fuffer the tryell of ane affyſe [without tortour], and that fir James Balfour, quho wes returnit to Scotland, mycht be teane, layd handis on and tryed as culpable of the murthour of his father. Thir wer the ſpeciall headis. Efter proponing quhair of he threattned wear, incaice he fulfilled not the effect of his petitionis. Lykas thair wes ane great number of men of wear quho come to Beruick, and geve occaſioun to the King and counfall to fear the inſchewing of wear vpon the realme ; and chaired all men betuix ſextie and ſexteine, to be radie to meit the King and his leiſtennent, at quhat tyme and quhair he ſould appoynt thame be the nixt proclamatioun, and the hail ſchirefdomes of the realme.

The anfueris to the ambaffadouris petitionis war thir : Tuitching the erle of Lennox and his removing, he declaired that he wes his cheife kynfman, and to his knavledge not giltie of fuche crymes as wer impute, and except he wer fund giltie efter tryell, he could not remove him vpone the ficht of the copie of ane letter. Nixt, the erle of Mortoun can not be put to a tryell quhill Mr Archbaldis tryell first proceid, be reffoune he wes accufit as ane actuall committer of the flaughter, and fent be the erle of Mortoun to that effect. Tuitching the tryell of the faid Mr Archibald without tortour, it is anfuerit it can not stand with the Kingis honour to enter in conditioun with his owin fubieft, fpeciallie in regaird of his cryme, quhilk can not be tried without tortour. As to fir James Balfour, it wes anfuerit that his Majestie knew not that he wes in Scotland.

Vpone the xx day of Februar, thair wes a conuentioun of the nobility and eftaites at Edinburgh, quhairat John erle of Montroife wes maid leiftennent vpone the borderis ; quhilk office he refufit to accept bot vpone fum conditionis, quhilk wes that he fould have xv^e futmen and v^e horfmen under waidges to pas with him to the borderis ; for payment quhair of thair wes ane taxatioun of xl^m pundis granted to be vp-lifted of the hail realme. He requyred the affiftance of the noble men, barronis and gentlemen duelland within his leiftennendrie.

Vpone the xxv day of Februar, the erle of Angus, prefent at the conventioun, flipped out of Edinburgh in the nicht, vpone a certane knavledge had of luif letters pafit betuix the erle of Montroife and lady Angus, quhilk buir that gif the erle of Angus war wardit, then they nicht meit with uther at thair pleafer : thir letters war thocht heirefter to be forged, as it appeared they wer indeid.

Vpone the xiiij day of Merche, George Auchinleck of Balmanno wes teane be captane James Steuart tutour of Arrane, and put to the tortour vpone certane crymes he wes accufit of, and fpeciallie of the murthour of the erle of Atholl, and fuppryng of the Abbay of Halyroud-houfe, taking of the King furth therof, and of the plot for tranfporting him to England, and of reafing of fyre in Edinburgh at four feuerall pairtes. To this he anfuerit as folowethe, in generall maner denying flatlie the accufationis. Bot ane Alexander Lavfoun, feruitour to the erle of Mortoun, moift privie to the faid erle his effearis, efter tortour wes prefentit, he confeft ane part of the confpiracie, and quhair the erles gold and money wes, together with fundrie vtheris thingis quhilkis wer not knawin of befoir.

At this tyme the erle of Angus, being fufpected to be of mynd to bring in England, and to mak defectioun from the Kingis obedience, wes charged to enter his perfone in waird be northe the watter of Spay, as alfo to rander his houfe of Tamptalloun and Douglas, quhilkis he diffo-beyit alluterlie. Theare wes fundrie vtheris of the erle of Mortounis freindis, and fpeciallie his twa fones, James pryour of Plufcardie, and Archbald Douglas of Pittindreiche, John Carmichell of that ilk, the laird of Maines [and] Perkhead charged to anfuer fuper inquirendis; quhilk charge they lykwayis diffobeyit, and fummondis of treafoun direct aganis thame. At this tyme the laird of Lochlevin being charged enterit, quho wes wairdit beyond Cromartie.

At this tyme, Mr Randolphe, remaining a guid fpace, practifing certane craftie confpiracies to the preiudice of the King and counfell, and at lenthe diffapoynted, being thocht authour of the afoirfaid confpiracie tuitching the tranfporting of the King to England, he efter this culourit excuife, threattnit prefent wear, and departed hameward fud-dandle.

Vpone the v day of Apryle, fir John Settoun, fone to the lord Settoun, wes direct ane ambaffadour from the King to the Queine of England, with a commiffioun to treat vpon the prefent occafion of peax and wear: and, within thrie dayis efter his depairting, wes ftayit at Beruick, quhilk wes thocht ane frainge noveltie, that ane frie ambaffadour, hafing neid of no pafport, fould be ftayed. Within aucht or nyne dayis, the faid fir John returnit backward from Bervick to the King.

At this tyme captane James Steuart wes maid erle of Arrane and lord Hamiltoun, freelie difponit to him be the King. And in this meanetyme, the Ingliſche forces that wer lyand vpon the frontieris wer diffoluit withoute motioun of forder wear.

Thearefter the King come to Settoun, quhair he remainit fyve or ſex dayis; and from thence to Dalkeith, quhair he concludit with his counfell to fend for the erle of Mortoun from Dumbartane to the caſtle of Edinburgh, and to byd tryell of ane inquyft. At quhilk tyme certane men, fauoureris of the erle of Mortoun, wer commandit of the toun ten myles, vnder the paine of dead.

Vpone Tyfday the therd day of Maij 1581, the erle of Montroife and captane James Steuart erle of Arrane, accompained with theare freindis and certane men of wear, come to Dumbartane, and tranſported the erle of Mortoun.

He wes put to the knawledge of ane affyſe for the ſame; the names quhair of war Coline erle of Ergyle chancellor, James erle of Glencairn, John erle of Montroife, Hew erle of Egglintoun, Andro erle of Rothes, Alexander erle of Sutherland, George lord Settoun, James lord Ogilby, John lord Maxwell, Hew lord Summerveall, James lord Innermeathe, fir John Gordoun of Lochinvar knyght, the laird of Wachtoun, the maister of Leivingstoun, fir John Learmonthe of Dearfie and the laird of Kilfythe: the said erle of Montroise wes chancellor of the assyse. The said erle of Mortoun wes conuict of airt and pairt for knavledge and conceiling of the murthour of the Kingis father, as wes cleared be fundrie instrumentis and instructionis producit befor the assyse, quhairof sum wer subscribed with his awin hand, and utheris be the handis of sick personis as wer actuallie present at the committing of the said murthour. And thearefor dome wes pronuncit, that he sould be hanged, headit, quartered and drawin.

Vpone the secund day of the said monethe of Junij, the said erle of Mortoun wes brocht to the mercat croce of Edinburgh, and theare beheadit. Being on the scaffald; he declaired that the erle of Bothuele, principall committer of the deid, come to him, and desyrit him to subscribe a band for perpetrating of the samyn. Quhilk band he refuset to subscribe, without the erle of Bothuel procurit the Queinis warrand to him therypone; and sua the erle of Bothuell, not content with his answer, come never againe to suite him to the afoirsaid purpos. Aluayis he knew of the deid, and conceilit the samyn, and therfore meritithe deathe. And forder declaired vpon his conscience, that he nevir meant any hurt or prejudice to his Majestie, and that he had aluayis behavit him selfe as his deutifull and obedient subiect, and sould bein as guid a legge as the King had in Scotland. He had great comfort that he died a cristiane, in the trew and sinceir professioun of relligioun, quhilk he cravit all the faithfull to folow, and abyde therat to the deathe. His head wes put up vpon the tolbuthe of Edinburgh, and his bodie buried heall.

All this tyme the court wes fullelie gydit be the erles of Lennox and Arrane, and quhatsoever wes doune wes focht by thame onlie. Vpone the morne, ane John Bynning feruitour to Mr Archbald Douglas, quho declaired that he wes present at the said murthour, wes hanged, headit, quarterit and drawin. Vpone the sext of Junij 1581, the said James erle of Arrane wes married vponne dame Elifabeth Steuart lady Lovit, befoir the erle of Merche his wyfe, bot diuorfit becaufe his instrument wes not guid.

Vpone the [xij] day of Februar, fir William Steuart brother to the erle of Arrane wes teane be the lord Hamiltoun at Strabrok, and carried with him to Hamiltoun, bot therefter fet to libertie at Edinburgh, and the erle of Arrane felff charged in the end of Merche to depairt furthe of the countrie, betuix and the sext of Apryle, vnder the paine of treafoun; quhilk he obeyit, and went to Irland or Kintyre; bot the lady returnit to Killeithe.

About the xvij of Apryle 1586, the archbifchope of St Androis Adamfoun wes mifvfit and ftruckin be the maifter of Lyndfey, Abbothall and vtheris, for his vndecent lyfe, and excommunicat be the miniftrie. Quhairvpone the King caufit charge the faidis perfonis, as alfo Mr Andro Melvill principall of the new colledg, Mr James Melvill and certane vtheris of the miniftrie that excommunicat the faid archbifchope, to compeir befor his Majestie and counfell to anfuer thairvpone.

About the xx day of Apryle, Hew erle of Egglintoun a comlie brave nobleman, paffand fra his awin houfe to Sterling, wes onbefet in the way and flayne be Robertland, Arkett, and certane vtheris of the furname of Cunynghame, betuix him and quhom theare ftoode deadlie feid. At this tyme Mr Archbald Douglas, quha wes banifchit for the murthour of the Kingis father, be the moyene of Randolphe the Ingliſche embaffadour, is reffavit, and brocht in, maid his awin purgatioun.

About the xxij of the faid monethe, the lordis of ſecreit counfall caufit affurance to be maid betuix the erle of Mortoun and the laird of Johnestoun, and amangis fundrie vtheris barrons of the weſt merche. At this famyn tyme, the commiffioneris of Scotland and Ingland appoynted to meit for fatling of the bordouris: the commiffioneris wer the erle Bothuell, the lord Boyd and fir James Home of Coldinknowis for Scotland; and for Ingland, the erle of Rutland, lord Riveris and Mr Randolphe embaffadour. Vpone the xxvij day of Junij 1586, proclamatioun wes maid that all the leidges ſould ryſe with xl dayis provifioun, for ordour taking with the theifes of the bordouris, under the paine, &c.

At this tyme a word wes of a confpiracie aganis the Queine of Ingland, be our Queine of Scotland. Vpone the fourt of September, the mariadge betuix Lodovick diuk of Lennox, and the only dochter of the lord Hamiltoun, wes aggreet vpon in prefence of the King, quho fubfcribit for the diuk, and the lord for his dochter, in the palace of Hamiltoun.

Vpone the xvij day of September 1586, thaire wes a conuention of the eftaites at Edinburgh, quhaire ane taxation of xv^m lib. wes granted, for fuppleing the Kingis leifetennent to giang vpon the bordouris, and the erle of Angus maid leifetennent for this effect. At this tyme the erle of Mortoun, lord Maxwell wes charged afoir the counfall, for anfuering for his kyn, freindis and brokin men. He compearit not, bot fent ane excufe that he had ane tryft with the lord Scrupe: the King offendit heirwith, wes meafit be my lord Hamiltoun.

About the beginning of November, word come that Queine mother wes teane, and conuict of treafon aganis the Queine of England; at quhilk tyme William Keathe wes direct to England to work for the Queins releif: quhair of certane word come therefter, and that ane nobleman wes come out of France for fuitting her releife. Immediatly theirefter, ane conuention of the hail nobilitey and eftaites ordeanit to be at Edinburgh, vpon the xv day of December, for directing of fum noble men ambaffadouris for the Quenis releife. It wes thocht be his Majestie that England durft not put hand in hir. At the famyn conuention Patrik maifter of Gray, abbot of Dumfermling, and fir Robert Melwill of Murdecairny knight, wer directit ambaffadouris and fent quickly away, fo as they tuik poift at Bervick. Certane infturctionis wer givin thame in wreyt, for the feiking of the Quenis releife.

At this tyme ane voluntar fubfodie wes concludit of all rank of perfonis, incaice of executioun of the Queine, to have gone vpon England, and for directing ambaffadouris to France, Spayne and Denmerk; and this to be imbrought vpon the Kingis owin miiffive letter.

About the first of Februar, thaire come a poift directit from our awn

ambaffadouris, fchaving that the executioun wes continowit, and that they had gottin ane anfuer little to thair contentment. Quhilk the King heiring of, fend with the famyn poift immediatly back ane bragging letter to the Queine of England, awovand, gif his mother war not fpaired he fould be avendged, and feik the fupport of all the princes of Europe for this effect. Quhilk letter and poift met the ambaffadouris on the way, who directit thame for delyverie of this letter to Mr Archbald Douglas, to be prefented be him to the Queine of England. The Kingis Majestie, to testefie his earnest and naturall affection to his mother, caufit pray for hir oppinly efter him felf; quhairvponne arrose a great diffenfion betuix fum of the ministrie and his Majestie, namely the ministrie of Edinburgh. Quhairvponne the King appoynted Patrik archbifchop of St Androis to teache, bot he wes preuented be Mr John Covpar minister, quho come befoir and filled the pulpit. And as the said Mr John wes beginnand the prayer, the Kingis Majestie commandit him to stay: fo as Mr John rafchit michtely vponne the pulpit, faying, 'This day fall bear witnes aganis yow in the day of the lord: woe be to ye Edinburgh, for the laft of xj plaiges falbe the worst!' And fo come down from pulpit, and the haill wyfis removit with a great clamour. And thereafter the bifchope of St Androis gead vp to the pulpit, and tacht ane fermone concerning the praying for princes, quhairat the haill peipill that wes in the kirk left wer muche movit, and thocht the Kingis defyre most reffonable. Lykas the ministeris being called befoir the King [that] efternòune, this ordour wes teane, that Mr John Covpar, Mr William Watfoun and Mr Walter Backanquill fould be difchairdgit from preaching or prayeris, till fick tyme as iniunctionis wer fet down to thame. The said Mr John wes wardit at Blacknes, and thereafter releivit, command in the Kingis will, and aggreand to his defyre.

Vponne the vj day of Februar 1586, the maifter of Gray, fir Robert Melvill and William Keathe ambaffadouris at Ingland returnit home ; quha declaired that the Queine wes in the same place schoe wes in of befoir, and that thay could have no assurance of hir lyfe ; and that ane Inglifche ambaffadour wes foloving thame, to perfuaid the King that it wes bathe for his weill and honour to have hir execute. Vpone the xv day of Februar thaire come a poift fra Ceffurde, [who] being warden reffavit word from fir John Forefter opposit warden, that the Queine wes beheadit, vpon the aucht day of that samyn monethe 1586. Be- cause the King reffavit na advertifment heiryvone him selffe, he fufpen- dit his judgement : the maiter wes increddible to him ; and thairfoir paf to his wounted pafyme to Calder, quhair he remanit ane nicht.

In the meanetyme Carie the ambaffadour come to Bervick, and de- fyred ane pafporte. Vpone the xx day of Februar, his Majestie fent Mr George Young to the embaffadour to Bervick, defyring to vnder- stand quether his mother wes execut or not, and if fche wer not to give him pafport, bot utherwayis to returne. Quho, vpon the xxiiij of the faid monethe, returnit with his anfuer, that the Queine mother wes execut : quhilk the King vnderstanding, wes in great displeafour, and went to bed without fupper ; lyk as on the morne he paf folitarlie to Dalkeithe, defyring to be folitar. The faid ambaffadour fent in ane Inglifchman captane Carvell to declaire, that [feing] his Majestie tuike the deathe of his mother fo heichlie, he mycht be hard to oppin his commiffioun befoir certane of his hienes privie counfall ; quhilk wes yeildit to, and fir Robert Melwill and the laird of Coldinknovis fent as twa of the priuie counfall, to meit the ambaffadour at Fouldeine kirk, the xiiij of Merche 1586.

Vpone the same xiiij day, the faidis ambaffadouris met with xxiiij perfonis on ather fyde. The Inglifche ambaffadour defyred that the leage and amitie betuix the twa natiounis nicht be confermit, and in- uiolablie obfervit, becaufe, fayd he, the Queine wes werie forie for taking Queine Mareis lyfe, and it wes doune by hir knavledge, and fen fua it wes, willed the King to fuit quhat fatiffactioun he pleased, and it fould be granted.

It wes anfuert be the faidis commiffioneris, that gif the faid ambaffadour wald affirme in his miftris name, that that murthour wes committed aganis hir directioun and will, the King thair maifter willed that the names of the authoris and committaris thairof wer divulgat, and manifested to his hienes ; and gif the Queine of Ingland war not hable to be reuendgit of her awin fubiectis, that his Majeftie wald hald hand, with all the force he mycht, to punifche the authoris and committeris thairof, and concur with hir and hir forces for that effect. And as for feiking fatiffactioun, they thocht that vnfeimlie that he fould fell his owin bloude, for it is the custome of Scotland, that, gif the meanest gentleman that hes his kynfman or neir freind murthored enter in tryfing with the committeris freindis, the offeris ar maid be the committeris of the deed, quhilkis ar Jeliberatlie refoluit vpon be him, his kyn and freindis. Mikle moir it is to be thocht, that ane annoynted princes being indirectlie takin away and bereft of hir lyfe, his Majeftie being hir fone, and fcho difcendit of the moift royal bloude in Europe, offeris fould be maid to his Majeftie, incaife he wald yeild to accept fatiffactioun ; quhilkis offeris ar not onlie to be confidderit be him, his nobiletie and eftaitis, bot also be the hail princes of his Majefteis bloude, als weill intereft as he. The demandis and propofitiounis of the Inglifche embaffadour wer wryttin word be word in his awin prefence, and fubfcribit be him felff, and fua thay finderit ; and they wer brocht to the King being at Crichtoun.

At this tyme the bifchopis of Glasgow, Rose and Dumblayne, quho had bein in France xx yeiris afoir, wer reftoired and rehabilitat, and letters fent to thame to come in Scotland : the bifchop of Glasgow gat ane commiffioun of ambaffadrie for his Majeftie in France. In the end of Merche 1587, ane conuentioun wes appoynted to be haldin at Edinburgh the day of Apryle, and fra that the samyn wes continowit to the tent day of Maij.

Vpone the [vj] day of Apryle 1587, the King red quickly and fud-dandly vpon my lord Maxwell and his freindis, becaufe he refufit to tak ordour with the brokin men [of] his name and freindis, bot he being forfeine efcapit. Yit the King gat ane guid reule of the moift pairt, and command to Drumfreifche, he fend John Maxwell, proveft thairof and brother to the lord Hereis, for taking of the houfe of Carleavrock; bot he wes flayne be the way be the Grahames of Ask and fundrie utheris brokin men. The samyn tyme commiffioun wes granted to the fcheref of Aire for taking of James Steuart lait chancellor, quho efcapit out of his plaice of the Newtown of Aire.

Vpone the xx day of the faid monethe of Apryle, Patrik maifter of Gray commendatour of Dumfermling wes accufit be fir William Steuart of Montoun knight, befor the King and his counfall, and fpeciallie to the confenting to the murthour of the Quenis Majestie, be his letters fent in Ingland to that effect, quhairin he thocht beft that fche fould rather priuelie nor oppinlie be teane away. As alfo he wes accufit vpon certane inftruccionis gevin to the faid fir William, quho wes bound to France with commiffioun to the bifchop of Glaſgow to be embaffadour for the King in theſe pairtis, in the quhilk inftruccionis, the maifter of Gray willed that they fould feik no help of the King of France and diuk of Gveife, except libertie of confcience fould be firft granted within Scotland. The faid maifter of Gray wes accufit vpon fundrie utheris poyntis, and he and the faid fir William wer baithe committed to waird within the caſtle of Edinburgh, quhair they wer appoynted to ſtay quhill forder tryell fould be teane. Vpone the tent day of Maij, the faidis perſonis wer transported befor the King and nobilletie, quhair the faid fir William accufit the faid maifter of Gray of the ſamyn, and many mae poyntis of treafoun, and baithe convoyed againe to the castell of Edinburgh. It wes fund be the woites of the King and counfall, that he had committed heiche treafoun aganis his Majestie, and his lyfe and leiving thairfoir to be in his Majesties handis. Bot the lord Hamiltoun, weill lykit of be his Majestie, fat doun in prefence of the counfell on his kneis, and beggit his lyfe of the King, promising that he fould be contented to be banischt quhair his Majestie pleased: Quhairunto his Majestie yeildit, and fir William Steuart fet at libertie had promeis of his Majestie of ane revaird for his guid seruice.

At this tyme great trauelis war teane be his Majestie for the reconciling of the erle of Crafurde and maister of Glamis, and at last, be the earnest intercessioun of fir John Maitland of Thirlsteane knycht secretar [these] wer teane vp; in quhois house they all, the xiiij day of the said monethe, sovpit together within Halyroudhouse.

Vpone the xv day of Maij, the King maid the banquet to all his nobilletie, at ewin in Halyroudhouse, quhair the King maid thame, efter drinking of many scolis ane to ane vther, and made thame efter supper, quho vtherwayis had beine at great fead, tak twa and twa be handis, and pas from Halyroudhouse to the mercat croce of Edinburgh, quhair the provest and bailyeis had prepared ane table and desert for his Majestie, at the quhilk theare wes great mirthe and joy, with fick ane great number of pepill as the lyk had not beine seine of befoir.

At the conuentioun the King maid ane harrang to his nobilletie and estaites, declairing, that feing he wes now come to his perfyte aidge of tuentie ane yeiris compleit, hasing mony wechtie effairis to be advyfit, thocht it best first to reconceill his nobilletie, quhairin his Majestie had teane no small trauell, and to fuche poynt as all fould tend to the plesour of God, his Majesteis standing, the weill of the countrie, and thair awin ease and tranquillitie; protesting befoir God, that he loved nothing so mikle as ane perfyte vnioun and reconciliatioun amangis his nobilletie in hairtes, and gif ony fould feime obstinat, that the remnant his nobiletie fould hald hand to the repressing of thame, and the first brekkaris of that happie vnioun perfevit be all extremitie.

Secundlie, It wes thocht best that buffie and seditius personis, radie to fay discorde amangis the nobilletie, fould be routed out, and banischt his Majesteis prefence.

Thridlie, It wes thocht guid that ambassadouris fould be sent to Denmerk : the laird of Barnbarro and Mr Peter Young, preceptour to the King, wer chofen equall in commissioun, to visit the King of Denmerkis dochter, to brek the maiter, and thereafter repourt to his hienes and estaites. That thairefter sick noblemen mycht be send thither for treatting of the mariadge as fould be found fitt ; for the quhilk purposis, his Majestie declaired that he behouit to have the help of his nobiletie, quhilk all in ane voice they accordit to, promising lyfe, landis, guidis and all, and sa mikle mony as thay mycht command.

Last, It wes aggreet ane parliament fould be haldin at Edinburgh in Junij nixt, efter his Majesteis perfyte aidge of xxj yeiris.

At this tyme James Steuart, sumtyme erle of Arrane, wes ordeanit to be tryed concerning the bill sent be him to the King, tuitching the accusing of his noblemen that come in at Sterling to have confpyred his Majesteis murthour, or transporting to Ingland. Ane charge gevin to him to enter in waird within the palace of Linlithgow ; quho diso- beyed and entered nocht in waird.

Immediatlie befor his Majesties passing to Falkland, vpone the xxvij day of Maij, the erle of Bothuell challengit and apprehendit ane Inglischeman sent to Scotland to poyfoun his hienes, or tak him away sum indirect meaner of way ; he and his marrowis wer conducit to this purposis be the Queine of Ingland, and hir bloody counfall. This loune wes examinat be the King, and confest, and thairefter wardit within the castle of Edinburgh.

The parliament beguid the xiiij day of the monethe of Julij, quhair his Majestie, accompanied with his nobilletie, red to the tolbuthe of Edinburgh. Bot befor his vnlovping, thaire arrofe ane heiche contentioun betuix the erles of Crafurde and Bothuell, the lordis Fleming, Settoun, Home and Innermeithe anent thaire woites. The counsell fat thairvpone, and fand that the earle of Crafurde fould have the prioretie of woit, and that the lord Flemyng fould have the wote afoir the rest of the lordis. Quhairvpone the lord Home chellendgit the lord Fleming with the singlar combat, quho wer not suffered to fecht, albeet they wer baithe weill willing. It wes aggreet at this parliament, that his Majestie fould have the haille temporall landis of all benefices annexed to the croune. A generall reuocatioun maid of thingis doune in his minority to his hurt, with fundrie vtheris guid actis insert in the biuk.

Barnbarro and Mr Peter Young returnit home in the end of August 1587, with anfuer of thaire comiffioun, not so guide as wes liukit for. Vpone the day of Oötober, there wes ane Johne Smollote, and with him a Frenche cavillyear tukin, going over the water betuix Leithe aud Kyngorne to the erle of Huntly, quho wes suspect of ane conspiracie aganis the noblemen in court, and wer committed to waird within the castle of Edinburgh. Thearefter his Majestie red with ane hoift to Peblis, for ordour taking with the brokin men, and returnit the tent day.

Vpone the sext day of Februar, proclamatioun wes maid at the mercat croce of Edinburgh, makand mentioun that the lord Hereis wes not onlie negligent in his seruices vpon the bordouris, bot that he had brocht in papistrie in lykmaner to the countrie, and had schot out the ministeris of Dumfreische, and so maid defectioun. For the quhilk his Majestie concludit to go in propper persoun him selfe, and thairfoir charged the inhabitantis of Fyffe, the scherefdome of Perthe, steuartrie of Monteithe, and vtheris to ryse and meit his Majestie at Edinburgh, the first day of Merche nixt, and so to pas forward, vnder the paine of tinfell of lyfe, landis and gudis.

At this tyme Mr James Gordoune, father brother to the erle of Huntlie, wes brocht to the King be the erle of Huntlie. The King, hafing accused him of sawing papiftrie in the hairtes of his pepill, reffoned with him vpon fundrie grundis, quhair of the said Mr James yeildit to fum, and denyed vtheris. [He] wes keipit clofe in his owin chalmer till the tyme of his depairting of the countrie, and went then to Settoun to mak him selfe rady.

Vpone the xvj day of Februar 1587, word come that the erle of Huntlie, lord Hamiltoun and vtheris wer all conuenit at Linlithgow, lyk as they had bein at Perth of befor. Quhairvpon the King fend on Patrik Murray his awin feruand to the erle of Huntlie, to vnderstand his mynd; quho, professing his vnfenyied obedience towardis his Majestie, declaired he had no euill intentioun, ather to relligioun, or the present estaite, and [wold] come quyetlie to his Majestie. As indeid vpon the xxix of the said moneth, the King, being at the hunting, met the said erle at Cramound, quho, accompanied with ten or xij horffes and him selfe, come to Halyroudhous, and lay in his hienes chalmer: quhilk nicht also the lord Hereis come in, and gat speiche of the King.

Huntlie went homewart to quenche ane contentioun wes betuix Balquhame and the toun of Aberdeen, weill lykit of his Majestie; and returnit vpon the day of Merche to court, quhair the lord Hamiltoun, Crafurde, Montroise and the lord Claud come also, and met him. In this meanetyme the King yeildit to ryd to Dumfermling, with the erle of Huntlie to the bancket: Quhaire the alteratioun of the officiaris of estaite wes cravit of the King, and libertie of conscience, bot bathe refusit. Sua that the King red away to Burley malcontented, and stayed for four or fyve dayis; and thairefter come to Dumfermling, and from that to Kynneill, quhaire he had the bancket of the lord Hamiltoun, quhaire a great number of the nobillety past with his majestie, and come back all to Edinburgh at ewin.

About this tyme word come of ane great army of Spayneardis, that wer to land at Scotland, and come vpon England.

Vpone the xix of Apryle 1588, his Majestie, accompanied with ane great number of the schyres beyond Forthe, past to Jedburghe, of purpos to releive sum pledges givin to England be his Majestie. Guid ordour wes takin at this read, and fundrie Teviotdeall gentlemen enterit in England for bilis. At this tyme sum tumult fell out betuix the erle of Angus and Fernihearst, anent the cutting of sum wood, bot wes stayed without skeathe. The Kingis Majestie returnit againe from Jedburgh vpon xxvj day of Apryle; he wes that nycht in Halydeen, and fra that to Langtoun, and fra that past to fie Bervick, and stood a long tyme on the Calfehill, behalding Bervick toun. The haill captaines of the toun come out to fie his Majestie, and sum of thame conferred with his hienes ane guid spaice. The toun schot a woly, and his Majestie at his depairtour caufit give the cannoneris ane hundereth crounes, and the porteris fourtie crounes in drink filuer. And sa his Majestie come that nicht to Dunglas, quhair he had the bancket of my lord Home; and fra that come forduard to Edinburgh.

In this meane tyme ane conuentioun wes haldin in Edinburgh of the haill nobilletie and estaites, quhaire his Majestie declaired that he wald persew the haill papistis and seminarie preistis to the vttermoift, and craued theare assistance to this effect. Immediately in the end of this conuentioun, his Majestie, according to his proclamationis, red to Dumfresche to tak the lord Maxwell: bot the lord Maxwell hearing of this withdrew himself, and went to Kirkcubricht, and schipped with xxxv personis, and lay theare in the read ten dayis, eftir his Majesties comming to Dumfresche. Lykas the house of Lochmabin wes forteseit, and haldin at his command aganis the Kingis Majestie, be Mr David Maxwell brother to the laird of Covhill, and xxvj or xxx fouldiouris with him. His Majestie causit chairge the house to be randerit, bot wes difsobeyit; quhairvpon certane hagbutteris invironed the house.

At this tyme his Majestie directed fir William Steuart of Carstairs knyght to the burghe of Air, for apprehensioun of the said lord Maxwell. Quho, havig gottin ane schip there with sex scoir hagbutteris or therby, and procured of his brother sone Andro lord Ochiltreie fourtie gentlemen of guid curradge and faschioun, come with the said schip in sight of the said lordis schip foranent Kircubrycht. Quhilk being perceavit be the said lord, he withdrew him selff, and past with ane and him selff in ane cokboit to Ilshay, and on the back of that ile fand ane fischer boit, quhairin he come to the land foranent the abbay of Crofregall. This being perceavit be the said fir William, he and his companie folowit, and comming to the said abbay plaice the said lord could have na entres thearin, and sa past to ane hoflar house within the toun to his denner, thinkand that nane could folow him; and as he wes sittand at denner, it wes spokin to the guidwyfe that sex or sevin gentlemen wer brekand vp the yet and duris of the place, and the said lord hearing their of escapit, and past to the wood, quhair the said fir William, folowing him hardlie, tuik him in ane buse therof; and brocht to Drumlenrik, he wes feik and ill at ease, for he had baithe the gulse and bloodie fluxes, quhair of he wes thocht to die.

And becaufe they wald not rander the house of Lochmaben, the King directed to bring sum peicesse out of Kearlell, quhilkis wer brocht vponé the vj of Junij, and began to the batrie of the house vponé the aucht day of the samyn monethe of Junij. Vponé the tent day of the said monethe, fir William Steuart of Carstaires knyght past in to the said house vponé assurance, and spaiking with the detaineris thair of, he movit thame to yeild, vponé promeis maid in the Kingis name that theare lyfes fould be faifit. Lykas it wes randerit that famyn nicht, and the promeis being denyed be the Kingis Majestie, the faid Mr Daud, with vtheris fyve that wer in the houfe, wer hanged vpon the morne thairefter, and the rest fend to Dumfreifche. Immediatly heirefter the King held ane court in Dumfreifh, quhairin all the malefactouris wer declaired fugitiues, at quhilk tyme his Majestie focht Robert Maxvell and William Kynmonthe, and vpon the xv day past toward Langhome; quhilk houfe being brunt, with fundrie vtheris pertening to Will Kynmonthe, Castlemilk and vtheris, his Majestie returnit to Dumfreifche.

Vpon the xvij day of Julij 1588, ane Ingliſche ambaffadour come in to Edinburgh, namit Mr Afhbie, with aucht or nyne in trayne.

Vpon the xxj day of the faid monethe and yeir, Huntlie wes maried vpon the duik of Lennox eldeſt fifter, within Halyroudhoufe chappell be the biſchop of St Androis, at quhilk tyme thear wes great triumphe, mirthe and paſtyme.

Vpon the tuentie fevint day of the faid monethe, his Majestie paſt to Falkland. And vpon the penult day of the famyn monethe, fir William Steuart of Carſfairis knight, quha had the cuſtodie of the faid lord Maxvell, wes flayne be Frances erle of Bothuell abone the bow, quhilk procedit vpon ane lie and certane vtheris diſdainfull wordis fpokin be the faid fir William in the Kingis chalmer to the faid erle. The word of quhiche ſlauchter comand to the eares of Andro lord Ochiltrie, he fend immediatlie to the faid erle, and geve vp kyndnes with him and his companie, lykas the faid lord Ochiltrie oft and dyverſe tymes folowit the faid erle and his companie, werie hardlie in making of fundrie plotis and purpoife for catching of the faid erle, hovbeet it wes trew the faid erle eſcapit moift narrouly.

At this tyme word come of the Spaniſche fleit and armie, quhilk wes betuix Dower and Kealeis, of mynd to onbefet ſum part of Ingland; bot they wer diffapoynted, for the Queine of England fent out certane fchipis that defeat thame mifchantly. To the quhilk ane ambaffadour craued fupport of ten thovfand men out of Scotland to England.

Vpone the fyft day of Auguft, proclamatioun wes maid at the mercat croce of Edinburgh, fchewing the imminent denger wes lickly to infchew vponne relligious perfonis, the Kingis eſteat, and the hail land; ratefeand the leage maid anent the fatling and manteaning of relligioun, and thairfoir commanding the noblemen and vtheris gentlemen throw all the countrie, to caufe the leidges ryfe quhenfoever occaſioun offered; to mak beeanefyres on the toppes of hilis, to conueine with all force, and to mak theare wapinfchewingis, the fouthelyde of Forthe, betuix and the xx day of Auguft, and benorthe vponne the laſt of the ſamyn.

At this tyme, Crounar Steuart wes direct ambaffadour to Denmerk, to ſie quhat the King mycht liuk for tuitching the mariadge. Vpone the xxix day of the ſaid monethe of Auguft, ane ſir Robert Sidney ambaffadour come to Scotland with xvj horffes in trayne, and, vponne the laſt of the ſamyn monethe, he gat prefence in the chancellaris ludging betuix the bowis.

In the monethe of September, the Spanifche navie wes driven be ſtorme of wether on the coaſt of Norroway, quheare many of tham perifchit: lykas word come that xvj or xvij great fchipis wer brokin on the coaſt of Irland, and ſex thovfand perfonis and v^c parreifchet; and the reſt of the navie driwen away.

Vpone the xv day of November 1588, the ſaid coronall Steuart aryuut at Scotland from Denmerk, declairing that his Majeſtie ſould find all theare at his pleaſour, notwithstanding the deathe of the King of Denmerk, quho had appoynted his ſone to tak ſick ordour anent that mariadge, as he had myndit him ſelfe.

At this ſamyn tyme, a conuentioun appoynted for reformatioun of difordoured thingis in the countrie. Lykas the nobillety affembled the xxiiij day of the said monethe, and appoynted certane commiffioneris to fit as iustices in that parliament for punifchment of flauchter, to begin the first, and to continow to the xv day of Merche.

At this tyme Mr Alexander Lyndfay, brother to the erle of Crafurd, being ane great courtiour, tuik the gift of the Kingis gaird over the maister of Glamis head, being captane of the gaird, quhairvpone the gaird wes brokin at the Kingis owin command. Quhairat the maister comming to Edinburgh to ane conuention was heichlie movit, his office being givin to him be ane parliament, and teane from him without offence. Quhairvpone fume braggingis past betuix the erle of Bothuell and the maister of Glamis, and great troubles licklie to fall furthe. Lykas the famyn nicht at ten houris at nicht, the pairteis forgathared with vther on the hie calsey at the Black Freir wynd head, and had particular ambufchmentis layd for vtheris on ather fyde, bot wer stayed. Yit his Majestie caufit conuoy baithe the saidis pairteis on the morne to the abbay; the proveft and bailyeis wer the conuoy-eris, and thrie or four personis only on ather fyde. His Majestie and his counfall called the pairteis befor thame, and efter fum tryell, fand thame baithe to have committed offence, and thairfoir ordeanit thame to be punifchit at his Majesties discretioun. He commandit the erle of Bothuell to waird within the palace of Linlithgow, and the maister of Glamis to the castell of Edinburgh. His Majestie awowit in prefence of the conuention, that gif theare fould be any convocatioun be any lord, erle or barrone aganis quhatfumever perfone, he fould reput the fame as doune to himfelfe. Immediatlie efter the diffoluing of the said conuention, the erle of Huntlie wes maid captane of his Majesties gairde, and tuik vp xxx horfmen, and alsmany futmen.

In the begynning of Februar, word come to Scotland that the King of France had caufit kill the duk of Gveife in his awin chalmer, quhilk bred fick motioun that the toun of Pareife reuolted, and caufit harle his picture throw the hail toun, awowing the King to be ane traitour, quhairvpon great infurrectioun wes maid throw all the countrie, fa that nane wes almoist in fuertie.

The xxvij day of Februar 1588, the King repaired to the tolbuthe of Edinburgh to the sessioun, and ordeanit the secreit counfall to meit [that] efternoure in the said tolbuthe. In the quhilk counsel the erle of Huntlie, vpon copies intercepted of twa letters fend out of England, and presented be the Inglishe embassadour nemit Mr Ashbie heir resident, wes accusit vpon his wryting to the King of Spayne, declairing in effect that he wes constrained to subscriue to the relligioun, and that he did it to insinuat himselfe in favour of the King; that he had gottin the gairde and his hienes eare at his plesour, and willed the said prince to arryve heir quhen he willed, and he fould assist and fortifie him fa far furthe as lay in his possibilitie. The said erle denyand ony sick letter, and that the samyn wes forged be the craft of England, past notwithstanding at the Kingis Majesties desyre to ward to the castle of Edinburgh, quhill he wer tryed fould or innocent of that sa heiche a treasoun. It wes sayd that a Scotis Jesuite fenyied the said letter; and the word wes that the Spanishe gold wes in Calender, to be distribute amangis the noblemen that wer at Calender.

In this meane tyme thaire wes ane great tumult in Edinburgh, and all men addrest thame selffis to armes to the callay.

Vpone the vij day of Merche 1588, the said erle of Huntlie wes releivit out of the castell of Edinburgh, and Claud commendatour of Paf lay wes accusit in the chancellaris house afoir the King and counfall tuitching the samyn letters, quhilk he altogidder denyed, and offered the combat till any man that wald accuse him thairof, calling thame lyaris and traitouris. It wes also thocht meit that he fould be wardit in the castell of Edinburgh till tryell, quho past to waird that samyn nicht.

The Kingis Majestie, within twa or thrie dayis efterhend being called to the banket be the said erle of Huntlie in William Fouleris houfe, past out in the morning to the hunting, and tryffit to come in to his denner about ane efternoon. In the meanetyme the toun of Edinburgh and inhabitantis, being warnit priuely be thair magistratis to mak thame selfes rady in armes aganis the Kingis incomming; the word quhairof command to the said erles knavledge, being on the feildis with the Kingis Majestie for the tyme, tald his hienes of the word he reffavit out of the toun. His Majestie denyed ony sick warning to have bein gevin of his knavledge, yit the said erle being feared could not be persuadit to come within the toun, bot fled to Dumfermling immediatly; bot the Kingis Majestie come in to the toun to William Fouleris houfe, to the denner that wes prepared for him. Certane contrauerfie in wordis happining betuix the erle of Errole and the chancellor, the said erle, thairvpoun hafing reteired him selfe of court, come to the feildis quhair the King wes that samyn day, and conferred ane houre with his Majestie, and departed.

About this tyme thair come a Frenche man packet bearer fra the King of Navare, desyring to have thrie thovsand waidged men; the laird of Weymis past in England for the gold to tak thame vp with, and wes appoynted generall. About this tyme also, the erle of Merchell wes thocht meitteft to pas ambaffadour to Denmerk for the Kingis mariadge.

Vpone the secund of Apryle 1589, the King past from Edinburgh to Haltoun to the hunting, quhaire he remanit four dayis. In the meane-tyme word come that the northland lordis wer vpone the feildis, and conuenit at Brechin; quhilk his Majestie hafing intelligence of in the morning airly, be the moyoun and advertifment of the maister of Glamis, and that they wer command with thair forces to Edinburgh; quhairvpone his Majestie arrose at twa houris in the morning, and red to Edinburgh, quhair he remanit in the chancellaris houfe betuix the bowis.

The erle of Bothuell lykwayis reafed ane force of thrie or four hundredrethe men, come vpon the sext of the said monethe to Dalkeithe, quhair he remainit twa dayis. At quhilk tyme his Majestie, hearing thair of, caufit fend charges throw the hail countrie on the vther fyde of Forthe, to ryse bodin in fear of wear, betuix sextie and sextein, and repair to his Majestie with all heaft, vnder the panes, etc. The erle of Bothuell in the meanetyme sent fundrie commiffioneris to the King, offerring him in his Majesties will, and to come to any pairt to his Majestie quhaire the chancellor wes not ; bot could not come within the toun of Edinburgh, sa lang as he wes with his Majestie, quhom he offered to proufe ane double traitour to his hienes, and accuse him of twa or thrie fundrie poyntis of treafoun. The King vtterlie refufit to spaik with the said erle vpon ony conditioun, quhairvpon the said erle vpon the nynt day diffoluit his forces, and past westward with fourtie and him self towardis Perth, quhaire he remainit quhill the lordis his adherentis wer convenit, viz. Huntlie, Errole, Crafurde, Bothuell, Murray, Montroife and thair forces.

Vpon the fame nynt day, proclamatioun wes maid agane, commanding all maner of man to pas forduard vpon the morne with his Majestie : lykas his Majestie, only accompanied with sex or fevin scoir horsmen, past from Edinburgh towardis Linlithgow ; the hail tounsmen of Edinburgh past on fute agaitward that day. His Majestie awowit to persue the saidis noble men to the fardest pairt of Scotland, or elis to reduce thame to his obedience.

In the meane tyme, word ryfes that the maister of Glamis is teane in fleeing to Kirkhill, and caried with him to the northe.

Vpon the fame tent day of the said monethe of Apryle, his Majesties force increffing more and more, past forduard to Sterling ; on the morne to Perth ; furthe of the quhilk the lordis being diffoluit, his Majestie, accompanied with twa or thrie thousand horsmen, past forduard imme-diatly to Dundie; fra thence to Brechin, and the nixt day to Cowie. Quhair the Kingis Majestie hearing that Huntly, Craford and Errole wer conuenit with thair forces in Aberdeen, to the number of iij^m men on fute and horse, and wer of mynd to fecht his Majestie, his hienes trysted to have bein at Dynnoter that nicht; [bot] took purpois in the middes of the way betuix Brechein and Cowie, to ly on the feildis him felse all nicht, as in deid thaire wer pallyeonis stented, quhair his Majestie rested that nicht, and in Charles Movatis houfe in Cowie wat-chit quhill fyve houris in the morning. And hafing reffavit sum advertifment, that vpon the samyn nicht the lordis merched out thrie thovsand men out of Aberdeen to the brig of Die, of intentioun to fecht, his hienes felse maid ane exhortatioun to fick as had remained with him in companie, declaired that fick as fauored the lordis and wer not myndit to fecht had reteired thame felves fra the army, and feing they that wer theare to fecht wer not abone v^c men or therby, he fchew thame how theare quarrell wes the defence of the trew relligioun, and of his hienes perfone, estaite and croun, in quhilk quarrell he douttit not bot they that war theare wald hazard lyfes, landis and all.

Word come in the morning that a fuerfe had overgone the lordis hairtes, and that theare forces wer diffoluit, and that the erle of Crafurde wes the first that past away and left thame. Then the barronis and vtheris gentlemen, confiddering that his Majestie wes in proper perfone vpon the feildis, and the lordis quarrell to be sa friuole aganis theare awin natie prince, they skayled ane and ane, and past away; for they wer conuenit vpon ane declaratioun maid be the lordis, that thay had his Majesteis warrand for that thing they did, quhilk they fand to be ane vntreuthe, als weill be his Majesteis awin presence, as be his priuat letters, and thairfoir a great number come in to his Majestie betuix Cowie and Aberdeen.

The Kingis Majestie come to Aberdeen vpon the xx day of Apryle,

[and] remained there three or four days. Upon the xxij day, the maister of Glamis is sent in, with captane Thomas Ker and six or seven otheris personis to Aberdeen. His Majestie tuik purposis, in respect of the erle Huntleis delay to come in at Aberdeen, to pas to Straboggie to cast down the house, with the house of Slaynis, Buchvane and Fitterneir; and that night wes in Turray luing for the comming in of the said erle, and feing he come not, his Majestie past forward to Straboggie on the morne. The night of his Majesties coming there, the erle of Huntlie wes conveyed out be the maister of Glamis to the Terrifoule beyde Straboggie, quhair the haill noblemen that accompanied his Majestie wer at supper and ludgit. The said erle schuik handis with the said noblemen at supper, and efter they had endit, he and the maister of Glamis sovpit in the samyn house together. He wes delyverit to the laird of Carmichell and captane William Home in keiping, and conveyed be thame vpon the morne afor the Kingis Majestie in to Aberdene, and fra that all the way to Edinburgh without sight of his Majestie. At his Majesties returning to Aberdeen, M'Kuntosche, Drum, Grant and otheris barronis wer movit to subscrieve ane band for his Majesties obedience. The erle of Huntlie wes wardit in Robert Gourlays house in Edinburgh.

And efter his Majesties returning to Edinburgh, Mr Robert Hepburne and Mr David Lyndfy ministeris trauellit for the erle of Bothwell, and promisit to bring him in, vpon condition that his lyfe, landis and guidis shold be sayfed, and his freindis; quhilk the King yeildit to. Thairefter he wes brocht in, and put in the handis of captane Home in George Todrikis house, and therefter in a chalmer of Halyroudhous, and the erle of Craford command to Edinburgh wes wardit in his awin ludging.

Then folowit ane conuention vpon the xx day of Majj, quhair the erle of Huntlie and Craford wer callit in befor his Majestie and estaitis, and thaire depositionis reffavit, the erle of Huntleyis quyetlie in the yeard befoir a few of the counsell, and the erle of Crafurdis oppinly in preffence of all the counfall. Certane poyntis of treafoun they denyed, and commiffioun fent to examine the erle of Bothuell; he denyed ony practife aganis his Majestie or relligioun, as they did all; and declaired plainlie that his ryfing in armis wes to be reuenged of the chancellor only. Always his Majestie and estaitis thocht meit that they fould be put to the tryell of ane affyse; lyk as vpone the xxiiij day of the said monethe, the saidis thrie erles wer conuoyed out of waird, to the heiche tolbuith of Edinburgh, quhaire they wer accufit of fundrie poyntis of treafoun. The erle of Huntly come in the Kingis Majesteis will for the haill thing layd to his chairge; the vther twa wer put to the knawledge of ane affyse, and the erle of Bothuell conuict, of conueining with certane vtheris noble men, betuix Leithe and Edinburgh at the Quarrel holis, anent the devyfyng of the alteratioun of the estaite, and the Kingis Majestie, and his countrie. The said erle of Crafurde conuict of four poyntis of dittay, to wit of that the said erle Bothuell wes conuict of, of the fuppryfyng of the toun of Perth, conueining his forces theare, of the fyre reafing, and affaidging the houfe of Kirkhill, out of the quhilk the maifter of Glamis wes teane, and command aganis his Majestie at Aberdeen, and vfyng harrang to feduce his hienes fubiectis to come aganis him felfe. This affyse continowit till twa houris in the morning. His Majestie and the chancellor remained in the inner counsell houfe all the tyme, and efter conuictioun, ordeanit the erles to be transported to the wardis quhair they had bein afoir; and at laft tuik conclusioun that they fould be put in fum fuirer wardein place. And fua captane Home tuik the erle Bothuel to Tamptalloun, the erle of Huntlie to Borthuick, and the erle of Crafurde to the caffle of St Androis.

It wes concludit in the laft day of the said conuentioun, that the erle Merfchell, the lord Dingvall, the conftable of Dundie, accompanied with Mr John Skene aduocat, fould pas to Denmark in embassadge tuitching the mariadge ; quho past forduard in thair ambassadge magnificklie. Theare wes a parliament appoynted to be at Edinburgh the thrid of Oötober.

Vpone the xiiij of Junij 1589, it wes thocht guid that his Majestie fould pas agayne to the northe, to fatle the effaris of the countrey : his Majestie trysted to be at Aberdeen the last of Junij, and to hald iustice courtis. Vpone the secund day of Julij 1589, the King come to Aberdeen, and fet down deputis for halding courtes their : his Majestie stayed four or fyve dayis, and then past forduard to the Channorie of Rose, quhair he flew ane great hairt, and wes weill bancketted and reffavit be the barronis and gentlemen in the way. His Majestie stayed four or fyve dayis in Channorie and Cromartie, and returnit back to Aberdeen about the xxvij of the said monethe, quhair he remanit till the fourt of August : vpone the quhilk day, a litle befor his Majesteis loeping on to ryd to Drum, the erle of Errole, Achindovne, Buckvane and Cluny come in to his hienes ; weill reffavit, with fundrie vtheris Gordounes, vpone compositionis always.

Vpone the sext of the said monethe, word come to the King in Edzell, that the King of France wes slayne in his owin chalmer be a freier. In this tyme Ester Weymis tuik vp xv^c waidged men for the King of Novar, now alleggit King of France. His Majestie come to Edinburgh, to sie how the Abbay wes decored aganis his wyfes comming, the Queine. Heirefter his Majestie red waft to Hammiltoun, to the hunting and progres.

Vpone the xxviiij day of the said monethe, crownull Steuart arryvit at Leithe from Denmerk, and come to Sterling to the King, with newis that the mariadge wes solemnizat betuix his Majestie and the Queine befor his away comming ; quhairvpon his Majestie immediatlie red to Edinburgh, to sie all thingis prepared accordingle as he thocht fitt.

About the xiiij or xv dayis of September 1589, the lord Dinguall come from Denmerk. He arryved at Stenehyfe, with newis to his Majestie that he had come in companie with the Queine fleit thrie hundrethe myles, and wes separat fra thame be ane great storme: it wes feared that the Queine wes in denger vpon the seas. The King remained xvj or xvij dayis in Settoun, luing for hir coming. There wes ane great propyne fend out of England to his Majestie, of fundrie thingis: his Majesteis clething and vtheris necessaris wer coft at Londoun, be Mr John Coluill and certane merchandis of Edinburgh, and brocht in vpon the xxij day of September. The Abbay wes weill mendit and prepared for all thingis, rady for the mariadge; and great preparatioun maid be the nobilletie and vtheris. Crounar Steuart wes directit to Norroway, to sie quhat wes word of the Queine.

Vpon the tent day of October, thaire arryved ane schip that come fra the Queine, quhairin wer fundrie of our awin men, namly Andro Sincler sone to the lord Sincler, togither with ane ambaffadour and speciall man fra the Queine, then being in Norway: quho come to the King in the chancellaris ludging, and declaired the great denger the Queine had bein in vpon the sea; and how being within ane hundrethe myles, scho wes drivin back to Norroway. So that scho wes vnhable, be reffone of the leckes wes in hir awin and the restis schipis, to come forduard; schewing also that hir counfell the admirall and gunneris had concludit to goe back to Elfinvre, and to leave the Queine quhill Scotis schipis come furthe to hir.

Quhairvpon the Kingis Majestie being struckin in great perplexitie, immediatlie tuik vp house in Leithe, quhair he caufit reak to fyve schippis with all furnitour belonging therto, and fend thame to Norroway, with ane great number of the nobilletie and vtheris staitfmen. Lykas his Majestie tuik purposis secreatlie him selfe to pas in that jorney, and caufit mak quyet preparatioun for him, keiping his purposis clofe fra all men, als weill the nobilletie as commonis; quho hearing of the brute wer werie forie, bot could not mend it. His Majestie with the rest fould [have] maid faille vpon Sunday at efternounge, the xix day of October instant, at quhilk tyme theare come on sick a deadlie storme, that the schipis lyand all in Leith read wer schakin lovse, and driven all vp to St Margaretis houpe, and sua the jorney stayed for that night. Vpon the xxij day of October, about tuelff houris at evin, his Majestie maid faile to Norroway with fyve schipis in company: his Majestie wes driven back xx or xxx myles with great storme, and read foranent St Monanis. Theare wer sum personis come in with the King without warrand, quho wer sent a land at St Monanis; and vpon the xxiiij, with a fair wynd come to Norroway.

Efter his Majesteis depairtour, proclamatioun wes maid be his Majesteis awin will and directioun subscrivit with his hand, makand the diuk of Lennox president in his Majesteis plaice, and the erle of Bothuell his coadjutouris, and to sit and minifter justice at Edinburgh: theare wes a counfall appoynted for thame to assist thame. The lord Hammiltoun wes appoynted leiftenant, and the lord Maxvell warden. The lord Hamiltoun and Maxvell craved the assistance of the diuk and erle Bothuell, quha ran ane covrse for forderance of peax and quyetnes within the realme. The Kingis Majestie, be his awin privie letters and vtherways, exhorted all his Majesteis leidges for peax and quyetnes till his returning, with certificatioun gif they failyeid, etc.

Vpon the xxviiij day of the said monethe of October, the Kingis Majestie landit at Flaikray on the coast of Norroway; quhair his Majestie remaining a great spaice went vp to Vpslo, quhaire the Quene his bedfolow wes for the tyme, and come [there] with great trauell baithe vpon sea and land, about the xix day of November thearefter; and immediatly at his comming, past quyetlie with buites and all to hir hienes. The rest of his company went to his awin ludging takin aganis his com-ming. His Majestie myndit to give the Queine a kisse efter the Scotis fashcioun at meiting, quhilk scho refusit as not being the forme of hir countriè. Marie, efter a few wordis priuely spokin betuix his Majestie and hir, thair past familiaretie and kiffes.

Vpone the xxij of November 1589, the King and Queine wer married in Vpflo, by Mr David Lyndsay minister at Leithe. The banquet wes maid efter the best forme they could for the tyme.

Vpone the xv day of December, the lord Dingvall, Barnbarroche and fundrie vtheris, specialis and foloweris of the lordis, arryvit at Leithe with newis of his Majesteis guid succes and estaite, and that his Majestie wes only occupied in making of the Queine, and wes not myndit to come home befor the spring of the yeir. Lykas the haill schippis wer send back, and his Majesteis quhole company almoist, becausè the King wes thair interteined vpon the Queinis chairges.

Vpone the xvij day of December, Mr Bowis embaffadour, command in without conduct, wes commandit be the counfall to his ludging for a day. And thairefter compearit with ane letter from the Queine of England, schewand that scho had gottin intelligence of noblemen and vtheris traffecking with the Jefuites, and that fence his Majesteis depairtour, there had bein letters sent be thame to Spayne and vtheris places, and promiffes maid for subuerfioun of relligioun within the realme; and that fundre conuentionis wer keipit be thame to this effect, and that scho thocht guid to acquent the counfell thairwithe; certefeing thame, that gif they wald not tak ordour thairwith, or that they laiked pover or substance to doe the samyn, sche wald supplie the same to hir vtter pover. It wes anfuerit be ane generall letter: that they knew of na sikk purpois, and thairfoir neidit nather to imploy thair awin force and pover nor hiris; and that the countrie had never beine in sikk quyetnes, as it had bein sen his Majesteis depairtour.

About the xvj day of Merche, William Schaw maister of work come from the King out of Denmerk, with directioun to caufe the fchipis the burrowis had appoynted mak out for bringing his Majestie homeward, to outred the abbay, and have all thingis in radines for his Majesteis homecomming, quhilk fould be in Apryle nixt ; fchewing alfo that the Queine wes with bairne, and that the King and his company had bein weill interteaned. About the penult of Merche 1590, Coronall Steuart maid fayle towardis his Majestie, accompanied with twa or thrie fchippis, and appoynting the rest to folow.

About this tyme word come that a feild wes struckin in France, betuix the King and diuk de Mayne, the king being nyne thovsand, and the diuk xv^m men, and that the King had wyn the feild, with great flauchter of his enemeis, to the number of viij^m. Theare wes alfo many nobles and counfelleris of the Kingis flayne. The King wes praised as being moift curagious, and wes the first that geve onfet him selfe ; he and all the hoift beguid with prayer, and pat all in Godis handis, and thairvpone reposit vpone the certantie of victorie, quhilk he gat indeid.

Vpone the xij of the samyn monethe, the Queine went thither to Dumfermling and Falkland, quhair they remaynit a schort sspace: the King went to his progres west, throw to Hamiltoun and Infchmirane. The King returning tuik the Queine to Dumfermling, and fra that to Edinburgh, quaire they remanit all wynter.

In the end of October 1590, word come that the King of France had left the seidge of Pareise, and that Parmey and diuk de Mayne had entered without batle thairin; and that the toun of Torbit a litle from Pareise wes wyn be the saidis diukis, and all the inhabitantis put to the fuord. It wes thocht that the King of France dissoluit his army for want of wiveris, and that they wer long weired.

Vpone the feird day of November, Mr Alexander Lyndfay brother to the erle of Crafurde wes maid lord of Spynie, and with him fir George Home and fir James Sandilandis knichtit.

In the begining of December, newis come out of France that the King had wyn Torbet againe, and pat all to the aidge of the fuorde; and that he had teane the feildis, and that vij^m gentlemen voluntaris come in vpon thair awin chairgis, and myndit to fecht the diuk of Parmay befor his away going; and the Bastillyee of Pareis wes mannit be certane tounfemen, quho called Viva la Roy.

Ane great controuerie fell out about this tyme, betuix certane of the erle of Huntleis freindis and the Grantis; quhairvpone forces wer reafed vpon ather fydis: and the erles of Atholl and Murray with the laird of Grant being in Tarnuay, the erle of Huntlie come to befeadge the houfe, quhaire thear wes fundrie of the Gordouns flayne, namlie ane Johne Gordoun, fshot in at the movthe throw the craig and died. They wer all chairged afoir the secreit counfall. Lykas, about the end of December, they wer all compellit to find cautioun for keiping the Kingis pace, and not inuading of utheris. Bot the erle of Huntlie, now being reconciled with the chancellor, had great court, and all doune at his plesour.

Great inquitoun at this tyme for witches. Lykas Barbara Neapper and Evphane M'Kallian and Agnes Sampson, wemen of guid reputioun afoir, wer teane as witches, with fundrie utheris baithe men and weemen. Sampson wes brunt, and died weil; the rest wes keipit. Amangis the rest, ane Ritchie Grahame accusit of witchcraft confest many poyntis, and declaired that the erle of Bothuell wes ane treffecker with him and utheris, anent the conspyring of the Kingis dead. Quhairvpone the erle Bothuell, being fend for and accusit, being ane great poynt of trefoun, wes committed to waird within the castle of Edinburgh, and werie straitlie keipit.

In the beginning of Merche 1591, there come in a great man out of Irland, to tak vp men aganis the Queine of Ingland, namit Bryanne Arroyk; quho remaying about ten or tuelf weikis in Glafgow, at laft wes committed to waird within the caftle of the famyn; and theirefter tranfported be the pryour of Blantyre and the laird of Carmichell to Carleill toun, quhairfra he wes caried to the Queine and delyverit in hir handis, to the great greife of many and flaunder of the countrie, befyd the skaithe the merchandis of the weft had that trauelled to Irland. Vpone the xvj or xvij day of the faid monethe, fuir word come that the Chairterhous wes wyn be the King of France, quhairin the haill ritches of Pareife wes put in keeping. Vpone the xvij day of Junij 1591, the King maid his generall reuocatioun at Falkland.

Vpone the xxij day of the faid monethe of Junij, the erle Bothwele brak ward out of the caftle of Edinburgh at twa houris in the morning, be the conuoy of Gilbert Lauder quho went with him. The King being in Tullibardin come immediatly to Edinburgh, and focht for ane force to perfév him at Kelfo. The erle of Bothuell come to the Nether bow and cryed in, defyring ony man to bid the chancellor come and tak him, and he wald give ony man a croune; and that famyn nicht fopit in Leithe, quhair the erle of Home joynit with him; and the erles of Mortoun, Errole, maifter of Glamis and vtheris wer his fauoreitis. Quhairvpone the chancellor being affrayed, he fent for the King, quho come to Edinburgh in all heaft. And his Majeftie beand be the way in Wefterweymis, the erle of Merfchell come to him, quhom he wold not heir, bot committed him in waird. The famyn erle wes brocht before the counfell, accufit and committed to waird within the caftle of Edinburgh; fchortly thereafter fred.

Vpone the penult of Julij, the King wreyt for the nobilley and barronis in all heaft. The lord of Spynie paff to Angus for taking of the maifter of Glamis, bot come back without him. Quho thereafter wes committed to waird in Blacknes, and releivit within a schort space, and wardit beyond Die. The lord Home wes commandit out of the countrey, and the laird Balcleuche lykwayis past of the countrey with licence.

Vpone the xxvij day of December 1591, be a conspiracie the abbay of Halyroudhouse wes suppryfit. The erle of Bothuell, laird of Spot, laird of Nethrie, Archibald Douglas fone to William erle of Mortoun, and Mr John Colwill with thair associatis, to the number of fourtie or fiftie perfonis, enterit in at a stable dur befyd the east geavill of the treatour toure, quhilk wes called the diukes stable, within the quhilk thaire wes a trape and ane entres priuclie maid, quhilk past in to the plaice. And hafing entered therin, they first bereft the portour of the keyis, and then past to the chanceleris chalmer dur; they dang vp the famyn; he being forsein be the kry of ane boy that theare wes ane tumult of men in the clofe, he withdrew him selff and fum vtheris within his inner chalmer, quhilk hes ane narrow entrie, at quhilk the laidis conspiratouris strak with foir halmeris and schot pistoletis. Theare wes fum schotis of muscatis schot out againe; fum of thame wer hurt, and for fear to be trappit past to the Quenis chalmer dur, quhilk they brak vp, and wer put from it till they gead that famyn way they come: and in that meane tyme, John Schaw maister stabler wes slayne vpon the morne, and vther morne folowing, theare wes aucht of the famyn perfonis teane, and hanged without affyse foranent the Abbay yet.

The diuk of Lennox wes suspect of this purpos, be reffoun that ane of his seruandis William Steuart wes at the deid doing, and fugitiue with the rest. Certane of his Majestis awin seruandis wer suspectit, specially Robert Land and Mr James Durhame of Duntarvie, quho wer apprehendit and committed to waird vpon the iiij of Januar. Lykwayis John Nesmyt wes accusit, quho wes committed to waird within the castell of Edinburgh, and fund heirefter to have bein the speciall plotter and devyfer of that buffines; his lyfe wes speared, bot him selfe banifchit.

About the xx day of Januar, word come that the erle of Bothuel with a great cumpany wes in the west pairtes, myndit to pas to Spayne. The diuk of Lennox and the erle of Huntlie war sent with commiffioun to tak the said erle; he narovly efcapit thair handis and past to Buit, or fum vther ile therabout. And they, remaining their aucht or ten dayis vpon a chack, wer compellit to returne home as they come as feild, except that they brocht in the scheref of Buit with thame, quho maid his awin pairt good. And then some of the said gaird wer send for to tak John Smollert, as suspect to have bein vpon this conspiracie; and the said John being brocht afoir the counfall, he wes examinat, and keipit a certane fpaice. In lykmaner fir James Sandelands and the scheref of Buite war fend, with commiffioun to fearche and feik the said erle of Bothuell.

Vpone the vij day of Februar or therby, the erle of Huntlie, with sex or fevin scoir of his freindis, past out of the Kingis house, and maid thame to giang to ane horfe reafe at Leithe; bot quhen they wer theare, hafing the executioun of a blouddie conspiracie in thaire hairte, they past to the Queinis ferrie, quhair they had caufit stay the passing over of all boittis, and past toward the plaice of Donnybirell beyd Aberdour, perteing to vmquhill James erle of Murray. Quhilk being the duelling house of his mother, and he brocht to the famyn be the lord Vchiltrie, vpon his Majesteis promeis to reflave him in his hienes fauour, for any occafioun of hafing to doe with the erle of Bothuell, and vpon his Majesteis promeis to aggrie him the erle of Huntlie and the chancellor Mettland, fua vpon his Majesteis defyre and command foirsaid, the said lord Vchiltrie wreyt for him; quheare [vpone] he come to Donnybirell, quhaire he wes flayne.

That famyn nicht that he wes flayne, efter his Majesteis come in fra

the hunting, to his ludging in Nithreis wynde in Nicoll Eduardis houfe, quhair he ludgit at that tyme; the lord Vchiltrie, hearing the bruit quhair of he had no certantie, being accumpained at the tyme with fourtie or fiftie horffe of his awin, be reffoun of his deadlie feadis that he flood vnder, paff thame all in armes, and maid thame felffes radie to giang over to Dunnibirfell to fie the maner: lyk as the erle of Mortoun promifit to fend fum of his men with him alfo. Quhair of the King being informed, fend for the faid lord Vchiltrie with all diligence to come vnto him, and in the meanetyme caufit cloife the portis, and geve command to the bailyeis to ftay all his horffes within thaire fleables. Lykas at his coming to his Majeftie, efter long conference his Majeftie difcharged him in ony foirt to fleir that nicht, or to ryd by his knavledge. The faid lord efter fum fpeiches to his Majeftie reteired to his awin ludging. And vpon the morne thereafter, quhaire the faid erle of Huntley with his bloudie menzie maift treffonable reafed fyre, brunt the houfe of Donnybrifell, and maift vnvorthelie and fchamefullie murtherift and flew the faid vmquhill erle of Murray, being the luftieft youthe, the firft noble man of the Kingis bloode, and one of the peiris of the countrey, to the great regrait and lamentatioun of the hail pepill. And flew with him the fcheref of Murray, and hurt thrie or four vtheris his feruandis; tuik fome of his feruandis alfo, and returnit peceable back fra that execrable murthour, to the toun of Innerkeathing, quhaire they remanit all that nicht. The bloodie traitouris awowit that they had the Kingis commiffioun to this purpois, quhilk his Majeftie denyed. In the meanetyme of theare ftaying in Innerkeathing that nicht, the faid erle Huntlie fend over Gordoun of Buckie to tell the King the newis; quha wes haldin at the Kingis yet, and departed to his ludging. Quhair of knavledge comming to the lord Vchiltrie, and fum of the diuk of Lennoxis feruandis, and erle of Maris, he went and focht him warie diligentlie in the Cannogeat; and hearing that he had teane horfe at a backfyde and ridden away, the said lord Vchiltrie sent for his horffe with all diligence, and folowit efter him ; bot he eschappit werie narroulie, and come agayne to the erle of Huntlie in Innerkeathing, quhair he being at his denner reafe thairfra, and slipped away without paying of his lawing.

Vpone the nynt day of Februar, the dead bodeis of the erle of Murray and scheref of Murray wer brocht over the waite to Leithe be the lady Doun his mother, quha myndit vpon the morne thereafter to present thame to the King ; quhair of his Majestie being forseine, he past out to the hunting, and commandit the bailyeis of Leithe to arreast the dead bodeis in theare ludging quhair they wer, and suffer thame not to be transported quhill they knew mair of his Majesteis mynd. Many noblemen wer wreyttin for, bot nane come except the lord of Hammiltoun, quha went out that samyn day with his Majestie to the hunting. Captane Gordoun and his man wes brocht over lykwayis, with the dead corpis. Theare wes ane warrand procurit be the lord of Spynie, till have teane captane Gordoun out of Leithe to the castle of Edinburgh, to have eschewit the present tryell of law ; quhair of the lord Vchiltrie being informit, tuik horse, and his seruandis with him to the number of xxx or xl gentlemen weill horfit in thair armour, and folowit furthe efter the King to the hunting. Quhaire he come vnto the King vpon the northe fyde of Corstorphin craiges beyond Cravmound, quhaire his Majestie wes takin a drink, lichtet, and stayed his horse at the hill fute, and come to his Majestie, and schew him that he wes informit that theare wes ane warrand procurit to carie captane Gordoun to the castle of Edinburgh, quhilk wald be ane henderance to his tryell in law, and the assyse and all vtheris thingis maid rady ; declairing to his Majestie how far this murthour tuitched his hienes, quhair of he befocht him most humblie to confidder, and quhat great wrong he had reffavit heirin his Majestie best knew ; quha caufit him wrevt for the said erle and the chancellor Maitland. Vpone the said lord Vchiltrie his earnest desyre, his Majestie granted him a warrand to present the said captane Gordoun and his man to the tryell of ane allyse that samyn day ; quhilk with all diligence the said lord did performe, and the said captane wes beheadit, and his man hanged, quho wer baithe at the said murthour.

Proclamatiounis wes maid the tent day of the said monethe, to all noblemen, barronis and vtheris within a great number of scherefdomes, to ryse in armes with tuentie dayis loading, and mak fordward with the Kingis Majestie, [the] tent day of Merche nixt, for purfuit of the erle of Huntlie, and the committeris of the lait treffonable fact within the palace of Halyroudhous, efter the King and Quenis Majesteis had remanit a certane tyme in Edinburgh, and the King and chaunceller wes murmured aganis be the commoun pepill, for not haffing sikk regaird to the punifchment of that murthour as become. The Kingis Majestie, the chancellor and court tuik jorney about the end of the said monethe of Februar to Linlithgow, quhair his Majestie remanit a certane tyme. They past fra that to Glasgou and Dumbartane, quhaire calling befor thame and thair counsell sum of the refetteris of the erle Bothuell, laitlie in these pairtis about Dumbartane, they wardit the laird of Foulwood and his wyfe, with sum vtheris ; and haffing taried a certane tyme, in theare backcomming from Dumbartane, in the toun of Glasgou (as all the countrie thocht purposlie, and as it appeared to eschew the exclamatioun of the pepill,) they returnit to Linlithgow. At the Kingis being in Dumbartane, the maister of Elphinstoun wes send to him in commiffioun be the erle of Huntlie, quho, in the said erles name, offerrit him and his companie to a tryell for the said murthour, ather befor his Majestie and his counsell, or the justice generall and his deputis ; thinking that a commiffioun, quhilk he purchest of his Majestie for the peruite of sikk as affistid the erle of Bothuell, fould bein a sufficient warrand for the slauchter of the erle Murray. Always it wes thocht meit heirvpon, that the erle of Huntlie fould be chairged to compeir befor the King and counfell at a day, that his compearance to abyd tryell nicht be maid fuir, albeet nothing wes les meanit then wer that he fould bein therby indengerit or trubled. The chairge being direct out, it wes thocht meit that he fould [not] be fufferit to come in his Majesteis prefence, for the bruites caufe, and for efchewing of forder miflyking of the pepill; bot befor the day of compearance to [be] committed in waird for his tryell. And fua the faid erle, comming forduard in armis to keip the day, accompanied with fevin or aucht^e men, wes chairged be the way in the toun of St Johnftoun, to enter his perfone in waird in the caftle of Blacknes, and his freindis in the caftle of Edinburgh. He come to his waird, and enterit therin, bot his freindis paff back, and diffobeyit the chairge. Efter he had remanit a fyve or fex dayis in wairde, he geve in ane bill to the counfell, and defyrit to be fred, vpon cautoun that he fould compeir vpon the thrid day of the nixt justice air within the fchyre quhair he duelt, or fooner vpon xv dayis warning, and vnderly the law for the faid murthour: quhilk, efter fum circumftances vfit, wes granted be the King and maift pairt of the counfell, and his releif put in the Kingis awin handis; and fua wes fred quyetlie be his Majestie, and paff therfra to the caftell of Fyndheavin, quhair he remanit in cumpanie with the erle of Crafurde a certane tyme; and therefter wes fred fimpliciter, or vpon cautoun never fund, as I hard. The lord Vchiltrie, feing how thir maiteris wer handlit, and how the reuendge of this murthour be law wes neglectit, quhairvpon he had stayed all this tyme, and that his Majestie had promifit vnto him to folow furthe that maiter be law in all rigour; he, feing no appearance therof, paffes over the water to the erle of Atholl, the erle of Montroife, M^rKuntosche, Grant, the laird of Weymis of that ilk, with the hail barronis apperteaning and depending vpon the houfe of Atholl, and cauffes fet down a band in wreyt, oblifland thame to concur and goe forduard at all occasionis quhen they fould be requyrit, or that occasion fould offer, for the reuendge of that murthour : lykas he red throw all his freindis vpon the fouth fyde of Forthe, and caufit thame to fubfcrive the faid band. Quhair of the King hearing be informatioun of chancellor Maitland, and his infligatioun movit his Majestie to fend for the faid lord Vchiltrie, and to inquire for the faid band. The lord Vchiltrie affermit and confest his traueiling and obteaning of the famyn band, alledging that he had great reffoun fo to doe, for he faw no vther appearance of reuendge to come ; afferming oppinlie to his Majestie at all tymes, that he wald embrace and refufe no freindschip that wald affist and tak pairt in the reuendge of that murthour.

The Kingis Majestie remaining in Merche at Linlithgow, the nobilitie and estaitis wer wreyttin for to ane conuentioun, the xx day of Apryle befor the parliament, quhilk wes continowit to the xxiiij day of Maij thairefter. For efchewing and fchuilting this conuentioun, the Kingis Majestie ten or xij dayis befor tuik jorney out of Edinburgh vpon the fuddand toward Dundie, quhair he hard that the erle Bothuell wes fchipped at Bruchtie, and paffing thairfra to Kaithnes. At that tyme he remanit viij or ix dayis in Dundie, quhaire he vfit a tryell of fum perfonis that had reflavit the erle of Bothuell ; and thairefter paff to Perth, quhaire the erle of Atholl wes defyred to compeir afoir his Majestie and counsell, to anfuer for the refet of the erle Bothuell in his boundis and countrie. The maifter of Gray [wes] chairged for this famyn refet, quho wes fugitiue. The erle of Atholl being fumquhat flaw in his incomming, proclamatiounis wer direct to mak forduard vpon him, bot the erle of Mar perceaving the extreametie, purchest a commiffioun to him felfe and the lord of Tillibardin, to pas for Atholl and bring him in, quho did the famyn ; bot Athol come fubftantiuflie accompanied. And remaining quhill the day of the conuentioun wes expyred at St Johnftoun, his Majestie come to Falkland, quhaire refolutioun wes teane that the conuentioun and parliament fould bathe hald forduard, the conuentioun the xxiiij day of Maij, and the parliament within v or vj dayis thairefter ; quhairvpon the nobilletie and estaitis wer wrettin for of new to that effect. And thairefter the King come over at Erlfferrie to Fentoun ; and remayingn theare about thrie or four dayis come to Dalkeithe, furthe of the quhilk he come the xxiiij of Maij 1592 to Edinburgh, for halding of the conuentioun and parliament.

At this same tyme word come of the King of France wictorie over the prince of Parmey ; and how he had teane flicht, and wes defeat.

It wes thocht meit that, at the beginning of the conuentioun and parliament, they fould cheise the lordis of artickelis, vpon the xxix day of Maij in the tolbuthe of Edinburgh. Theare repaired to the famyn the duik of Lennox, erle of Angufe, Mortoun, with vtheris diuerse erles and lordis. Theare wes a new counfall chofen the same tyme. The proces of forfaltour wes led aganis the erle Bothuell, laird of Spot, laird of Samuelstoun, Nithre, William Steuart fumtyme constable of Dumbartane, Patrik Comming, with certane utheris partakeris with the erle Bothuell. Sundrie guid actis maid in favouris of the ministrie, and vtheris of the temporall estait ; I remit thame to the buik.

The King and Queinis Majestie remaining in Falkland in Junij 1592, vpon the xxviiij day betuix ane and twa in the nicht, the said erle Bothuell hafing confpyred the apprehensioun of the Kingis persone that nycht, accompanied with iij^c personis, and persevit the palace thair of fra that tyme to vij houris in the morning ; bot the King with these about him, being for seine and advertifit be the watche, withdrew himselff to the tour of Falkland, quhilk they had furnifchit with wiveris, and fchot furthe, and keipit the famyn without hurt. And sua the said erle departed with his companie west fra the said palace, about vij houris in the morning, bot his Majestie not being any number, and his horffes teane be Bothuell, he left of the foloving of thame. The gentlemen and hail inhabitantis of Fyffe come fast in hearing of this, and that Bothuell wes fled: theare come also Perth, Dundie, Covpar, with fundry vtheris burrowis, to the number of iij^m perfonis or thairby, or sex houris at ewin. His Majestie tuik purpos that same nicht, to pas at aucht houris at ewin to Brunteland, and vpon the morne come over to Halyroudhous, quhaire his Majestie remainit a certane sspace.

The erle of Angus wes command forduard to that conspiracie, bot fuerued and stayed at Merkinsche; quhairvpon he wes chargit to compeir befor the King and counfall. The laird of Balweirie and Ardrie joynit thamefelfes with Bothuell.

The lairdis of Burley and Logie, delaitted to [have] had intelligence with the erle Bothuell, wer takin and apprehendit be the diuk of Lennox, the ix day of August 1592, and committed to ward within Dalkeithe; quhaire being examinat they baithe confest the same. Burley gat his lyfe for telling the treuthe, bot Logie, being a great courtiour with the King, and dealler with the erle Bothuell, in Bothuellis interpryse quhilk fould bein done at Dalkeithe, to wit, that they fould come in at the back yet throw the yeard, and gottin the King in thair handis, the said laird of Logie wes ordeanit to be tryed be ane affyse, and execut to the dead. Bot the same nycht that he wes examinat, he escapit out be the meanis of a gentlevoman quhom he loved, a Dence, quho conuoyed him out of his keiperis handis throw the Queinis chalmer, quhaire his Majestie and the Queine wer lyand in thair beddis, till a wyndow in the backfyde of the plaice, quhair he gead down vpon a tow; and schot thrie pistoletis in takin of his onloving, quhaire sum of his seruandis with the laird of Nithrie wer awating him.

Vpon the xv day of August 1592, the lord of Spynie wes accusit of the refet and intercommuning with the erle Bothuell, be crownall Steuart befor the King and counfall. Quhilk being denyed, efter mony attestatiounis and offer of the combat, the said crownnar offerit to prove, be witneffe and fundrie vtheris circumstances, vpone the xxix day of the famyn monethe, affienit to that effect. The lord Spynie wes committed to ward in Sterling castle, and the crounar in Blacknes in the meantym, quhair he had beine of befoir, as suspect giltie of Falkland read. The day hafing come, the crounar refusit to vse any witnesfes or circumstances, alledging that it mycht be preiudiciall to the cause, for they mycht be flayne or fubornit, and declaired that he wald vse his witneffe at the day of tryell; quhilk the counfell thocht expedient, and set a day to that effect, the xij of September nixt, and in the meanetyme wardit. Vpone the v of September, Airdrie and captane Hackertoun, associates of the erle Bothuell, wer bathe teane in Leithe be the maister of Glamis and fir James Sandelandis.

In the meanetyme the chancellor fled of court, and durst not remayne thairat be reffone of the illwill [of] the diuk of Lennox. The erle of Ergyle, erle of Mar, maister of Glamis remanit about his Majestie at Dalkeithe. The diuk quarrellit the chancellor for vsing sum tanting wordis. The court at this tyme beguid to mislyk the chancellor and Lyndfais that buir court of befoir.

* It wes aggreet betuix [the diuk] and Seffuird, that Patrik Murray feruand to the King fould leid the teindis; fa the diuk returnit. They had ane vther purpoife, to wit the taking and bringing in of Fernihearft, Hunthill, and certane vtheris bordourmen, suspect of the reset of the erle of Bothuell; bot not finding the tyme fit, and hearing that they wer gathered, they left, and returnit home. The purpois of the vplifting of the teindis of Kelfo and Sprouiftoun wes refusit be all men. Then the Kingis Majestie pressed the lord Ochiltrie thairwith, quho freelie vndertuik the famyn; quhairvpone theare wes fiftie horsmen givin him in pay, quhom the said lord payed monethlie, with the said rent of Sprovtoun and Kelfo, during all the tyme of his theare being. His Majestie lykwayis wes informed that Boduell had ane that conyeed fals conyee, in the houle of Row in Liddifdeall : vpon the quhilk information, his Majestie wreyt to the lord Vchiltrie, desyring him to go to the said houle, and to bring sick men to his Majestie as he fand theare, togither with all sick instrumentis as could be their had for conyeing, with pover to rease the haill countrie gif neid war. Quhairvpon immediatelie the said lord Vchiltrie gatherd to the number of levyn or aucht scoir horffe, all in armour, weill horfit, and red first to Jedburghe, quhair they staved that nicht, and refreschit him selff and his companie ; and Ferniheast his brother in law sent with him thrie scoir horffe vpon the morne at nicht, red to the houle of the Row at Liddifdeall, and theare tuik the twa men out of the houle besyde the toure, and thairefter strouk vp the duris of the toure, and brocht the ironnis that prented the conyie, with all the instrumentis, togither with ane number of xxx f. peices to the King, quhilk wer counyied theare, and delyverit the same to his Majestie in the Abbay. The fals conyier wes gone in England, and wes not to be had ; to feik metle to counyie moir, as wes reported.

Vpon the tuelt day of September, prefixit to my lord Spyny to abyd affyse for the treasoun quhair of Crounar Steuart accusit him, the maiter wes continowit, and nothing doune till the xiiij day, quhilk wes also continowit, and his Majestie promitted to have the witnesse rady aganis the thrid of October. At this tyme a rayd wes proclamit to be at Jedburghe, the xxv of September, for taking of the border barronis refetteris of Bothuell, to the quhilk ane great number of scherefdomes wes warnit. The saidis personis being charged to compeir diffobeyit, and past to the horne. The erle of Bothuell come to Haick, accompanied with thrie or four hundreth brokin men of the Grahames of Ask and vtheris, to meit the King of purpois command to Jedburghe : and the King wes stayed hearing heirof, becaufe they repared not fa soone as they wer warnit to the King.

In the meanetyme Fernieheart come in to Dalkeathe to the King vpone his knees, and cravit pardoun. He gat sick anfuer as he luikit not for ; alwayis it wes deliberat that his lyfe and landis fould be faife : quho come in thairefter, wes wardit in the castle of Edinburgh, and the provest and bailyeis of Jedburghe beyond Forthe.

Theirefter his Majestie listed ane hoift of twa or thrie thovsand men, and come to Jedburghe, quhair his Majestie held court vpone the malefactouris and reletteris of the erle Bothuell, quhair he cooft down certane of thair houffes. The diuk at this tyme was maid keippar of Liddifdeal, and provest of Jedburghe, and in November thairefter, fundrie of the outlawis come in, and offerrit thame selffis in will.

Immediatlie heirefter the erle of Atholl past to Tarnoway, accompanied with fundrie of his freindis, viz. the lord Vchiltrie, Louit, M'Kuntosche, and quhat they with many vtheris could mak, of intencion to be reuendgit of the erle of Huntlie for the murthour of the erle of Murray : lykas M'Kunthosche vpone Straboggie land flew a great number thairefter. The King, for pacefeing this purpois, sent the erle of Angus as leiftenent to the northe, vpone the [xij] day of November 1592 ; and according to the Kingis directioun, caufit bathe the parteis subscryve ane assurance, bot of theare awin forme. They wer baithe commandit away ; the one pairtie to Dunkeld, the vther to Aberdein, to funder the pairteis. Bot immediatlie thairefter, theare wes slaughter maid be Allane M'Kildowie vpone M'Intosche men and frendis, and great hearfchip.

Vpone the thrid day of December 1592, captane James Steuart was brocht in to the Kingis Majestie, be his cheife my lord Vchiltrie, quho wes at that tyme in great credit with the King, be reffoune of fundrie guid proufes of feruice his Majestie had of him fra tyme to tyme of befoir, and speciallie aganis the erle Bothuell ; and gat prefence of the Kingis Majestie and wes weill reffavit, efter he had bein sevin yeiris or therby from court, evir sen the read of Sterling. Quhairat the ministeris cryed out and fand falt, because he had schewin him felse hard to the ministeris quhen he wes in court, and wes the persever of the erle of Mortoun at the King and counfallis command, according to a warrand granted theranent, as lykwayis of the erle of Govreis dead. The said lord Vchiltrie brocht him againe to the Kingis Majestie, quhom with he spak thereafter, and then past to the west countrie with the said lord Vchiltrie, quhair he had interteined him in his houe thereafter thrie yeiris, till the day of his deathe, quhilk wes the day of the yeir of God . Quho wes werie foully flayne be James Douglas of Torthoreall, of quhom he luikit for no herme : as it wes constantlie reportit, he wes stirred vp be sum about the King, fearing his incomming, bot chieflie remembring that he wes persever of the erle of Mortoun, quhilk he did at the Kingis command and counfalis. He wes flayne command to Vchiltrie from Hafelyde : quhaire of the lord Vchiltrie, being in court with the King, informit his Majestie ; the quhilk his hienes wes heichlie offendit at, and promisit to had hand, and sie that maiter repaired with all rigor, according to justice. Quhairvpone the lord Vchiltrie folowit furth that maiter befoir the iustice, and gat him to the horne for non compearance, and vfit all the meanis he could to have had the reuendge of that bloude.

About the beginning of Januar 1592, there wes ane Mr George Ker, brother to the lord Nevbotle, apprehendit in Cumray ile, as ane traffickin papist ; and letters of the Peapis and King of Spanyis gottin in ane fark sleive of ane marineris ; and he and they brocht to Edinburgh. There wer also apprehendit with him certane wreytis and missives, direct from the erles of Angus, Huntlie, Erroll and fundrie vtheris, with blank letters fubfcriyvit be thame, discovering theirin ane conspiracie aganis relligioun, the King and thair natiue countrie.

The erle of Angus, comming accidently to Edinburgh, wes teane and apprehendit be the fecreat counfall, and toun therof, and put in the castell in waird. The King hearing heirof come to Edinburgh in all heaft from Sterling, quhair he fend for ane great number of the nobilletie to tak ordour with this maiter.

And then fir Daurid Grahame of Fentrie and Mr George Ker wes brocht from Sterling, to the tolbuthe of Edinburgh. It wes thocht meit, becaufe of Mr George Keris denyell, that he fould be butted, and the iustice clerk and Mr William Hairte, being bofted be his freindis, durft not doe the same, vntill the tyme his Majestie taking the maiter hiechly, wold have the same donne. And efter the secund streak he cryed for mercie, and confest all, and declaired that the blankis fubfcriyvit be the erles of Huntlie, Angus, Arroll, Auchindovne [and] fir James Chiholme, fould bein caried to Spayne; and that ane Mr William Crichtoun of a Jefuite fould filled thame as he thocht guid to the King of Spayne. The commiffioun wes that xxx^m men fould land out of Spayne at the west feas, and be conuoyed to the noble men theare adherentis in at Carlelle, and fua furthe to Ingland, and that fyve thovfand Spayneyeardis fould be left in Scotland, quhilkis, with affiftance of the nobilletie, fould proclame libertie of confcience. In refpect of Mr Georges declaratioun of the treuthe, the King granted him his lyfe. The laird of Fentrie deponit the famyn, and therfoir wes execut.

About the first day of Februar 1592, the erle of Angus brak ward within the castle of Edinburgh, and paff north over to the rest of his adhearentis. There was a read proclomit toward the northe immediatly heirefter. His Majestie tuik jorney be Sterling and Perth, and wes in Aberdeen the xxij of the said monethe. The rebelis wer not feine, bot fugitiue to Caitnefe. The haill countrie men wer called in ; the blankis and vtheris ſchawin ; and a declaratioun maid of his Majeſteis comming in theſe pairtes. Cautioun wes fund of the barronis for the Kingis peace, ryſing and concurring with him quhen he pleaſit, and for all obedience. And a generall band ſubſcryvit be the King, his nobilletie and barronis, for ſtrait perſuit of the erles and vther foloveris with all rigor. The erle of Atholl wes maid commiſſioner within the boundis of Elgin, Forres, Nairne, Nes, Cromartie and all beyond Spay ; the erle of Merſchell from the north waiter to Spay.

At this tyme come in ane Ingliſche ambaffadour namit the lord Barroche. The commiſſioun wes, that, feing the King of Spayne had teane vp banner aganis England and Scotland for profeſſioun of the treuthe, it wald pleaſe his Majeſtie to denunce wear with him ; nixt that theſe that wer of the lait conſpiracie mycht be folowit with all rigor ; thridlie, that the league of amitie betuix the twa realmes mycht be reiterat.

To the quhilkis anſuer wes maid be fir Robert Melvill of Murdo-cairnie knicht theſaurer deput : To the firſt, that no occaſioun of wear wes offerrit, be reaſone that the haill ſubiectis of this realme had frie paſſadge and tread within Spayne ; and incaice he meanit to perfev England be landing of his men heir, he wald give pledges that theare ſould be no ſkeath donne : calling to mynd that theare wer many fair offeris maid of befoir to the King at thair laſt ſtrait, bot never a vord keipit. It wes anſuerit to the ſecound, that his Majeſtie, being a frie prince, wald tak na directioun from the Queine of England to uſe or not uſe his ſubiectis. And to the thrid, that theare wes no break and therfoir na reneving.

About the xj of Apryle 1593, the embaffadour departed homeward. It wes then concludit that fir Robert Melvill ſould be fend embaffadour, with a full reſolving anſuer to England.

At this tyme the diuk and lord of Spynie wes aggreet, and he with his brother put in thair owin plaices. Vpone the xxvij of Apryle, the Kingis Majestie, alledging he wes to hunt, read quicklie out of Haddingtoun to Leidingtoun to the chancellor, dynit with him, and conferred long, quhairat the counfall wes agaft.

Vpone the nynt of Junij 1593, fir Robert Melvill wes sent in England, with ane full refolutioun to the Queine, and for reffaving the Kingis annuell he had yeirlie out of England. The ministrie cryed alwayis out, and wer offendit at the ladie Huntlieis being in the Abbay, hir husband being ane of the speciall conspiratouris : at last the Kingis Majestie movit heir with, and at the defyre of Mr Bowes embaffadour, pat hir away.

The parliament began vpon the xiiij day of Julij 1593. The diuk of Lennox buir the croun, the erle of Ergyle the sceptour, and erle of Mortoun the fuord. The lordis of the articklis electit. Vpone the xxj day of Julij, the King red againe to the tolbuthe. The erle of Atholl being in the toun wald not ryd, becaufe his Majestie wald not condiscend to the erle of Huntleis forfaltour ; nor yit the lord Hamilton, being their also. And his Majestie caused mak offeris to be gevin in in the erle of Huntleis name and the conspiratouris, for satisfactioun of his Majestie and the kirk. This parliament wes litle thocht of, becaufe the erles wer not forfalted ; it wes maid a current parliament, and continowit to November nixt. In the meanetyme ane great number of perfonis wer flayne in Sanquhaire, and theare bloudie farkis brocht to the King.

Vpone the xxiiij day of Julij 1593, the erle Bothuell and Mr John Coluill, quho had bein thrie yeiris banifcht, come in, accompanied with the erle of Atholl, the lord Forbes, the lord Vchiltrie (quho joynt with thame for reuendge, and vpon promise to assist the reuendge of the erle of Murrays slauchter) to the number of twa or thrie hundreth men, to the abbay of Halyroudhoufe ; quhaire it wes reported that the faid erle and Mr John war brocht in be the lady Atholl, at the back yet of the faid abbay, betuix aucht and nine houris in the morning ; and at the Kingis ryfing, entered in his chalmer, quhaire his Majestie being putting on his clothes, the faid erle and Mr John fell down on thaire knees, and geve theare fuordis vpon the grund, craving mercie and pardoun moift humblie, quhilk his Majestie yeildit to. There wes vpon this practize the diuk of Lennox, the erle of Atholl, the lordis Vchiltrie, Forbes and Spynie, with fundrie vtheris bandit to the famyn purpois with the erle Bothuell. Theare wes ane great tumult in Edinburgh for this. They come all down in armis, and cryed to vnderstand the Kingis mynd, quho cryed out, and fayd that he wes not captiue, bot weill, incaice that quhilk wes promifit be thame fould be keiped ; and commandit thame all to the Abbay kirk yeard, to stay theare quhill he cald for thame ; and immediatly thairefter fent for the proveft and bailyeis, and commandit thame to diffolue and goe homeward ; he hovpit all fould be weill.

Schortlie heirefter the erle of Mar, maifter of Glamis, priour of Blantyre, with fundrie vtheris, reteired thame felfes as malecontentis of the toun. It wes thocht meit that Bothuell fould reteir him of the toun, quhill he wer tryed of the cryme of witchcraft layd to his charge ; and the tent of Auguft fet for that effect. The King red immediatlie thairefter to Falkland, accumpained with the diuk, the lord Vchiltrie and Spynie, and returnit to Edinburgh to the tent day of Auguft appoynted as faid is. At quhilk day the erle of Bothuell wes put to the knavledge of ane allyse, and purged be thame all in ane voce. Immediatlie heirefter the King being bound to Falkland wes stayed be the lordis, quhill it wes agreeet that his Majestie fould pas as a frie prince quhaire he plesit, and that the erle of Bothuell nor none of his confederatis fould come neir him without his licence ; and ficklyk that the chancellor, the erle of Mar and thair confederatis fould not repair to court, quhill the parliament appoynted the tent day of November. So as his Majestie departed weill content, promitting be his oathe and handwreyt to restoir the erle of Bothuell to his landis, and all his confederatis.

Word come that the King of France wes turnit papist, and then crounit at Pareife.

Theirefter at a conuentioun appoynted at Sterling, it wes concludit and agreeet be the King and nobilletie, that feing his Majestie wes not sufficientlie pleased to his honour, anent the erle of Bothuell for his double treafonis, theirfoir he and his foloveris fould come in theare prefence of new agayne, and crave pardoun on theare kneis, quhilk fould be granted, and thairefter that he fould reteir him selfe from court, to the tyme that the parliament fould hald, at quhilk tyme he and his fould be restoired; and then that he fould goe of the countrie, and remaine during his Majesties pleaseour. Quhairat the erle of Mar, my lord Home, fir George Home, maister of Glamis, the pryour of Blantyre and vtheris being glad, returnit to court, and war weill acceptit of. Sir Robert Meluill and Mr Robert Bruce wer sent to the erle Bothuell to signefie the conclusioun afoir said; quho attending theare comming at Linlithgow acceptit werie gladlie heirof, and promitted to performe the same to his Majesteis pleaseour. And this being declaired to the King be the afoirsaidis commiffioneris, his Majestie wes weill contented thairwith. Schortlie theirefter proclamatioun is maid that Bothuell fould not come neir the court, within ten myles, etc. And the flate stode sa at this tyme, that it wes feared that the papist lordis fould be reffavit in fauour againe: and on the vther fyde, all the ministry fauored the erle Bothuell, thinking him moift meit to be a chif-taine for the professouris, incaice they fand occasioun to come aganis the papistes.

The King remaining at Linlithgow to the day of October, in come the chancellor and young Ceffurd with twa or thrie hundrethe horffe to the King, and wer welcome. The gairde of fiftie horffe wer committed to my lord Home, quho wes aggreet with young Ceffurd, and the chancellor with the maister of Glamis.

His Majestie being forseine at this tyme of a conuentioun and conuocatioun to have bein maid be the erle of Atholl at the castell of Doun, reafe, accompanied with fundrie erles and lordis, and first send chairges, nixt folowit himselff, for staving of this purpois, and wes of mynd to have the erle of Atholl slayne. He wes accompanied with the erles of Montroise and Govrie: bot he vponne intelligence had afoir past away and escapit; the erles of Montrois and Govrie abed his Majestie coming to Doune, and wer hardlie perfevit be the Kingis companie, and in perrell to haue beine slayne, had not the lord Hammilton stayed the maiter, and that the gaird had not chance to forgather with thame, hasing gone ane vther way to Dovne. The erle of Montrois come in himselfe, efter the lord Hammiltoun had sayd to the King that the noblemen had not offendit, bot wer anfuerable. The said erle vttered hard termes to his Majestie, in that he wes so perfevit, and sa vsed. Sua his Majestie returnit to Linlithgow.

All this tyme the papist lordis wer lyand about the court, within thrie or four myles, and had daylie purpoisse with the courtiouris. Chancellor Maitland depairted to Teuiotdeall, with proclamationis to reafe all the countrie aganis my lord Bothuell. A conuentioun wes appoynted to be at Perth, quhair the erles of Huntlie, Angus and Errol wes ordeanit to be tryed, quhair they had ane allyse of theare awin chosing.

A new proclamatioun that all betuix sextie and sexteine within all the fouthe schyres sould ryse, and meit his Majestie in going to the bordouris, aganis the xij of October. And his Majestie passand foruard that day, the erles conspiratouris come all and met his Majestie at Fallow kirk, a litle on this fyde of Soutray hill, and falling on thaire knees craved pardoun; his Majestie seemed not to ken thame till the day appoynted, and that the ministrie war pleased; quhairvpon they departed back againe. His Majestie sent the lord Lundoris and maister of Glamis to tell the ministrie of theare comming in maner foirsaid, and of his ansuer; quhairof the ministrie mislyked, and bad his Majestie be doand, quhilk Lendoris reported to the King. The effect of this read wes to appoynt ane provest of Jedburgh, and keipper of Liddifdeall, and to call in Ferniheast, Hunthill and vtheris the erle of Bothuellis fauourouris, vnder sick heiche paines, etc. :

Theare wes ane assemblie of the ministrie at Edinburgh, quhair the barronis conuenit with thame vpon the xvij day. The commissiouneris of the kirk, barrounis and burgesse, being conuenit in the Litle kirk of Edinburgh, and forseand the present denger, quhairinto the kirk within the realme, the Kingis perfoun, his estait and hail commoun weill stood into, send the personis folowing in commissioun to his Majestie, viz. the laerdis of Calderwood and young Merchistoun for the barronis, the commissiouneris of Edinburgh, Dundie and Perth, Mr Patrik Galloway and Mr James Melving ministeris, with artickelis folowing: To desyre that the tryell of the lordis conspiratouris sould not be heastie, bot delayit to sick tyme that all the professouris of the gospell wer rypelie advyfit quhat wes meiteft in that maiter, they being thair pairtie and accusoris: Item, it is cravit that thir appostat conspiratouris, being accusit of the heicheft treafoun committed, may be put in sum fuir waird, till ordour be teane with all the papistis quhairof they are the head, and till the estaitis advyfe forder quhat maner of tryell falbe vsit aganis thame. Item, it is desired that the estaites being advyfit as said is, the pairtie accuseris have the electioun of thaire affyfe, and not thame felfes as is pretendit. Item, it is cravit, that feing they ar excommunicat, that they be not admitted to have persone in judgement, nor benefit of the law, quhill they be joynit vnto Chryft, according to the lawis of the countrie and his Majesteis awin promeis. Item, gif his Majestie will not alter the day, (as they doubt not bot he will) then they crave that, as his Majestie professes relligioun with thame, and the saidis conspiratouris the contrair, they that be professouris of relligioun may be his Majesteis gaird, and that they be admitted in the moift sensible and wearilyk maner to be about his Majestie, to defend his persone from theare violence, and to accuse thame to the vttermoist; quhilk they ar myndit to doe, and it fould be with the loife of all thaire lyfes on ane day, for certanely they ar determinat that the countrey fall not bruik thame bathe, sa lang as they ar Godis profest enemeis. The King tuik this in werie euill pairt at the beginning, sayand he wald not acknawledge sikk commissiouneris, that had conuenit thame selves befyd his priuetie or commissioun. Always he sayd he fould continew that dyet, bot wald not let thame ken to quhat tyme or plaice. Yit sensyne his Majestie resolutit to hald that tryell at Linlithgow, vpon the xxix day of October instant, and hes of new wreyttin to the nobilletie and estaite for that effect.

At this conuentioun haldin at Linlithgow, the ordouring of maiteris, and satling of the estaite to the fuirtie of relligioun and his Majesteis persone, with the tranquilletie of the estait, in respect theare conuenit not sikk a number of noble men, and vtheris as wer wreyttin for, wes remitted to sex of evrie estaite with sex ministeris, quhilkis fould confer, and give in sikk headis and artickelis as they wold be at, and then to meit at Edinburgh vpon the xij of November 1593. Quhairvpon commissioun wes granted to thame be act of counfall, to tak tryell in that maiter anent the erle of Huntlie, Angus and Erroll, withe the vther haill thingis in disordour and confusioun within the realme, quhilk is declaired to be als wald and effectual as ane assyse or court of parliament.

About this tyme ane great truble fell out betuix the lord Maxwell and the laird of Johnstoun.

Proclamationis wes maid that the perfonis refetting the faidis erles in thair houffe fould incur no cryme; and this wes to the effect they nicht remaine neir Edinburgh, quhair the commiffioneris and eftaites mycht the better intercommoun with thame. At this xij of November, the noble men wreyttin for come not, and fua the eftaitis that come choufit out certane, as it wer twa of evrie eftaite with fum of the offe-faris of eftait, to wifie fick headis as wer to be reffonit on, and to repourt the famyn to the haill number foirfaid, quhilk fould conueine againe vpon the xix of November; lyk as they wer wreyttin for againe to that effect. Vpon the faid xix day, the famyn eftaitis convenit again as for the laft tyme and dyet, quhilkis war thir chofin be reffoun na vtheris wold come; to wit, the diuk of Lennox, erle of Mar, the chancellor and lord Leivingftoun for that eftait; the lairdis of Bafe, Baleary, Abbitthall, Tullibardin and Airthe for the barronis; the commiffioneris of Edinburgh, Dundie, Sterling, Linlithgow and Couper in Fyfe. Twa or thrie of the miniftrie wer alfo prefent, quhilkis wald nather reffone nor woit in thefe thingis proponit, bot onlie cravit ane anfuer to fick thingis as they had givin in in artickles.

The King thocht it meit for the quyetnes of the eftaite, that ane act of abolitioun fould be granted to the thrie erles, Achindovn, and fir James Chifholme, for all thingis attemptit aganis relligioun, fpeciallie the fubfcryving of the blankis afoir fpecifeit, and vtheris thingis contenit in the fummondis of forfaltour intentit aganis thame of befoir; quhilk act of abolitioun wes defyrit to be granted with fum conditionis, that is to fay, that they fould firft fatiffie the kirk and miniftrie, betuix and the firft day of Februar nixt, and that they fould be fummond thairto afoir thair ordinar prefbitreis or finodall affembleis, aganis fum day within that tyme, to give the confeffioun of thair faithe, fubfcryve the artikelis of relligioun, and folow the difciplin of the kirk in all thingis; and gif they refusit, to be expellit the countrey, and not to inioy the benefit of the said act. Sum vther particular iniunctionis wer givin, and caution ordeanit to be fund vnder great foumes, for obseruing of the same. Lykas also, gif they attemptit any thing againe aganis relligioun or the estait of the countrey, of theare awin confessioun and consent fould [be] demein it as traitouris without forder proces. This wes thocht meit be the saidis estaitis, chofen and ordeanit to be send to the saidis erles, to vnderstand gif they wold accept of this conclusioun or not. The minifterie present protestit aganis the said act of abolitioun, and diffassentit fra the samyn; lykas they cryed out aganis the said act, with all that wes donne at this conuentioun.

At this tyme the erle Bothuell wes ordinit to be denuncit to the horne, for non compareance befor the King and counfall; and yit the horning wes stayed, and he in the meanetyme chairged to depairt out of Scotland, England and Irland, within xv dayis, and thairefter to mak suit for ony thing he would be at.

Vpone the last day of November, theare wes a great fearfing maid of the erle Bothuell within Edinburgh, and sum of his faouureris teane and wardit, to wit Mr John Ruffell aduocat, and Robert Steuart scherefclerk; they wer first wardit within the toun, and then transported to the castell. Theare falt wes the refet of Mr John Colvill and the erle Bothuell; bot the speciall thing they challengit Mr John Ruffell for wes the lybelling of the fummondis of reductioun to the erle Bothuell of his forfaltour. Thir twa wes fred within twa or thrie or four dayis thairefter, for the quhilk the said Mr Johne payed tuelff hundrethe pundis, and the vther vj^c pundis to the interteinment of the Kingis gaird, to the great mislyking of many.

Vpone the sext day of December 1593, the lord Maxwell warden of the west marches, hasing conuenit twa thovsand men or thairby in armes, quhilkis war lyand in Annandeall beyd Lokarbie, of intentioun to have affedgit the laird of Johnstons house of the Lochwood, and to have rooted out him and the memorie of his name in these boundis, according to the Kingis commiffioun granted vnto him for that effect; for the Kingis Majestie buir ane euill will toward the laird of Johnstoun, for that he fauored the erle Bothuell, and assisted him with sum of his men at the read of Falkland, and als because he brack waird out of the castell of Edinburgh. Lykwayis theare wes a band past betuix the said lord Maxwell and the laird of Drumlenrick, Closburne and vtheris, the said laird of Johnstonis deadlie enemeis. It fell out sua that Johnstoun in the meanetyme, presenting himselff withe fourtie horsmen in companie, in the sicht of the lord Maxwell and his great hoast, sum skurrouris of the lord Maxwellis to the number iiij^{xx} wer send out to persev him and his number, quha taking the cheafe, had ane ambuschment of men, to the number of iij or iiij^c, lyand darnit in a wood; besyd of the quhilk number, theare wes a great pairt of the lord Balcleuches frindis quha brak, and layd the cheafe againe vpon the lord Maxwellis scurriouris, and folowit thame directly and mist hardlie, quhill they come on the great oast, quho seing theare men cheassit, tuik affray and fled altogither. And sua the lord Maxwell, being in sicht lykwayis with sum few of his frindis that bead with him, being vnarmit as thocht he regairded not his enemie, the laird of Johnstoun and sum of his owin name come to him, and the laird of Johnstoun as wes reported geve him the first strek him selfe; and sua the lord Maxwell efter he fell from his horse wes cruelly slayne, with fundrie vtheris of his speciall kyn and freindis; sua sum wer also drounit, and sum war teane and slayne in the cheafe. The laird of Drumlenrick and Closburne, Bovrge, Hempffeild and fundrie vtheris barronis of Nidfdeall, being in the lord Maxwellis companie, eschapit werie hardlie with thaire lyfes. This wes esteimit ane strenge and vnkouth thing, that in sick a confliet quhaire thair wes ij^m men, that four hundrethe sould put thame to sicht.

Vpone the xj day of December 1593, the said erle Bothuell, the laird of Spot and Mr John Colwill wer denuncit to the horne, for non compearance afoir his Majestie and counfall, to have anfuert vpone maist heiche trefoun. Vpone the same day it fortunit fir Robert Ker younger of Seffuird, accompanied onlie with one of his awin seruandis called Rutherford, to pas out of Edinburgh homeward to his wyfe quyetlie, quhilkis, in the way of plaine accident, forgathered with the erle Bothuell and ane Gibfoun with him, besyd Humbie on this syde of Soutray hill; quheare meiting twa for twa, they focht allong tyme on horsback, quhair the laird of Seffuirdis man wes hurt in the cheick, and at lenthe beathe the parteis so weiried with long fechtung, quhill they affentit baithe to let vtheris depairt and ryd away for that tyme. Ceffuird come back to Edinburgh, and tald the Kingis Majestie of that accident.

At this tyme letters wer sent out, for chairging sick perfonis as accompanied the erle Bothuell at his last incomming to the Abbay, to compear befor his Majestie and counfell at a certane day. Lykas the erle Bothuellis affisteris and fauoraris wer concludit to be put at with all extremitie, and his house of Crichtoun and Ferniheast ordeanit to be rasit and castin doun. The same xj day of December, theare come in ane Inglischeman namit fir Robert Karie, fone to the lord Hunifdeane, quho had no commiffioun bot come to pas his tyme.

At this tyme the nobilletie and estaites wer wreyttin for to a conuention, for ordour taking anent the baptisme of the prince or princes, and the Queinis Majesteis lyand in cheildbedlear; quhilkis nobilletie and estaitis sould be heir the xj day of Januar nixt to that effect. Immediatlie heirefter it wes concludit that hir Majestie sould ly in Sterling castell; quhairinto scho sould repair vpone the xxvij day of December instant. Sua vpone the xxvij day of December 1593, the King and Quenis Majesteis baithe tuik jorney vnto Sterling, and wer the first nicht in Linlithgow be the way; and at thair comming to Sterling ludgit in the erle of Ergyles houfe theare, and fra that in the lady Maris ludging, quhill the castell wes prepared, quhilk wes than in doing.

Vpone the vij day of Januar 1593, the King past from Sterling to Tullibardin, quhair he remanit a nicht and come back to Sterling. Vpone the xxvij day of the same monethe, theare come in ane embassadour called my lord Suitche, quha gat prefence of the King in Edinburgh vpon Sunday the xij day of Januar 1593; his commissioun wes anent the perfuit of the papist lordis.

The nynt of Januar, the King come out of Sterling to the conuentioun, and vpon the morne come to Edinburgh, being the x day. Theare come werie few of the nobilletie or estaites to that conuentioun. The names of thame that war present folowis; to wit, the diuk of Lennox, my lord Hammiltoun, the erle of Mar, the lord Lyndfay, Leivingstoun, Settoun and Forbes, with a few number of barronis, and sum of the burrovis. It wes concludit at this conuentioun, that in respect the papist lordis had refusit to embrace the act of abolitioun, and keipit not the dyetis appoynted for satisfactioun of the kirk, and depairting of the country, that the said act of abolitioun fould be null and declaired ineffectuall, and that ane parliament fould be proclamit to the xxij day of Apryle nixt, and they summond to abyde tryell of theare conspiraceis, and gif they failyeid in compearance to be forfalded. In the meanetyme his Majestie ellectit ane counsell of the nobilletie present, to quhais judgement and deliberatioun he promittit to stand in all his actionis, laying vpon thame the ordouring and manadging of all his effaires, and the quyeting of all the difordoured estait: quho geve ordour in Edinburgh, sittand in counfall dayly, that the saidis papist erles fould be charged to ward in his Majesteis castelis within ten dayis, vnder the paine of trefoun. The same lordis wer charged accordingle as folowes, viz. the erle of Huntlie in the castell of St Androis, the erle of Angus in the castell of Edinburgh, and the erle of Arroll in the castell of Glasgow, within ten dayis, vnder the paine of treafoun, as the letters buir. Quhilk chaarge they diflobeyit, and fua declaired to have incurrit the paine of treafoun, according to the certificatioun of the letters. The Ingliſche embaffadour vpon the directioun of the ſaid chaarge paſt to Sterling, quhair he remanit xij or xiiij dayis, to ſie quhat folowit vpon the ſaidis charges, and quhat his Majeſtie did for the perfecutioun of the ſaidis papift lordis.

Vpon the nyntein day of Februar, betuix twa and thrie houris in the morning, the Queinis Majeſtie wes delyverit of a young prince, within the caſtell of Sterling in his Majeſteis chalmere theare; quhilk wes a great comfort and maiter of joy to the haill pepill, and movit thame to great triumphe, wantonnes and play, for beanefires wer ſet out, and dancing and playing vſit in all pairtes, as gif the pepill had bein daft for mirthe.

At this tyme the lord Vchiltrie read to the Lochwood, and eſter conference with Johnſtoun theare, quho had ſuorne and promiſt to him to concur as ane of the freindis in the reuendg of the ſlauchter of the erle of Murray, they baithe read forduard that nicht to the Benſchaw, quheare the erle Bothuell and laird of Spot met thame vpon the morne. And theare they all ſubſcryvit ane band, to go forduard in the perſuit of Huntley for the ſaid ſlauchter; and ſuear to go forduard to the reuendge of the ſame, at all occaſionis and with all diligence. Lykas it wes promiſt and appoynted amangis thame and theare haill freindis to that effect; that they ſould meit in Dalkeath, ſecund of Apryle 1594 folowing, and go over to Perth [to] the reſt of thair freindis; ſick as the erle of Atholl, the erle of Montrois, with theare haill freindſchipis, ſould meit and go forduard vpon Huntlie.

The lord Suitche embaffadour could not be content with his anſuer that he reſſavit at Sterling; bot returning to Edinburgh remanit theare ane guid ſpace thairefter, evir renewing his propoſitionis, and ſeikand forder anfuere, quhill at laft fum headis wer givin him in wreyt, to be fend to the Queine his fouerane, to be advyfit with and anfuereit; quhairvpon he departed notwithstanding malcontent, vpon the vj of Apryle airlie in the morning.

Vpon the penult day of Merche, the Kingis Majestie come out of Sterling to Edinburgh, vpon ane informatioun sent to his Majestie be chancellor Maitland and fum of the erle Bothuellis vnfreindis, that buir that Bothuellis intentioun wes comming with a force towards Edinburgh; quhairvpon his Majestie came thither, and ludgit within the toun in Robert Govrlayis ludging. In this meanetyme the King being informit that Bothuell, my lord Vchiltrie, and the laird of Johnstoun and theare haill freindis war to meit at Dalkeathe the secund of Apryle, according to ane band fet down at the Lochwood, caufit trauell with Johnstoun to draw him fra that focietie and purpois; and sua granted him a remiffioun for the slauchter of the lord Maxwell, to leave of that course. Quhairvpon the laird of Johnstoun read back to Annerdeall with his haill fréindis, and met not the erle Bothuell and lord Vchiltrie at Dalkeathe, according to his band and promeis.

Vpon the first day of Apryle 1594 at nicht, the erle of Bothuell come out of England, accompanied with iiij^c horfemen weil armit, to the toun of Kelfo, out of the quhilk the lord Home, Balcleuche and Ceffuird had immediatlie befoir departed with a force of ane thovsand men, quhilkis they had conuenit at his Majesteis command, for perfuit of the said erle Bothuell, and quhilkis they had separat for that nicht, feing they saw na appearance of Bothuell comming theare. About thrie houris vpon the morne in the morning the secund day of Apryle, as it had beine reported for fuirtie afoir, the said erle of Bothuell come at nyne houris out of Kelfo, and lichtet in Dalkeithe about fyve houris at ewin, quheare the lord Vchiltrie met him theare, with tuelff fcoir tryed men on horfback, all with hagbutis, pistoletis, jakis and steil bonnetis in guid accippedge. They refrescht thame felfes and thair company in Dalkeithe thrie or four houris, and then past vnder nicht to Leithe, staved theare with theare companie till about ten houris in the morning, ever expecting for boites to transport thame over the waite; bot that wes staved be a command that wes givin to stay all boytes on the yonder fyde, and tak theare sailes and rutheris from thame, quhilk wes donne that theare could na boit mak sayle, nather at Kingorne nor the Queinis ferrie. Quhair of they being informit that wes in Leithe resoluit to have gone back, and awated sum vther occasiounis for that purpos, or elis to have gone sum vther way over the water. [They] pat thame felfes in ordour in four troupes, vpon the green on the southe fyde of Leithe forganis the wind mylne, quhilk wes about ten houris afoir nounge quhen they come furthe or thairby; befoir quhilk tyme his Majestie had caufit bring sum peices out of the castell, and planted thame abone the Lipperhouse, quhair the heall toun of Edinburgh wer comming out with theare handfeyeis in all dilligence. The lord Bothuell, quhois companie wes appoynted theare thair steall, and the lord Vchiltrie and his companie the wan gaird, went theare way in ordour and guid rank throw Lesterrick, bot with ane litle paise into Diddistoun, purpoillie to draw the lord Home and his companie from his Majestie, the toun of Edinburgh and haill futmen: and to that effect went forduard verie flaelie, quhill they come to the hill beyond Nithrie called Edmestoun eadge, on the east pairte thairof, and staved at the back of the hill. The gaird and the lord Homes companie, thinking that they wer gone away, folowit moir rashlie nor wyfelie. The lord Vchiltrie and his companie, rancountering thame with ane vther companie of Liddefdeall men that folowit efter him, givand thame the charge, put the gaird and lord Homes companie all to flicht, tuik xxx or xl of thame, and hurt some; and sua departed without forder persuit, and immediatlie send back the priffoneris againe. The lord Homes companie racknit viij^c men or therby, together with the gaird, being fiftie tryed men, the laird of Weymis, Carmichell, James Gray, Richard Prestoun, my lord Halyroudhouse with fundrie and dyverse gentlemen of court, to the number of iiij^{xx} perfonis or therby. The lord Bothuell efter the chaarge was given comming forduard, his horfe fell and strouk his choulder bleed out of lithe; fua his companie that wer iij^c and fum mea stayed all with him quhill all wes donne. And they, lord Vchiltrie and his company comming back, met the erle Bothuell at the toun of Nithrie; efter they had called for all theare men, and seine that nane wes missing, they went forduard to Dalkeathe, quhaire they remanit a pairt of that nicht, theare refrescht thame selfes and theare horffes, and fra that past the hie way to Kelfo. The greatestt pairte of the companie went thither; bot the erle of Bothuell and the lord Vchiltrie, be reffoun of the paine of his choulder, stayed that nicht at Langhermestounes houfe beyond Sovtray. And vpon the morne airlie went to Kelfo, quhaire they remainit ane vther nicht, and separat thame selfes and past to Inghland.

Efter this his Majestie remanit fum dayis in Edinburgh, in dispesche of the lord Suitche the Inglishe embassadour, quho, notwithstanding of all the fair offeris maid be his Majestie to persev the papist lordis, depairted male content. Always he reffavit his Majesties anfuer, in fum headis and artickelis to be sein be the Queine. Quhilkis in effect wer, that his Majestie mycht have hir concurrence and support of money, to the fortherance of that actioun of perfuite of the papist lordis be way of deid; and that for eschewing of Bothuelis perfuit in these pairtis quhair his Majestie wes not, in the vther actioun for the hendering therof, Boduell mycht be delyverit ather in his Majesteis handis according to the treateise, or vther wayis put out of the Quenis dominionis, or restrainit fra trubling of his Majesteis guid subiectis, and hendering of his Majesteis intentioun to persev the saidis papist lordis.

Heirvpon proclamatioun wes maid, commanding all his Majesteis subiectis beyond Forthe to meit him in Dundie vpon the xxix day of Apryle instant.

Immediatlie efter the depairtour of the Inglishe embaffadour, his Majestie dispefcht Ester Weymis and Mr Eduard Bruce in embafadge tovardis Ingland and France, to inuite the Queine of Ingland and King of France to the baptifme of the Prince, and to assure the Queine of his Majesteis perfeuerence in foloving furthe the headis sent be my lord Suitche; as also to deall with hir Majestie in sum vther effairis concerning the weill of baithe the estaites. Mr Eduard Bruce wes appoynted to return with hir Majesteis anfuer, and the vther to pas to France.

His Majestie come from Sterling to Edinburgh, quhair he appoynted preparatioun for the northland read, to be concludit in ane conuentioun than to folow and hald there.

At this tyme word wes of Bothuelis incomming out of Ingland with greatter force then afoir. The estaitis conveinand with his Majestie in the Nether tolbuthe, thocht it meit with advyse of sum of the ministrie there present, that first his Majestie fould have ane parliament for proceeding to the forfaltour of the papist lordis; then that they fould be perfeit be way of deid; and sua the read stayed. The erle of Atholl and lord Forbes wer chargit to compeir befoir the King and counfall that day, for trafficking with Bothuell, bot they compearit nocht, and sua wer denunciit to the horne for not compearance.

In the beginning of Maij, embaffadouris war sent out of Scotland to Denmerk, Almanye, the Law countreis; that is to say, Mr Peter Young to Denmerk, [and to] the diukis of Bruinwick and Mikleburghe, and fir William Keath with Mr William Murray to the Law countreis, to invite thame to the baptifme. The chappel royall of Sterling wes teane down, and ordourit of new againe, with fundrie vtheris houffis for the baptifme. The parliament haldin; the erles of Huntlie, Angus and Errol wer forfeald; M'Kleann, M'Conniell, Donald Gorme and fundrie vtheris alfo forfeald. The xv day of Auguft wes appoynted for the baptifme, to the quhilk all the nobilletie, barronis and gentlemen wer invited to be prefent.

About the tent or xij of Julij, Mr James Gordoun father brother to the erle of Huntlie, a jefuite, arryvit at Aberdeen, or within thrie myles therto, with fum vther jefuites and papiftis with him; he him felff with twa or thrie ftart out of the fchip in the nicht, with theare packettis and vtheris thingis they brocht with thame. Vpone the morne thereafter the toun of Aberdeen apprehendit in that fchip twa Inglifchmen, with ane that called him felfe a Fleemyng, quhom they fupponit to bein a Spayneard, and tuik thame and pat thame in waird. The erles of Angus and Erroll hearing of this, come accompaied with fevin or viij^{xx} horffes, and craued the delyverie of thefe men committed in waird, or elis awowit to burne the toun. Quhilk they refufit, bot the erle of Huntlie command with a greater force nor the toun could withftand, they wer forcit to delyver thame to him within a day or twa thereafter. Quhilk command to the Kingis knavledge, it wes thocht beft that he fould pas in perfone him felffe with his fubiectis forduard againft the erles againe, the xxvj of Auguft nixt; and in the meane tyme geve commiffioun to the erles of Ergyle, Atholl, Forbes and vtheris to pas vpon thame, and hald thame doand with fyre and fuord to his theare comming.

The baptifme continovit to the firft day of September, and the bancket beguid than that famyn day; bot becaufe the Ingliſche embaffadour wes not come in to the feird day at ewin, the folemne day wes continovit to the vj day, being ane Fryday. Quhilk day all thingis being maid radie, the Prince wes caried from his chalmer to the Chappell royall be the erle of Suffox and Mr Bowis, embaffadouris for the Queine of England. The fermoun maid be Mr Patrik Galloway, quhilk being finifchit, the baptifine wes maid be Mr David Cunynghame bifchop of Aberdeen, quho efter the actioun maid ane oratioun in latine. The embaffadouris of Denmerk and Almanyie tuik leiff from his Majestie, being propynit with goldin chenyeis, imbarkit at Leithe four or fyve dayis efterhend; and the Flemifche and Inglifche in lyk manner. The ritcheft propyne wes reffavit fra the Flemingis, wes worthe xij^m and iiij^c lib. together with v^m leiveris yeirlie to the prence. The Inglifche embaffadouris propyne wes a cupboord ritichly wrocht.

About the xv of September 1594, fure word come to his Majestie that Bothuell wes joynit with the papift lordis Huntlie, Angus and Erroll, quho levyed fum wadgit men for profecutioun of thair wicket courfes. His Majestie then refolued to hald the read forduard, lifted j^m men of wear be help of his Majesteis burrowis, and be fum filuer advancit to his Majestie vpon pledges. The haill cuntrey being vnder the proclamatioun, fum wer licenciat to byd at home be reffoun of thair compositionis bestowit vpon payment of the fuddardis, quhair of thaire wes iiij^c horfmen and vj^c futemen. The erle of Ergyle his Majesteis leiftennent with his force, being fex or fevin thovfand men, command forduard tuik jorney to the northe vpon the xxvij of September 1594, paff in throw Badenioche, affedgit the erle of Huntleyis houfe of Ruthuen theare. My lord Forbes conuenit alfo his number of xj^c men, awaiting vpon the erle of Ergyles incomming; and at this tyme the erle of Huntlie and Erroll with theare force convenit at Elgyn, to the number of xv or xvj^c men.

In the meane tyme certane is teane for intercomoning with Bothuell, as namelie James Cochran, Mr Allane Orme, Willie Allane in Leithe and ane John Gibfoun, all execute; John Bartane, his wyfe, young Anftrether, his wyfe apprehendit and wardit.

The King vpon the ferd of October past with his forces forduard to Sterling, myndit to go forduard according to the proclamatioun. Vpone the same day being the feird of October, the erle of Ergyle his force and Huntlie and Errolis met at ane hill fyd called Glenleivat, a little beyonde the plaice of Auchindoun, Ergyle the leiftennentis force being vij or viij^c men, and Huntlie and Errollis being xv or xiiij^c men. The chairage wes first givin be v^c horse of Huntleis company, and thairefter backet be him selfe and the rest of his armie, quhilk wes rancountered be the leiftennentis wangaird. And in that conflict iij^c or iiij^c horse wer slayne to Huntleis companie, befyd xx or xxiiij of his kyn and name, namelie Achindoun, etc. The erle of Erroll fshot in the leg with ane arrow, and evill hurt vtherwayis, and ane great number of his companie. Ergyles companie tuik the flicht notwithstanding, and theare wes iiij^c or therby slayne, speciallie Lochinyell and his brother.

The Kingis Majestie come to Aberdein with his armie about the xv day of October; and the erle of Ergyle come to his Majestie at Dundie vpon the aucht day, with twa and him selfe, the wether being werie greiuous and vehement. The haill papist earles keipit thame selfes quyete all that tyme the King wes in Aberdein, and na intelligence could be had of thame. At that tyme the barronis and vtheris gentlemen quho wer with the saidis earles wer hardlie persevit, theare escheatis difponit, and cautioun teane that naine vtheris fould reset ather the erles or thair complices. The houffe of Straboggie and Slaynis, with the Nevtoun a gallant houffe, wer distroyed and dimolifchit, and the King red theare to that effect in propper persone.

His Majestie remainit at Aberdein v or vj weekis, and departing for fkearfetie of wiueris left behind him the diuk of Lennox leiftennent, togither with his counfall and barronis to assist him, and ane hundrethe wadgit horfimen and ane hundrethe futemen to attend him, befyd the countrie appoynted to attend him continuallie. His Majestie, this being donne, and caution being fund be certane barronis for keiping guid ordour, departed to the castle of Dynnotter the xj of November. The diuk stayed and tuik ordour with the hail complayntis of the countrie: and then vpon intelligence that the erle Bothuell wes with the papist erles in Elgyn, he tuik jorney therto; quhaire they wer funderit and diffoluit, and na forder donne theirat. He gat guid obedience, and efter fum courtis haldin theare, returnit to Aberdein againe, quhair he also held courtes, and delt with the erles for leasung the countrie; he stayed to the xij of Februar or theareby.

About this tyme thir thrie erles, Angus, Huntlie and Erroll, met with Bothuell quyetlie at the kirk of Memmure in Angus, and set down the headis of ane band amangis thame, the headis quhair of as they wer contenit in ane ticket, his Majestie gat thame subscriyvit all vnder thaire handis fra the laird of Balwerie, quho wes in companie with thame theare.

His Majestie had ever great fauor and lyking of the lord Vchiltrie, and vsit all meanis and occasionis to perfuoid and draw the said lord fra the erle of Bothuelis companie; and thinking that the erle of Bothuelis meiting with Huntlie and banding with him, fould be ane cheife occasion to move the said lord to leave Bothuell, his Majestie caufit fir Roger Astoun, quho had married a sifter of the said lordis, and Mr Patrik Galloway his Majesties cheif minister to wreyt vnto the lord Vchiltrie, and caufit fend the double of the band vnto him, desyring that the said lord wald come to some pairt besyd Edinburgh, or to the toun of Edinburgh, quhaire he fould be in fuirtie till they fould bring the principall band and let him sie it. Lykas his Majestie wes maist willing to pardoun him all bygeanis, and all those that folowit him, vpon condition that he fould not medle nor enter in companie with the said erle Bothuell at ony tyme thereafter, nor nane of the papist erles, bot be his Majesties permiffioun and knawledge. Efter the reseat of the said letters and copie of the band, the said lord Vchiltrie come with all diligence to Craiglockord, quhair Mr Patrik Galloway come furthe and met him in the nicht, withe quhom he come in to the toun of Edinburgh; and the nixt nicht folowing come doune to the Abbay, and went vp to ane chalmer abone his Majesteis cabbinat quhair fir James Sandelandis lay, and stayed there quhill Mr Patrik Galloway and the said fir Roger Aftoun come vp with his Majestie thither. Quhaire the said lord, kneeling vpon his kneeis, craved his Majesteis pardoun for bearing company with Bothuell withe quhom his Majestie wes offendit, bot for ony euill mynd or intention that he had toward his Majestie or the troubling of his estate, he protested to God he had not, bot onlie the regard he had to his particular for the reuendge of the slauchter of the erle of Murray, quhairin he wes so greatlie interest as his Majestie knew werie weill. Vpon the quhilkis wordis his Majestie tuik him up be the hand, and sayd he knew all that to be werie trew: and vpon sum mae gracious speiches vsit towardis him, they conferred a guid spaice together in the chalmer, quheare he geve his Majestie full satisfactioun according to his hienes defyre, and reffavit ane kife of his hand, and pardoun for all bygeanis; quhilk theirefter schortlie his Majestie geve vnder his hand and seall, and all that folowit him at the reade of Leithe, and went homeward to his awin housé.

Huntlie and Erroll departed of the countrie about the day of 1595. Bothuell lykwayis departed of the countrie, first passing to Kaitnes, and therfra about the day of 1595 to France, lyanding at the New heawin, and fra that past to Rowane and Pareishe. Angus remainit in the countrie in certane obscure partis, and as his Majestie wes informit about Douglas. Quhaire vpon his Majestie wreyt to the lord Vchiltrie sum few lynes vnder his awin hand, defyring him as he wald doe him acceptable seruice, to try and learne gif Angus reforted there in Douglas or therabout, quhilk gif he did, to mak purpos to apprehend him and bring him vnto him ; as lykwayis to bring twa of the erle of Angus seruandis, viz. Inglis of Breadlie, and Andro Morifoun quha wes steuart to the erle of Angus, quho wer privie to all his courfes at that tyme. According to the quhilk letter, the lord Vchiltrie vfit all diligence, and wes maist willing to effectuall his Majesteis desyre as it kythed, in making purpos to have apprehendit the said erle and his saidis seruandis : and being advertit be his spyes that they wer within Douglas and boundis thair of, the said lord Vchiltrie conuocat together of his freindis and seruandis to the number of twa hundrethe horffe, gifing out the repourt that he wes to meit his Majestie vpon some occasioun at Edinburgh ; and sua come forduard to Douglas, quhair his spy met him, and schew him that the erle of Angus went away that dawing out of Douglas, quhair he had lyene twa nichtes of befoir. His man Andro Morefoun wes yit in the toun ; the said lord inuironed the toun, and as he wes ryping the houffes, and searfching thame, Andro Morefoun went out at the back of the yeard quhair he ludgit, quho wes teane and brocht to the said lord. Breadlie wes comming from Lenrick, as the lord Vchiltrie wes lykwayis informit, quhom he waited for lykwayis ; and he comming from the said toun of Lenrick, cheffit him sum few myles and tuik him, and brocht thame bathe to Edinburgh to his Majestie. And efter they wer tryed, examinat, and deponit vpon thaire oathes all that they knew, there wes some about the King, sikk as chancellor Maitland, sir George Home and the rest of that factioun, that wes werie earnest with his Majestie to cause hang thame. The lord Vchiltrie had procurit of his Majestie the custodie of the men ; quhair of being informit that his Majestie wes prest be some about him to have thame execute, sent for Mr Patrik Galloway, and acquainted him heirwith as he wes informed, schawing him that he [would] rather have given the halfe of his land, or they men incurrit any denger of thaire lyfes, seing they haid given his Majestie satisfioun be theare depositiounis of all they knew, and he wald be cald bot a burrior to have brocht thame to the skaffold ; he had rather chofen to cutted theare headis of and brocht in, nor to brocht thame alyfe to the skaffold ; desyring him to crave of his Majestie maist humblie the fauour to graunt theare lyfes. The quhilk commiffioun the said Mr Patrik Galloway declaired vnto his Majestie, quhair of his Majestie confiddering werie gracioullie the said lord Vchiltreis entres thearin, lyk as he had seine him so willing and radie, granted his desyre, and geve the said lord theare lyfes and to put thame at libertie, the quhilk he did werie honefflie. At this tyme the lord Vchiltrie wes not aggreet with Maitland and the Homes.

At Bothuelis passing out of Kaitnes, his brother Hercules Steuart and sum vtheris his fauoreris, Mr Allane Orme and certane vtheris wer execute, to the great regrait of the pepill ; for this Hercules wes ane simple gentleman, and not ane interpryfer. Mr John Coluill wes his apprehender, and for that disgracit, because he promisit him his lyfe. The leivings of Huntlie and Errol wer given to the diuk, and he maid theare awin ladeyis and wyfes intromettouris thairwithe. Angus leaving wes lykwayis given to the diuk, and intromettit with be his awin chalmerlanis. Bothuelis leiving wes renuncit to Ceffurde and Balcleuche, and Coldinghame to the erle of Home, to thair awin houffes and vffes. It wes sayd that thir thrie wer vpone ane course of transporting of the prince from Sterling to the castell of Edinburgh. Johne lord Thirlsteane, being oft tymes seik, recouered now and then ; at last befor his depairtour, quhilk wes the [iij] day of October 1595, efter great remorce for his fynnes depairted this lyfe.

About the [xiv] day of October 1595, the lord Hereis, accompanied with sum incountrie men of the name of Maxwell to the number of iij^c personis, come to Lockarbie, of purpois to have socht and killed the Johnstons ; bot they wer dissapoynted, for Newwork wes left for dead, and the laird of nether Pollock with xx or xiiij of the name of Maxwell wer slayne, and many teane priffoneris be the Johnstons, to the lord Hereis great difgraiice.

About the xxiiij of November, word come that iiij^c failes of Spayne yeardis wer lyand at Bykay befyd Burdeaux. The King come with the counfall to Edinburgh, to treat vpon maiteris of the reformatioun of the countrie, and the interteinment of his Majesteis house, the xxiiij of the said monethe. Wappinschawing is appoynted throw all the countrie, in respect of the word of the Spayne yeardis, and great preparatioun for fortefeing of the country, bot litle donne.

In the beginning of Februar 1595, aucht lordis wer appoynted for vptaking of his Majesteis haill rentis, propertie and casualeties; viz. Alexander lord Vrquhart prefident of the colledge of justice, [the] pryour of Blantyre, fir Dauid Carnegie of Colluthie knicht, Mr John Lyndfay of Menmure, Mr James Elphinstoun of Innernachtie, Mr Thomas Hammiltoun of Drumcairny, Mr John Skene clerk of register and Mr Peter Young of Settoun maister Almoyare; quhilkis war solemnelie fuorne to respect his Majesteis profeite and weill in passing of all thingis. They, according to thair commiffioun, met together in the Over tolbuthe daylie efternoune, and keipit werie preceife and guid ordour. It wes thocht now that all fould be weyll handled: they protestit that they focht nothing so mucche as his Majesteis weill, and wald have no feall for thair seruice.

At this tyme the laird of Parbreathe comptroller and the provest of Glenclouden collectour war prestit to demit thaire offices, quhilk they yeildit. Nixt the maister of Glamis wes delt with for the office of the thesaurie, quho being difficile rassavit sex thovsand pundis for his guidwill in hand. The said Walter pryour of Blantyre in Merche 1595 wes maid thesaurer, and gat the ordinar feall of j^m lib. includit in his gift; and fir Robert Melwill geve over his office of deputie to the said pryour, for the quhilk he had compositioun : sua the pryour wes full thefaurer. In the end of Februari, Mr Robert Bowes come in embassadour for the Queine of Ingland.

About the xiiij or xv day of Apryle, word come in Scotland that Kaleyis wes affaltes and wyn be the Spayneyeardis, being in number xxv^m men ; it wes confermit be ane certaintie immediatlie thairefter. The forme wes this ; it wes betrayed be sex merchandis, quhair of thrie wer apprehendit be the leiftenent and hangit, and vtheris thrie escapit ; and in the meanetyme, the Spayneyeard affaltes the toun in the nicht, affurance wes teane betuix the leiftenent and thame ; yit the Spayneyeard vndermynding the wall blew vp a great pairt of the toun with poulder, and pat many to the aidge of the fuorde : bot sa many as could be had of the Inglishche fyde went for manning the citaideall, bot it wes also wyn and they all flayne. This wes in doing fevin dayis. Thairefter theare past ane armie of xxx^m men to Spayne, and pat many to the aidge of the fuorde, wan Cadeife walis and fundrie of the Spanische schipis with great slauchter. The erles of Effex and Suffex returnit with great spoyles of schipis and vtheris guidis, quhairat great triumphe wes maid, and bealis set vp for joy.

Vpone the xiiij of Apryle 1596, the laird of Balcleuch, accompained with thriefcoir personis or thairby, past to the castle of Carlell, ledderit and clame the walis thair of, and tuik furthe of the same William Armstrong called of Kynmouthe, being theare in priffoun, as takin immediatlie befor be the Inglishemen, at a meiting at a day of trew of the opposit warden with Balcleuche (being lord and keipar of Liddifdeall) and [to] his dishonour as he comptit. [He] cause blaw his trumpet on the hicht of the castell wall, and then brocht the said William away hailcart, slaying and hurting in the meanetyme thrie of the watches of the castell ; and yit not weill thocht of be the Kingis Majestie. Balcleuche being accusit heirof be the Inglishche embassadour, it wes thocht na offence meritting his fying and delyverie quhilk wes craued. Always for fatiffeing of the Queinis Majestie, Balcleuche wes wardit within St Androis, vnder pretext of the intercomoning with Frances Movbray, fugitiue for the hurting of William Schaw, and making him his fecund in a combat vndertakin betuix him and Young Ceffuirde.

About the xx of August 1596, word come quhilk wes trew that the erle of Huntlie come in Scotland; quhilk being first obscurit and thair-efter diuulgat, the ministrie foundit and cryed nichtelie out of thair pulpitis thairvpone.

About the xij of September, there was a conuentioun of certane of the nobilletie and estaitis, quhairat the erle of Huntleyis wyfe geve in in his name certane offeris, quhilkis wer hard, bot reiected allutterlie till sick tyme as they fould vnderstand quheare he wes, and that caution fould be fund afoir his incomming in the countrie, for his guid behaiour, in sick forme as it pleased his Majestie with advyse of his Hienes counfall. Notwithstanding thairefter in ane vther conuentioun haldin at Dumfermling vpone the day of 1596, vnder pretext of ordour taking anent the Princes baptifme, it wes minted to be the said erles wyfe againe, bot no thing donne.

The baptifme appoynted the xxviiij of November 1596, without inuiving of any strengeris at Halyroudhous. The Queine of Inghlandis embassadour Mr Bowes haldand vp the Princes called her lady Elifabethe, efter the Queine his Majestie, and sua wes cryed and called be the lyon harrald Lady Elifabethe first dochtour of Scotland. Litle or no triumphe wes maid bot in guid faire and cheir, becaufe that it wes in wynter feason and ill wether.

In this meanetye, the Inghliche embassadour compleanit vpone Mr Daud Black for vttering ill wordis of the Queine, and calling her ane atheift, and that the relligioun of Inghland wes bot the schaw of a relligioun. He wes thairvpone cited befoir his Majestie and counfell, quheare finding the embassadour fuerue fra the accusatioun, ane vther fummondis wes lybellit aganis the said Mr. David, quhairby he wes fummondit to compeir, to ansuer vponne sick speiches as he had given out of pulpit within thrie dayis befor, to wit, that he had publictly sayd in pulpit, that the papist erles wes come home be the Kingis knavledge and consent, quhairin his Hienes treacherie wes detectit; that all Kingis war deuilis and come of diuilis; that the deuil was the head of the court and in the court; that he prayit for the Queine of Scotland for the faschione, because he saw na appearance of guid in hir tyme; that he red a copie of a fummondis of suspensioun in the midis of his fermone in the pulpit, repellit and discusst the ressonis thairof, and callit the lordis of Sessioun miscreantis, bryberis and holly glasse, and the nobilletie cormoladis; he calit the Queine of England atheist; and last, that he and Mr Andro Melvill convenit ane number of barronis in Fyfe within the toun of Couper, and maid a couenant with thame to ryse in armis, make ane infurrectioun, and execute sick turnis as they devyfit, and for that effect electit four or fyve captans to be thair conductouris.

This Black vsit a declinatour of his Majesteis judgement, saying it wes doctrine, and that the profiteis and ministrie wer only judges competent to him in prima instancia; quhilk passing to ane interloquitour his Majestie repellit, and fand him selfe judge thairinto. Quhairvponne witnesse being calit in and suorne, certane of the speciales of the counsell wer appoynted to examinat thame the morne thairefter; quhilk being done, and the haill witnesse, being a great number all inhabitantis within and about St Androis, examinat, about xxvj of thame deponit the said Black to be gilty of the haill speiches befor specifeit. Vponne the quhilk his Majestie, ever inclynit to lenitie, superceidit his punisshment, quhilk wes remitted to his Hienes plesour, in hoip that maiteris sould [have] bein takin away and packet vp betuix his Hienes and the ministrie, quhilkis all tuik a pairt in maintenance of that declinatour, be a number of theare fubfcriptionis interponit thairto. Quhairvpone infchevit a great contraverfie betuix his Majeftie and the miniftrie, his Hienes acclaiming to be judge to thame in all maiteris of treafoun and feditioun, and they denying the fame. This Black efter conuictioun remitted to the Kingis punifchment, his Majeftie wardit him beyond the northe water quhill his Hienes declairit his mynd.

Sundrie conferences wer betuix his Majeftie and the miniftrie anent the pollitick and externall gouernament of the kirk. Maiteris thair of [wer] hardlie reffonit and ftuckin at on ather fydes, quhill at laft, be the minifteris conftant abyding at theare declinatour, and that they wer onlie competent judges in thair doctrine delyverit in pulpit in prima instancia, his Majeftie wes heichlie exasperat thairat, and at thear daylie declaming aganis his Majeftie and his counfall, finding falt withe his Hienes courfe in the fauour fchewin to the papift erles, speciallie Huntlie, and impunging his Majeftie's lawis, actis of parliament and proclamationis, maid anent thair reftraynt from convocatioun of thame felfes, and with thame the noblemen and barronis of the countrey at theare affembleis and vther tymes, without his Majeftie's privetie and licence, alledging the fame to tend to a feditioun. Sum of the miniftrie, that wer commiffioneris for the reft at Edinburgh for the tyme, wer chaired and commandit to depairt of the toun. Sum alfo of the tounfmen thocht maift familiar with the minifteris of Edinburgh, to the number of xj or xij, wer chaired of the toun, and not to come within twa myles thairto.

The miniftrie of Edinburgh, incenfit at his Majeftie's fa hard proceeding as they thocht, geve out maift griuous and vnkouthie fpeiches aganis the counfall; to wit, prefident, fecretar, Mr Thomas Hamiltoun aduocat. Speciallie Mr Walter Balkanquholle ane of the minifteris of Edinburgh, preaching in St Jeilis kirk the xvij day of December 1596, ane euill day for the toun of Edinburgh, maift griuoufflie exclamit aganis the faidis counfelleris be theare names expref, and aganis his Majeftie's course in fauouring of Huntlie, afferming thairby the kirk and relligioun to be in denger, and exhorting his auditouris, lordis, barronis, gentlemen, burgesse and vtheris to repeare immediatlie to the Litle kirk, quhaire the lordis Lyndfay and Forbes, withe the lairdis of Bargeany, Blackwane, Duntreathe, Hatton, Faldounfyde, M'Kleane and fundrie vtheris barronis, gentlemen and burgesse being convenit at his desyre, ane exhortatioun wes maid be Mr Robert Bruce, ane vther of the saidis ministeris, declairing to the pepill the denger quhairin the kirk and relligioun stood, be the returne of the papist erles within this realme, and the fauour schawin to thame; and thairvpone desyrit sikk as wer convenit theare to hald vp thair handis, and awow the defence of the kirk and relligioun aganis quhatsoever. Quhilk being doune, sum of the saidis noblemen and barronis, and sum of the ministrie wer directed to the Tolbuithe, quhairin his Majestie wes for the tyme in the ower houe, with commissioun to desyre his Majestie, in respect of the denger quhairin the professouris of Godis relligioun stood, to put these counsellouris from him quho geve him counfall to bring home they papiste erles, to the perelling of relligioun and his awin estaite. Quhilk commissioun being dischairged sum pairt to his Majestie, his Hienes, as the commissioneris and pepill murmured, tuik not the same in guid pairt, bot as ane miscontent, withdrew him selfe out of the heiche houe doun to the laiche [doun to the] Tolbuithe, and theare convenit sa mony togither of the counsell as wer present, to advyse vpone ane ansuer.

And sua in this meanetyme, as his Majestie and lordis wes sittand theare in counsell at the backcomming of the commissioneris agane, ane fray arrease in the Tolbuithe being full of pepill, quhilk proceidit vpone ane fray that first beguid in the Litle kirk, quhairin ane cryed "The suord of Gidioun!" and some vtheris cryed "Armes! Armes!" And sua a great number of tounsmen, quhilkis wer thocht maist zealous in relligioun, and hanted in the companie of the ministeris, pat thame felfes in armes, fome in corfleatis and fum vther wayis. Lykas the lord Lyndfay, lord Forbes and fum of the barronis conuenit in the Litle kirk, and with the miniftrie pafft forduard to the Tolbuithe in ane great companie together. And fua exclamationis paffing throw the haill toun, and all men making to armes, theare fell out ane exceiding great tumult, to the terroure of his Majeftie and all the lordis and vtheris with his Hienes in the tolbuithe, bot fpeciallie the greateft fear of the four lordis, quhilkis wes thocht to have beine flayne, to wit, the prefident, the fecretar, Mr James Elphinfoun, the aduocat Mr Thomas Hamiltoun, and my lord of Menmure. Theare wes directit out from his Majeftie and counfall theare prefent, the erle of Mar and the lord Vchiltrie, to the lordis barronis and miniftrie conuenit in the kirk yeard, to ftay the tumult. They had great truble and buffines in thaire outgoing, be reffoun of the thronge of pepill; and at thaire comming to the kirkyeard on the back fyde, quhaire the lordis, miniftrie and all wer conuenit, fome wordis wer wiffellit at the firft betuix the erle of Mar and lord Lyndfay, quhilkis could not be quenched a long tyme, quhill the lord Vchiltrie defyred the lord Lyndfay to have patience, and heir the erle of Mar delyver his Majefteis commiffioun, as it become him weill to doe: Quhilk efter he did, he returnit with my lord Vchiltrie to his Majeftie and counfall, quho wer fittand expecting theare back comming. In this meanetyme the magiftrates and honeft men of the toun, ignorant of the maiter meanit, comming to fpeak his Majeftie, be his Hienes command ftayed the tumult, and commandit all theare nichbouris to theare ludgingis. And quhen the matter wes quyetted, and that the lordis barronis and miniftrie that wer conuenit wer ordeanit to come doun to his Majeftie at efter noune, and to fchaw theare greifes, the quhilk they promifit to doe, his Majeftie pafft doun the Hie freit to the Abbay on fute.

Theirefter the moveris of the tumult, conuening thame felfes together in Mr Robert Bruces galrey in the back of the kirk at efternounge the samyn day, maid choise of sum commiffioneris, viz. the lord Forbes, the laird of Bargeanie and laird of Blackwane, laird of Faldounfyde with sum of the minifteris, quhilkis they fend doune with sum artickelis to his Majestie to be anfuert. They held forduard the way, quhill they come to the Abbay close about four houris at ewin. The Kingis Majestie, being informed of theare commiffioun and of theare comming, called the lord Vchiltrie, and directit him, as he wald doe him maist acceptable seruice, to move and draw Bargaynie and Blackwane fra that companie. Quhilk he did with all diligence, for these twa men wer his speciall freindis, and brocht theare be him vpone ane day of law, for persuite of the lord Torthorell, for the slauchter of his vmquhill vncl James Steuart sumtyme chancellor of Scotland. Sua efter the said lord had teane twa out of that companie back to the toun with him, the rest of the commiffioneris, efter a litle consultatioun and advyfement with thame selfes, separat thame selfes, and ilk ane of thame past ane fundrie geat, leavand of thaire commiffioun vndischarged. The same nicht Barganie and Blackwane wer brocht in quyetlie to his Majesteis chalmer, at ten houris at ewin, be the meanis of the lord Vchiltrie, quho wer pardonit be his Majestie, and commandit to ryd home to theare awin houffe.

Vpone the morne the noblemen and barronis in this quarrell separat thame selfes and past hameward; some of thame wer called thairefter befor his Majestie, and committed to fundrie wardis, furthe of the quhilk they wer be tyme releifit. Some of the inhabitantis of Edinburgh, thocht buffie on the callay that day armit with corfletis, and delaited as pairtakeris of that tumult, being thocht a treasonable conspiacie, (albeet never sa yit tryed out) wer straitlie put at, and for non compearance some put to the horne and vtheris wardit, bot finally all releifit and put to libertie home againe.

The four ordinar ministeris of Edinburgh, viz. Mr Robert Bruce, Mr Walter Backanquhell, Mr William Watfone and Mr James Balfour, being chairged to compeir afoir his Majestie and counfall, and to be entered be the proveft and bailyeis, they wer fugitiues and denuncit to the horne for non compearance. Quhilk passing over a long tyme, and sum meanes being maid for restoiring the ministrie to theare awin places, efter the samyn had waiked, and nather preching nor prayeris vfit in the kirkis of Edinburgh for ane great spaice, it wes drestit with great deficultie, his Majestie standing in werie hard termes with the ministrie, that they fould be restoired to thair places. And for accomplifching of that work, with the resolution of sum questionis debeatable, and thocht meit to be agreed on betuix his Majestie and the kirk, conuentioun of the estaitis and generall assemblie wes appoynted and haldin in Dundie, beginnand vpon the tent day of Maij 1597.

In this foirsaid tyme, Mr John Welfche minister wes chargit to compeir befoir his Majestie and counfall, for sum speiches vttered be him in a fermone maid in St Jeilis kirk in Edinburgh, within thrie or four dayis efter that tumult, quhilk wes the xvij day of December, and for non compearance wes lykwayis denuncit to the horne, and aganis quhom his Majestie wes heichlie offendit. The lord Vchiltrie delt werie earnestlie with his Majestie in his fauouris, and procurit his pace, gat him relaxit and restoired to his awin plaice againe.

At this conuentioun appoynted the tent day of Maij 1597, the four ordinar ministeris of Edinburgh compearit in presence of the generall assemblie haldin theare, and geve vp theare offices, as it wer at the apostles feit, affirming that they fould never serue quhill the diuifioun of the congregatioun wer maid in aucht, and aucht ministeris appoynted to serue the cure of the same. For that commiffioun wes gevin to certane of the ministrie theare, to fie that kirk of Edinburgh planted, with the kirkis of St Androis, Dundie and utheris; as lykwayis to fie ordour taking with a great diffaftour fallin out amangis the clergie of St Androis, quhilkis had devydit that haill cittie in factionis; and a request wes maid be the affemblie to his Majestie to concur with the saidis commiffioneris for the better effectuattng of that turne. His Majestie and the saidis commiffioneris of the affemblie, with fum of his Hienes counfall, immediatlie heirefter convenit at St Androis, and difplacit fra feruice thear Mr David Black and Mr Robert Wallace minifteris; as lykways, in fchort tyme thereafter, inioynit Mr Andro Melwill and the rest of the doctouris to keip theare scoiles and colledges, and medle with na affemleis or presbitereis thereafter; and in end maid choife and placit Mr George Gladfteanis minifter theare, thocht weill of and lykit be his Majestie and commiffioneris of the kirk at that tyme, and the haill honest citizenis of the cittie. Efter this the four ordinar minifteris of Edinburgh fuitted to be reponit in theare awin plaices, quhilk wes thereafter granted.

At the said conuentioun quhilk endit the xvij day of Maij 1597, the articklès folowing wer concludit: first, That the money fould be cryed to l. f. the vnce; that no forrane gold nor filuer fould have courfe, bot be vsit as bulyeoun to the counyiehouse; the counyeis of v lib. peices of gold, and x f. peices of filuer falbe continowit and struckin without alteratioun; that na Inglifche cleathe fould be brocht within this realme; that the woll transporting fould be restrainit; that bulyeoun fould be brocht hame be the merchandis, conforme to the actis of parliament; that the customes falbe heichtit, conform to the actis of parliament and practick of old; that customes falbe takin als weill of guidis command within the realme, as transportit furthe therof, quhilk wes thocht a noveltie. It wes concludit in the said affemblie, that erle Huntlie, Angus, Erroll fould be abfoluit fra the excommunicatioun be thair ordinar presbitreis.

Edinburgh vpon the day of , quhilk wes fencit and continowit to the [iij] day of [November] thereafter. In this tyme the saidis erles wer absoluit fra the sentence of excommunicatioun, and relavit to the societie of the kirk.

Immediatlie thereafter his Majestie past about the [ix] day of October toward Dumfriesche, for repressing the insolencie of the brokin men of the west bordour, of that resolutioun not to returne thairfra quhill that turne wes effectuati; as in deid his Majestie did mikle to it. In that tyme he hangit xiiij or xv lymmeris and notorius theifes, and compellit the principalis of everie breanche of the furnames of Johnstoun and Airmestrange, Beattifoun, Bell, Irwing and vtheris to enter ane or twa of the moit notable malefactouris of evrie breanche, quhair of theare wes xxxvj in number, as pledges that the haill skeathes and reafes committed be thame or ony of theare particular brenche, fen the laird of Johnstounis acceptatioun of the wardeanrie, quhilk wes about ane yeir and ane halfe befor that tyme, sould be redrest, the pairteis compleanand betuix and the secund of Februar nixt thereafter; and that they and all thaires sould absteine fra sick insolencie and thift in tyme comming, vnder the paine of hanging. Thir pledges being enterit wer committed to waird in his Majestis houffe and strenthes, and for the better effectuati of this conclusioun, and keiping of the countrie in obedience and guid ordour, his Majestie constitute theare presentlie Andro lord Vchiltrie leiftennent and wardin over that haill west merche, and geve pover be commissioun to hald courtes of redres for tryell of complayntis and satisfactioun of his Majestis guid subiectis compleaneris. And for meiting with the opposit wardenis, making and reflaving of redres, and also for suppressing of all forder insolenceis quhatsoever. Quhilk commissioun wes als lairge and ample as any quhatsumever ever granted to ony leiftennent heirtofoir.

This doune, his Majestie returnit from Drumfriesche to Edinburgh, quheare the said parliament was begun vpon the [iij] day of [November,] and endit within aucht or nyne dayis thairefter. At the quhilk the saidis erles wer restored, baithe be reductioun of theare forfaltouris, and ane act of abolitioun granted in theare fauour. The honouris wer borne the first day as folowis; the erle of Caffilis buire the crowne, Sutherland the sceptour, and the erle of Mar the fuord: the secund day the erle Caffilis buir the crowne to the Tolbuithe, the erle of Keatnes the sceptour, and the erle of Mar the fuord: and in the doun comming from the Tolbuithe efter the restitutioun of the erles, the erle of Angus buir the crowne, the erle of Huntlie the sceptour, and the erle of Mar the fuord. There was a taxatioun of twa hundrethe thovsland merkes granted to the King be the estaites of parliament, for directing embassadouris in Ingland, France, Denmerk, Germanie and fundrie vtheris pairtes. Sundrie actis of parliament wer then concludit, the particularis quhair of I remit to the parliament buik.

The lord Vchiltrie remanit leiftennent vpon the bordour fyve or sex monethes at Dumfreische, halding courtis of redres, and pacifeing the countrey; he hangit and slew thriefcoir, with the moir of notable thiefes. He geve fundrie decreitis, and in his tyme caufit mak great execution of the saidis decreitis; and keipit the countrey in great quyetnes and guid ordour all this tyme.

About this tyme there was ane assemblee of the ministrie haldin at Dundie, quhair his Majestie being present vpon the [xxvj] day of Merche 1598, quhair it wes proponit that bischopis shuld have woiit in parliament, bot yit the maiter wes continowit. Sundrie greifes wer given in be the foure ordinarie ministeris of Edinburgh, and the presbiteris thair of and thair about, for that Mr Peter Ewet and Mr George Robertfoun wer admitted ministeris thear; yit all maiteris wer weill agreeet. The maiter of the planting of the kirk of Edinburgh wes long dispute betuix his Majestie and Mr Robert Bruce, vpon this particular, that Mr Robert wald not reffave his admiffioun to a particular floke be impositioun of handis and ordinatioun, without ane declaratour givin [to] him be the commiffioneris of affemblie, that he had lauchfullie exercit the office of ane pastour in the kirk of befoir ; quhilk maiter efter many trystes wes aggreet and packet vp.

At the diffoluing of the quhilk affemblie haldand at Dundie, quhilk wes about the day of , quhen his Majestie wes in his returne to Edinburgh, the diuk of Holften his Majesteis guidbrother come throw Ingland in to Edinburgh, and wes convoyed the first nicht to Halyroudhous, quheare he wes reffavit gladlie, and vfit in all fortis as a Prince. His Majestie heasted to Edinburgh to meit with the said diuk, and at his thearecomming interteined him always as became ; he maid progres out of Halyroudhous ower the water of Forthe to Rewinsheuche the first nicht, fra that to Balcolmie, Pittinweem, St Androis, Leucheris, Dundie, Foulis, St Johnstoun, Sterling, Linlithgow and Edinburgh, quhaire he wes bancketted all the way. His Majestie bancketted him in Halyroudhous and Sterling mony a tyme, with great drinking and pastymes, and with learge propynes.

In the end of Merche 1598, Mr Eduard Bruce commendatour of Kynlofe wes directed in embassadge towardis the Queine of Ingland, with a commiffioun to excuse his Majestie of sum thingis allegit spokin be his Hienes in parliament, anent hir proceeding in nominatioun of the secund persone and great steuart, in his Majesteis preiudice to the richt of the crowne of Ingland, and to propone sum vtheris particularis concerning the estait of the twa bordouris and twa realmis. He returnit in Majj thairefter, with word that a peace wes concludit betuix the King of Spayne and France, within the quhilk it wes craved that the Queine of Ingland and the estaites of the Law countreis fould be includit, if it pleased thame vponne sick conditionis. In this peace it wes concludit that the inquisition of Spayne and halye house fould be dischargit, and not extendit to frangeris ; that all forreneris mycht tread theare at thear plesfour without challenge ; that Caleyfe fould be restoired to the King of France, vpone the xxij day of Maij foirsaid.

Vpone the xxiiij day of Junij nixt, theare wes a conuentioun apoynted to hald at Edinburgh of the nobilletie and esteatis : at quhilk day theare wer present, the diuk of Lennox, lord Hamiltoun, the erles of Angus, Erroll, Caffilis, Mar, Glencairne, Sutherland ; the lordis Settoun, Leivingstoun, Nevbotle, with fundrie vtheris. Quheareat wes treated the headis and artickelis folowing ; for setting doune a rent to his Majestie for the dischaige of his princelie effearis ; anent the electioun of his defynit counfall remitted to the parliament ; the checker to fit anis in the yeir in Julij allenerlie ; Mononday apoynted a play day ; his Majestie passing to Kyntyre ; the bifchop of Glasgou restoired ; anent the scherefis and horneris ; the ordour alreadie set down to stand anent away taking of feadis ; anent provisioun for armour, with fundrie vtheris guid actis.

Immediatlie efter the dissolving of the said conuentioun, his Majestie past out of Edinburgh to Sterling, and from that to Falkland. His Majestie returnit againe to Edinburgh the xx day of Julij, for ordour taking with the fead betuix the erle of Mar, lord Leivingstoun and maister of Elphingstoun. About the tuentie of October, the gentlemen interpryferis to conqueis the Lewes past forduard in that woyadge.

Vpone the xxviiij day of October, theare wes a conuentioun of ane number of the nobilletie, quhairat the counyie als weill our awin as forrene wes cryed down, to the great hurt of the leidges ; an electioun of the counfall, and ane greater number of the nobilletie concludit to be wreyttin for, agane the tent day of December nixt thairefter at Edinburgh.

At quhilk tyme they met, and treattit vpone the materis folowing ; to wit, that theare fould be ane defynit counfell of xxxj personis, quhair-

of xvj fould be noblemen, and the rest officiaris, barronis and vtheris at his Majesteis nominatioun, quhilk fould fit in his Majesteis palice vpone Tyfday and Thurfday weeklie at efternounge, and have a pover and auctoritie to command, in quhatfoevir pairtes they fould happin to refoirt, his Majesteis fubiectis makaris of conuocatioun, ryotis or fick tumultis in the countrey, [and] to commit in waird or fyne as they fould think guid. They war firft fuorne, and with fubfcryving geve theare oathes that they fould give his Majestie trew and faithfull counfall in all his royall effearis, ather concerning himfelf or the weill of the countrey. The names war thir; the diuk of Lennox, the erles of Angus, Caffilis, Mar, Glencairne, Montroife quho wes maid prefident of this counfell; the lordis Settoun, Flemyng, Leivingftoun, Vchiltrie, Newbotle, Fyvie; the thefaurer, fecretar, comptroller, clerk of register, aduocat, iuflice clerk, priuie feall, collectour elymoyinare, commendatour of Kynlofe, bifchop of Dunkeld; the lairdis of Traquaire, fir George Home, Carmichell. Thir war prefent, and the rest remitted to his Majesteis nominatioun quhen his Hienes thocht guid. The conyie wes ordeanit to be cryed vp againe in this maner folowing; viz. the vnce of our awin frie fyne filuer to be at liij f. iiij d. and the vnce of forrene filuer to be at l f., and the gold proportionallie according to the fpaices particularlie fet down; wapponfchawingis wer appoynted to be haldin vpone the firft Monondayis of Maij, Junij, Julij; the counfell wes ordeanit to tak ordour with the bordour maiteris, fcherefis, hornaris and fick vtheris thingis proponit at the conuentioun. Quhilkis being endit, the counfall helde forduard, and began according to the preferyvit ordour.

THE FYFT DAY OF AUGUST 1600.

MR ALEXANDER RUTHUEN brother to the erle of Govrie come tymuflie to Falkland, quho did informe the Kingis Majestie that certane gold wes fund within the grund in a plaice, with the quhilk he wald on na wayis medle, vnto fick tyme as his Majestie did fie it. Quhair-vpone his Majestie come to Perth to dyne with the faid erle, and immediatlie thairefter his Majestie wes conuoyit vp staires, being allone with the faid Mr Alexander ; and evrie dur being schut as his Majestie come along behind him, wes brocht to ane inner cabinet, quheare behind the tapistrie wes sittand ane armit man called Andro Henderfoun, of purposis to have killed his Maieftie. The faid Mr Alexander Ruthuen than began with these speiches to his Majestie ; “ Sir, ye must die, thearefore I will bind your handis.” His Majestie maid anfuer in this form ; “ Mr Alexander, did ever Mr Robert Rollock teatche yow fuche leffonis in devynetie, to bind your Prince and kill him ? No ! no ! I am born a frie King, and thairfoire will not be bund.” And vpon these speiches his Majestie and Mr Alexander fell in wrastlence ; his Majestie, being strong and assisted with the help of the Almichtie, did bring him selfe to ane back wyndow, quhair thrusting out ane glafe cryed treafoun. Johne Ramsay, by the providence of God, being his Majesteis peadge and trustie seruand, hearing his Majesteis word, convoyed him selfe to his Majestie, first of all by ane privat way and entrie, and did find thame beathe almoist without breathe; and feing his Majestie in fuche denger, presentlie did kill the said Mr Alexander. The erle him selfe comming ane vther way vp stearis, his Majestie being inclofit in ane litle cabbynit, the said John Ramsay meiting the erle with twa drawin fuordis in his handis sayd, "My lord quhat meane yow to kill ws quho ar seruandis? his Majestie is killed;" and hafing his fuord (my lord pausing at this word) strook him ane deadlie streak toward the heart. As also fir Thomas Erskyne hafing folowit vp ane vther way did keip the entrie.

The report of the slauchter of the said erle and his brother went throw Perth, and [the pepill] nocht vnderstanding the forme, come towardis the houe withe forces, and cryed they wald have out thaire proveft; and vpon this ane great tumult arose and confluence of pepill. At last the King commandit to mak proclamatioun, commanding evrie perfone to thair awin houe, vnder the paine of dead and treafoun, quhairvpon the tumult ceassed. Then his Majestie tuik horse and red immediatlie to Falkland.

Schortlie thairefter, the corpis of the said erle and his brother wer brocht to Edinburgh to the croce thairof, and hangit vp in presence of the haill pepill. Lykas thairefter they wer baithe forfalded as treatouris to his Majesteis perfone. In November thearefter, there wes ane parliament, quhairin it wes ordeanit, that, as the name of Ruthuen fould be extinguifchit in all tyme thairefter, sa the place of Ruthuen fould be called Huntingtoure, vnder the paine of perpetuall exyle and banishment; and that betuix and the feast and terme of Witsonday nixt folowing: quhairvpon letters war directit to the toun of Perth, Edinburgh and vtheris places neidfull, and there publischt.

Thearefter John Ramfay reffavit the title of knichthead, with noble airmes devyfit and given be his Majeftie to him and his fuceffouris, as being maft worthie of the fame for his memorable preferuatioun. And this far for the erle of Govreis treafoun, etc.

Vpone the day of Merche 1603, his Majeftie tuik journey towards England to be crowned King theareof; quhair he wes met with fundrie nobles, and convoyit to the Chairterhoufe of Londoun, etc.
